MEAT INDUSTRY LEADS CHICAGO TO PROSPERITY

Symbol of Initiative; 1934 Sets Record.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago is the world's greatest meat purveyor and the square mile filled by the stock yards and Packingtown holds the city's largest industry.

The "yards" are known the world over. Since their opening on Christmas day, 1865, more than 841 million animals have been sold within their gates for nearly 20 billion dollars, and for more than two generations the industry has been a prime force in the material growth of Chicago.

Moreover, it has been one of the builders of the agricultural midwest, on the prosperity of which Chicago's well-being depends. Flocks and herds are turned into cash as they arrive and are sold. The "yards" comprise the earth's largest cash market for the live stock farmer.

Volume Handled Sets Record.

It may sound strange, but here is a business which has grown during depression. Last year the volume of meat processed in America was the largest on record. To be sure, sales forced upon the farmer by the drouth and by the New Deal doctrin of scarcity figured largely in the total.

The number of wage earners in the packing houses of America last September and October probably was the largest in any two months for which the government has records.

Chicago packers had 8 per cent more employés last December than in December, 1933, and pay rolls were 15 per cent higher. In 1934 there were 30,000 packing house employés and a pay roll of about 35 million dollars. Employment is higher, 10 per cent or more, than before the depression. These figures do not include the stockyards workers. This mile square live stock and meat city is split, the eastern half being the "yards," the western half Packingtown.

Output and Consumption Rise.

Estimated value of the 1934 output from Chicago's packing houses is $450,000,000. No less than 12,977,250 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep came to the yards last year. Meat tonnage was 13 per cent higher than in 1933.

Meat consumption has grown because of a combination of low live stock prices, low meat prices, the drouth, government slaughtering, New Deal animal reduction and supplies handed out on the doles. Since 1900 consumption of meats in the United States has averaged about 140 pounds per capita, but in 1933 it was 143 pounds. Now meat prices are upward and the experts look for consumption to decrease.

It is estimated Chicago prepares enough meat to supply the twenty-five largest cities in the United States, or the population of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden combined.

Iced Cars Make Business.

Here is an industry noted for initiative. Chicago gave the refrigerator car to modern civilization. Gustavus F. Swift and Philip D. Armour were its pioneers and refrigeration revolutionized the industry. In the '70s packing was seasonal and could not be conducted in warm weather. Refrigeration changed this condition, and insulated cars with ice bunkers solved the problem of shipping fresh meats to the populous east.

Eastern butchers opposed the new method, and some of the eastern railroads, being equipped with a transport system for live animals, regarded it as a "speculative gamble." But refrigeration was the basis for the development of Chicago's industry in its modern farm. Byproducts, too, developed in great numbers.

Develop Basic Principle.

The packing industry also claims it was first to adopt the conveyor chain system, moving the material past the worker, a principle at the base of mass production which has helped revolutionize American industry.

Concrete roads and trucks appeared, and the industry met them half way, sending out buyers to head stock towards Chicago. The railroads last year speeded up and cut a day off the run of stock trains from the Dakotas and Montana to Chicago.

The "yards," swept by an $8,000,000 fire last May, already has spent $5,000,000 in rebuilding. A larger and better amphitheater arose in time for the greatest and most successful show ever held by the International Live Stock exposition, with 3½ million visitors in eight days.

WOMAN CALLS BRUNO SPY ON RANSOM MOVES

'He Watched Condon at Rail Station.'

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The tedium of the testimony by handwriting experts at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann suddenly was relieved today by the introduction of a surprise witness for the state.

She was Miss Hildegarde Alexander, 26, a handsome young woman. She identified herself as a lingerie model in a fashionable New York shop. Neither her name nor her testimony ever had appeared before in the investigation of the murder of the first born son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Depicts Hauptmann as Spy.

Miss Alexander's story described Hauptmann as shadowing Dr. John F. Condon after the ransom negotiations for the child had been started and before the $50,000 had been paid. Added to the positive identification of Hauptmann by Dr. Condon as the man to whom he paid the money and the identification by Col. Lindbergh of Hauptmann's voice as that of the collector of the ransom, Miss Alexander's was regarded as materially strengthening the state's case.

The young woman was a reluctant and nervous witness. She was subjected to the tactics of Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly under cross-examination. She did not falter, however, in pointing to Hauptmann as a man she saw watching Dr. Condon at a Bronx station of the New York Central railroad in March, 1932.

Before Paying of Ransom.

Miss Alexander was not certain of the exact date, but she placed it as being after the newspapers carried stories of "Jafsie's" ads and before the ransom was paid. She had known Dr. Condon previously, she testified. She said Condon did not notice the man who was watching him. She did not speak to Dr. Condon about the incident at the time.

Attorney Reilly directly accused Miss Alexander of a deliberate fabrication during his cross-examination. That made her eyes flash. She pouted, maintaining that her story was true.

The German alien on trial for the murder treated this new link in the chain of testimony against him with a derisive smile. As the hearing progresses Hauptmann has lost much of the stolidity for which he once was noted. Emotions play across his face, but neither fear nor alarm is among them.

Judge Trenchard intimated today that night sessions might be held to expedite the trial.

CALL NOTES ALL BRUNO'S

Outside of Miss Alexander's cross-examination and brief redirect examination, the court sessions were devoted to the testimony of the handwriting experts for the state. They declared Hauptmann wrote every one of the fourteen ransom notes. Albert S. Osborn, New York expert, finished his testimony with the assertion that there was "irresistible, unanswerable, and overwhelming" evidence that Hauptmann wrote the notes. The other expert of the day was Elbridge W. Stein, also of New York. He was no less positive in his statements.

Tomorrow the state probably will put on the stand John F. Tyrell of Milwaukee, who was called in the trial of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., for the kidnaping and murder of Bobby Franks. The state probably then will have little more testimony on handwriting.

Perhaps the one salient point today in favor of the defense was brought out in cross-examination of Stein by Defense Attorney C. Lloyd Fisher. In a bitter duel with the witness which caused Judge Thomas W. Trenchard to reprimand both the lawyer and the expert, Fisher brought out the discrepancies in misspellings which appeared in the ransom notes.

Strange Spelling in Notes.

It was shown such ordinary words as "not" and "the" and "where" were spelled respectively as "note" and "hte" and "were" in the ransom notes. On the other hand, the following words were spelled correctly: absolute, consequence, appointment, arrangements, inquiry, hazardous, information, circumstances, responsible, and underneath.

The defense theory which Fisher

Nazis Rejoice Over Victory in Rich Coal Area

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 15 [Tuesday].—The rich Saar coal basis has voted overwhelmingly for the return to the German fatherland, from which it was detached by the treaty of Versailles in 1919.

At 8:15 a. m. [1:15 a. m. C. S. T.] the plebiscite commission of the league of nations announced that Germany had taken 90.8 per cent of the votes cast in Sunday's plebiscite.

U. S. Woman Announces Vote.

Miss Sarah Wambaugh of Cambridge, Mass., deputy member of the commission and its technical expert, declared the official results of the 525,756 votes cast were as follows:

FOR GERMANY, 477,119.
STATUS QUO, 46,513.
FOR FRANCE, 2,124.

The percentage of the status quo was 8.8, and annexation to France less than half of 1 per cent.

Saarbruecken 7 to 1 for Nazis.

In the city of Saarbruecken, the voters favored reunion with Germany by a ratio of 7 to 1. They voted as follows:

FOR GERMANY, 73,761.
STATUS QUO, 10,413.
FOR FRANCE, 286.

Elsewhere the Nazis also piled up staggering majorities. Voelkingen, the seat of the steel dynasty of Hermann Roechling, a close friend of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, voted 10 to 1 for Germany.

Wallerfangen, the home town of Franz von Papen, Hitler's special envoy to Austria, voted 7 to 1 for the German rule.

When the results were announced in Wartburg palace all the Germans in the press gallery rose cheering and singing. Outside the crowd shouted deliriously. The streets of the city rank with "Hails!"

Final Decision up to League.

The final decision on the territory's future rule rests with the league as Sunday's plebiscite was called for sole purpose of obtaining an expression of the desire of the Saarlanders. Because of the overwhelming majority in favor of a reunion with Germany, the territory's speedy delivery into the hands of Hitler and the Nazis is anticipated.

Thus one of the most dangerous European powder barrels has been eliminated from the map and the way is paved for a reconciliation between France and Germany—the corner stone of lasting peace in Europe. But this glad news for the world is the toll of doom to hundreds of Saarlanders, according to enemies of Hitlerism.

There is grave fear that the adherents of the league règime will furnish a Roman holiday for the victorious Nazis, who make it clear that they intend to blow off the lid in the Saar tonight. The United Front of Socialists and communists anticipate what is in store and apparently has elected to go down fighting.

Anti-Nazis to Mobilize.

The call was sent out last night through the Socialist newspaper and in handbills distributed in the streets for all United Front partisans to mo-

LAWYER FOUND NOT GUILTY OF DILLINGER PLOT

Verdict Is Reached on Fifth Ballot.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Attorney Louis Piquett, 1201 Belmont avenue, was found not guilty last night by a jury in Federal Judge William H. Holly's court of the charge of having harbored and concealed the late John Dillinger, his client, from federal law in Chicago after Dillinger's escape from the Crown Point jail last March 3.

This verdict, which came at 10:10 o'clock last night, after the jury had been out since 5:58 in the evening, was one of the greatest surprises that has occurred in federal court circles in years.

Not only were the prosecutors confident of a victory here in the first effort of the government against so-called "lawyer criminals," but the defendant and his counsel were almost resigned in advance to a guilty verdict.

Piquett's Advice to Wife.

"If I am found guilty," Piquett told his wife a few minutes before the solemn faced jury filed into the room, "don't make any demonstration. Leave the talking to me."

"You are a mighty lucky man, Mr. Piquett," said United States Attorney Dwight H. Green to the defendant a few minutes later when, amid scenes of almost hysterical joy on the part of Piquett and his friends, the defendant came up to shake hands with Green and the special prosecutors in this case, J. Albert Woll and Horace Hagan, who are assistants to the United States attorney general.

Piquett, his wife, and women friends, including Mrs. Ada Martin, a nurse who during the afternoon had rushed to the assistance of Defense Attorney Edwin T. Peifer when he collapsed while addressing the jury, held what looked like a new year's celebration in the corridors of the United States courthouse. Shrieking with laughter, amid sound of flashlights and shouts, they danced down the hallways.

Jurors Tell of "Trouble."

The jurors had "lots of trouble" in reaching their verdict, according to Albert J. Crane, the foreman, who lives at 7641 Eastlake terrace and who is an office manager for the Commonwealth Edison company.

They agreed to make no statement as to the cause of their trouble, but finally said that there had been five ballots, which stood as follows:

First—8 not guilty, 4 guilty.
Second—9 not guilty, 3 guilty.
Third—10 not guilty, 2 guilty.
Fourth—11 not guilty, 1 guilty.

The last man came around on the fifth ballot.

Mr. Green would make no comment on the verdict, but he made a statement which predicts future trouble for Piquett.

"We will proceed to the trial of Piquett on the charge of harboring and concealing Homer Van Meter," he said. "We are not by any means through with the prosecution of lawyers, doctors, and others who have harbored, or who harbor in the future, criminals of the type of Dillinger." [Van Meter was a Dillinger gangster, who was slain by police in St. Paul last August—a month after Dillinger himself was killed by federal agents in Chicago.]

Same Evidence in Van Meter Case.

The evidence in the Van Meter case is the same as that in the Dillinger case, that Piquett arranged with the late James Probasco to have Dillinger hide in Probasco's bungalow at 2509 North Crawford avenue, and then found Dr. Wilhelm Loeser and Dr. Harold Cassidy to perform face lifting and finger tip operations on the desperado. The payments were the same in both cases, $5,000.

The difference in the two cases is that in the Van Meter case Piquett cannot plead that he was acting as an attorney. This was his defense in the Dillinger case, that all his acts were those of a lawyer in relation to his client, and that he was seeking to get Dillinger to surrender at the time the outlaw was killed last July 22.

Another federal prosecution looms against Piquett in connection with mail fraud inquiries into his Wisconsin lime quarry stock selling scheme. He is under indictment in the state court at Darlington, Wis., in this case.

All these dark portents of the future passed lightly over Piquett's head last night, however. The world had grown bright for him again, and also

Mystery Veils Victim's Death After Slugging

William C. Martin, 50 years old, 2136 Lincoln Park West, died yesterday in the Illinois Masonic hospital of injuries suffered Dec. 11 in a manner that has not been determined. It is expected that the unusual circumstances will be investigated today at the coroner's inquest.

Martin, who was president of the Martin Rubber company, 1525 Kingsbury street, staggered into a gasoline station operated by James and Herman Hart at 6559 South Cicero avenue the evening of Dec. 11. He had a long scalp cut and other injuries.

Tells Story of Beating.

His own report of his injury, as related yesterday by James Hart, was as follows:

"I had made an appointment to meet a man at 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue and discuss the sale of machinery I no longer needed in my business. We drove around while we were talking. When we got out here the man drew a blackjack, told me it was a stickup, and began beating me on the head. I was driving the car and his blows caused me to swerve into a ditch."

The injured man told Hart that the slugger was apparently uninjured in the smashup and fled, leaving him alone.

From the gasoline station Martin was taken, according to Hart, to the Clearing emergency hospital and given treatment. He was later taken home in his own car. About ten days ago blood poisoning developed from the injuries and Martin was moved to the Illinois Masonic hospital.

No Police Report Made.

Further mystery was added to the case when the Chicago Lawn police and the county highway police both asserted they had no report of the injury of Martin. From the records available last night the Clearing hospital could find no mention of his treatment. The Chicago Lawn district extends only as far west as Cicero avenue and the highway police patrol the section where the crackup occurred.

Alexander Maylath, secretary to Chief Collins of the county police, said that he had ordered an investigation after the Sheffield avenue police notified him yesterday of the death.

GETS $2,000 AWARD FOR AFFECTIONS OF HIS SUICIDE WIFE

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Ambrose G. Travers, a Bronx broker, today won $2,000 of the $100,000 at which he valued his late wife's affections.

A Supreme court jury returned the $2,000 verdict against Theodore P. Lawlor, president of the Flushing Long Island National bank, whom Travers accused of alienating the affections of Mrs. Helen Grace Travers, his first wife, now dead.

Travers' second wife attended the trial with him.

Lawlor denied the charge and testified concerning a letter written by the first Mrs. Travers before she committed suicide in 1931.

In the letter Mrs. Travers called herself a "rotter" and said Lawlor affected her "like a drug."

AUTO IS STOLEN, BUT PAPA CAN'T HAVE ALL LUCK

Ralph Langan, 4252 North Monticello avenue, hastily put Mrs. Langan into the family automobile yesterday afternoon and took her to the Illinois Masonic hospital. Then he waited, anxiously.

About 9 p. m. a nurse came out into the corridor and notified Mr. Langan that he was the father of a fine daughter.

"Hurrah," said he. "I'll drive around and tell the relatives."

But when he reached the curb he found that his automobile had been stolen.

"You can't have everything," he remarked as he went back to the hospital to spread the news by telephone.

WOMAN FIGHTS ROBBER FOR 20C; SERIOUSLY SHOT

Miss Mabel Burton, 65 years old, 6328 University avenue, was shot and seriously wounded last evening when she resisted a robber who had snatched her purse, containing 20 cents, in front of 6139 Greenwood avenue.

Miss Burton told the police that she was on her way to visit friends on Greenwood avenue when the man leaped from a passageway and seized the handbag. She held to it and he struck her on the hand with his pistol. He then started to flee and Miss Burton screamed. The man turned and fired once, the bullet striking her in the right side of the abdomen.

Doolittle and Wife on Speed Hop Over U. S.

BULLETIN.

Pueblo, Colo., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Streaking eastward, Jimmy Doolittle passed here at 10:35 p. m. (11:35 p. m. Chicago time).

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Word that Maj. James H. [Jimmy] Doolittle, speed flyer, had left Burbank for New York in an attempt to set a new transcontinental record for transport planes, was received tonight by Samuel Levy, manager of Floyd Bennett field.

A telegram from Burbank reported Doolittle had left there at 5:27 p. m., Pacific standard time [7:27 p. m., Chicago time], and expected to reach Floyd Bennett field at 7:45 [New York time] tomorrow morning. It added that Doolittle would "only touch his wheels to the ground," and did not say where he planned to land.

Wife Riding with Him.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Jimmy Doolittle, who once induced her husband to give up speed flying, was riding with him in his big monoplane tonight as he streaked across the continent for Newark, N. J., in an effort to set a new coast-to-coast speed record. The present record is 12 hours 3 minutes 50 seconds.

The Doolittles have been married several years. Time was when Jimmy had a string of speed records a yard long. He accomplished a number of daring flights while in charge of all air corps experimental flying at McCook field, Dayton, O. He continued them in the commercial field. He was an expert stunt flier and well known skywriter.

His wife, an attractive woman of 35, felt certain he eventually would crack up. Four years ago she persuaded him to quit speed flying altogether. He did. Jimmy has been devoting most of his recent time to research.

New Miami-New York Record.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—An Eastern Air Lines Transport plane with twelve passengers and a crew of two established a new commercial speed record today for the 1,200 mile Mimai-New York route when it landed in Newark 6 hours and 15 minutes after taking off in Florida. The previous record was 7 hours and 37 minutes.

for his attorneys, Henry A. Pieruccini and Paul Vandenberg. His other attorney, Mr. Peifer, had gone home after his fainting spell in court.

Jury Deliberates Two Hours.

The jury deliberated only a little more than two hours in reaching its verdict. After taking the case the jurors went to supper. It was not until 7:30 p. m. that they began their discussions.

At 9:40 there came three knocks on the jury room door, and Bailiff Lademer Pucka asked them what was wanted. Some one called out that they had a verdict.

The fifty persons lounging around the courtroom had almost given up hope of anything happening. Now they were electrified into action. Mr. Green was sent for and arrived in ten minutes. There was another five minute delay while the jurors were being herded to the courtroom.

Finally, at ten minutes after 10, Judge Holly went on the bench and the old formula of verdict reading was gone through again.

"Have you agreed on a verdict, gentlemen?"

"We have, your honor."

Clerk Reads the Verdict.

The rustling, fateful paper, then the loud voice of Clerk Charles Zinnsko:

"We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

He had hardly let the words out when there was a sound of an emotional explosion from the women.

"O," was the only word they could utter.

Mr. Pieruccini nearly swallowed the handkerchief he pressed to his face. Piquett became a man of new life. His short sturdy figure was galvanized into springing activity. It was in the direction of his wife. He went toward her with outspread arms.

"Quiet, quiet, no demonstration," called judge and bailif, but it was impossible to stop this outburst for more than a few seconds. The judge then left the bench and the celebration began.

Closing Scenes of the Trial.

The closing scenes in the trial were filled with tense minutes.

Following Attorney Peifer's attack of faintness, Attorney Piquett went into the arena to defend himself in an address to the jury. He talked about his aged father and mother and the "little girl from home," his wife, who wept by a window of the crowded courtroom. He pleaded with the jurors to "give him a break," if they could do so "without stretching things too far."

The court's instructions were considered of utmost importance in the case. These were given at the close of a plea of United States Attorney Green, who asked the jurors to make an example of Piquett, declaring that Piquett had convicted himself on the witness stand and that he represented one of the greatest menaces to law and order in the community.

Judge Gives Instructions.

In the instructions Judge Holly defined the relations of attorney and client.

"This defendant is an attorney at law," Judge Holly said. "He was hired to defend Dillinger in his trial in Crown Point.

"The evidence shows that Dillinger got in touch with the defendant after he escaped from the jail at Crown Point.

"It was not the duty of Piquett to turn Dillinger over to the police. He was not required by law to do so. He had the legal right to keep silent, meet and confer with his client and say nothing.

"But he did not have, as a lawyer, the right to assist in aiding Dillinger in avoiding arrest. If you find that Piquett through any affirmative act enabled John Dillinger to avoid arrest, then he is guilty of harboring and conspiring to do so."

THE CLOSING ARGUMENTS

The case went into its final stage at 2 o'clock in the afternoon when the attorneys began their closing arguments after a morning session devoted to the conclusion of evidence by both government and defense.

Prosecutor Hagan was the first to address the jury. He declared that Piquett's own testimony proved there was a conspiracy to disguise and conceal Dillinger. Piquett, he said, joined this conspiracy, under his own evidence, when he took Arthur O'Leary, his investigator, to see Dr. Wilhelm Loeser, who later performed the operations on Dillinger. Both O'Leary and Loeser testified for the government.

"The government evidence shows that from the beginning Piquett was the directing genius of the conspiracy," Mr. Hagan said.

Attorney Peifer Collapses.

He was followed by Defense Attorney Peifer.

"Last March 3," Peifer began, "Dillinger escaped from jail. Piquett saw him twice on that day and advised him as an honest attorney could only advise him, that he must surrender."

Peifer seemed to hesitate here and began a rambling statement about the government witnesses, O'Leary and Dr. Loeser.

"They entered pleas of guilty," said Peifer. "Their testimony was that of accomplices. It should be scrutinized with the greatest of care. It is for you——"

Here Attorney Peifer grasped blindly toward a chair and sagged toward the floor. His face was white.

Dr. F. Victor Efferding was summoned from the Great Northern hotel, where he is house physician. After rest and a glass of water Peifer revived and said he wanted to go on, but he was ordered to go home and rest. He had been ill with stomach trouble for two or three days, his friends said.

Pieruccini Takes Up Argument.

Taking up the defense argument, Attorney Pieruccini attacked the entire array of government witnesses. He accused O'Leary, Dr. Loeser, and Dr. Harold Cassidy, who aided Loeser in the face lifting operations, of conspiring against Piquett.

"O'Leary was dealing with Dillinger on the side," Attorney Pieruccini said. "He was roaming the streets with Dillinger and had a number of side deals with Dillinger. Dillinger was his meal ticket.

"But Piquett was Dillinger's lawyer. His association with Dillinger was that of lawyer and client. He urged Dillinger to surrender, but it was not his duty to surrender him. He may have been overzealous in representing his client, but what Piquett did for Dillinger he would do for you."

Attorney Pieruccini claimed that the three principal government witnesses —O'Leary, Loeser, and Cassidy—had testified only with promises of immunity.

Piquett Also Makes Plea.

Attorney Piquett then made the plea in his own behalf.

"I accepted the responsibility of representing John Dillinger," he thundered. "I was the lawyer of this arch criminal—this public enemy No 1.

"I am not a criminal lawyer, but a criminal law lawyer. The relationship between lawyer and client is sacred.

"They call me the brains of the Dillinger outfit. Because Dillinger had left a trail of blood, the government decided to get me. Perhaps I was overzealous in representing Dillinger. I wish I had never seen him."

Piquett assailed the government witnesses, particularly his one time employé, O'Leary. He closed with a whispered plea to the jury for mercy.

"I have sent no widows to asylums," he said. "I have not stolen from banks nor cheated in receiverships. I am here to be made a horrible example. I am to be sent away for representing a client.

"If you can see your way clear without stretching yourselves too far, find me not guilty. I will appreciate it, not for myself, but for my wife and my family."

Green Demands Conviction.

United States Attorney Green addressed the jury. He said:

"The facts in this case are so plain it seems to me there should be no hesitancy on your part in reaching a proper conclusion. I feel that you know what that conclusion should be.

"This is a peculiar case. Ever since Piquett took the witness stand I have been trying to realize what we are all doing here. If you strip all the evidence, with the exception of that which came from the defendant, you cannot help bring but one verdict; that is guilty.

"The defendant has played on your emotions. I want to say in all sincerity, based on my experience as United States attorney, that there is no greater impetus to crime, no greater menace to society, good citizenship, and enforcement of law than for a lawyer, an officer of the court, to do the things Piquett has testified were done in this case."

Woll Points to Privileges.

Prosecutor Woll told the jurors that the defendant had had more privileges in this trial than he had ever seen accorded before.

"He has talked to you, not about the facts," Woll said, "but about his father and mother, the probable loss of his profession and other things to appeal to your sympathy. He has defended criminals all his life and now he is using the same old bag of tricks in his own behalf.

"All we ask is that you please consider the evidence. No attorney should ever take an affirmative step toward violating the law. Why does he not face the facts instead of groveling around here asking for sympathy. Don't let him make saps out of you."

LAST OF THE TESTIMONY

Attorney Piquett, who was on the witness stand in his own defense for three hours last Friday, resumed the stand at the opening of yesterday's session. He was given a package of money, $500 in $10 bills, and was asked if he had ever given this money to Anna Patzke, Dr. Loeser's housekeeper, in order to influence the doctor's story, as she had testified.

Piquett fingered the bills lovingly but denied stoutly that he had ever given them to the woman. He denied also that he had paid O'Leary $1,400, as O'Leary had testified, or had paid Dr. Cassidy $600 of the Dillinger money.

The defense rested after this and United States Attorney Green called William J. Murray, judge of the Lake county [Ind.] Criminal court at Crown Point, to the stand. Judge Murray admitted that he had seen Piquett at the Ford building in A Century of Progress Exposition the latter part of May, 1934.

Questioning of Judge Murray.

Q.—Did Piquett say to you—"What would you do to Dillinger if he came back"—and did you say to Piquett that if Dillinger came back to trial and the death penalty was inflicted by a petit jury you would commute this to life and you did not believe Dillinger killed Officer O'Malley? A.—I did not. [Dillinger was facing trial for the murder of Policeman William O'Malley in an East Chicago bank holdup when he broke out of the Crown Point jail.]

Piquett himself took up the cross-examination of Judge Murray.

Q.—We had some conversation? A—Yes.

Q.—What was it? A.—After introducing me to Mrs. Piquett and to a man and a woman—I think the man was O'Leary—you said: "This is the Dillinger judge at Crown Point." I said: "I haven't seen you since he got out." You said: "I was the most surprised man in the United States. They'll get him again." I said: "Yes, eventually." You said: "When they do I am going to bring him before you in Lake county because we have an absolute alibi. That man was in Daytona Beach at the time of the East Chicago crime. I can prove it by a Circuit judge in Florida."

Q.—Then we did have a conversation? A.—Yes, but nothing like you said.

Attorney Pomeroy Testifies.

Paul Pomeroy, an attorney associated with Piquett in the Dillinger case, was then permitted to take the stand for the defense. About two or three weeks after Dillinger's escape, he said, O'Leary, Piquett, Nat Gross, a reporter for an afternoon newspaper, and himself were in conversation in Piquett's office.

They discussed the escape. Gross asked if Piquett would consider the possibility of surrendering Dillinger. Piquett said he would do all in his power to bring it about.

Later, Attorney Pomeroy said, he and Piquett discussed various plans for surrendering Dillinger.

The evidence was finally closed after this.

MOVE TO DISMISS HINES CASE TO BE ARGUED ON FEB. 7

Circuit Judge George Fred Rush yesterday set Feb. 7 as the date for arguments on dismissal of the Edward Hines trust receivership suit. A $10,000,000 trust was established in 1914 by the late Edward Hines, lumber king, and on last April 7 suit for an accounting for the appointment of a receiver was filed in behalf of Mrs. Agnes Hines Burns, 17 East Division street, a sister of the lumberman's widow, Mrs. Loretta A. Hines, and Catherine, Loretta, and Ted Edward Purcell, children of another sister, the late Mrs. Rose Hines Purcell.

The action was directed against Mrs. Hines; her two children, Ralph and Charles; F. E. Weyerhauser, and M. L. Hudson, all trustees. The suit charges them with mismanagement and wrongful diversion of more than $6,000,000.

Relief Clients Get Liquor; Arrest 15 in Raid on Flat

On information that inmates of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission shelter at 1426 Newberry avenue were being supplied with liquor, Maxwell street police under Capt. John Norton yesterday raided an alleged "moonshine" flat at 1403 Newberry avenue. Fifteen men were arrested. Police said Otis McMurray, 35 years old, who lives there, will be charged with selling liquor without a license. The others arrested were patrons.

LEAVES GAME, SHOOTS SELF.

Mrs. Doris Buttle, 18 years old, 15343 South Paulina, left a card game in her home last night, went to a bedroom, and shot herself in the chest. At the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey attendants said she might recover.

LET SOUTHWEST STAY OPEN TILL HEARING FRIDAY

With Cook county officials admitting that Henry Ipema has the legal right to retain possession of his land, through which the Southwest highway runs, an agreement was reached yesterday before Circuit Judge John Prystalski to keep the road open to trafic until Friday.

In the meanwhile appraisers for the county and Ipema will prepare an estimate of the value of the property, which is on the Southwest highway between 97th street and 99th street. The barricades which Ipema's relatives and friends constructed across the section of road last Friday, forcing trafic to detour, were dismantled Saturday after Judge Prystalski vacated an order for a writ of assistance granted the day before.

It is expected the road will be permanently unobstructed while Judge Prystalski, acting as an arbiter, with the consent of the county and Attorney Otto Wielgorecki, representing Ipema, arrives at an equitable figure which the county must pay Ipema. Wielgorecki yesterday told Clayton F. Smith, president of the board of county commissioners, that he believed $50,000 would be a fair amount.

When Wielgorecki and Assistant State's Attorney William Tuohy appeared in court yesterday, Judge Prystalski told them Ipema's rights would be protected. Tuohy agreed that no condemnation proceedings or other legal action would be begun before the hearing in court on Friday.

Irving Weitzman's Trial Is Postponed to Feb. 11

Irving Weitzman, head of a south side bakery, will go to trial Feb. 11 before Judge Harry B. Miller of the Criminal court on an indictment accusing him of hiring men to slay Eli Daiches, executive of the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising agency, last March 3. Judge Miller set the date when the case was called for trial yesterday. The delay was due to the illness of Defense Attorney James Burke.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN, 87.

Mrs. Rachel Olsen, 87 years old, died yesterday of injuries incurred two weeks ago in a fall at the Norwegian Old People's home, 6016 Nina avenue.

Judge Hits 'Shyster Tactics' and Orders Contempt Action

Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court yesterday directed the state's attorney's office to draw up an order citing Attorney Joseph B. Lofton to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Lofton has offices at 77 West Washington street, and is head of a Chicago Bar association subcommittee for the defense of prisoners without funds. Judge Sullivan ordered the contempt action on learning that Lofton appeared on Thursday before Circuit Judge Max F. Allaben at Wheaton and obtained a writ of habeas corpus permitting the removal of Milton Pantales, a convict, from Joliet penitentiary to the Du Page county jail pending a hearing on a habeas corpus writ.

Judge Sullivan Denies Writ.

Last week Lofton appeared before Judge Sullivan seeking the writ, but his petition was denied. At that time Judge Sullivan informed the lawyer that the correct legal procedure in the case was to appeal to the Supreme court, since Pantales was convicted of robbery on March 14, 1932, in the court of Judge Harry M. Fisher.

Judge Sullivan then instructed the lawyer to prepare his appeal papers.

Lofton immediately filed a new petition before Judge Allaben, alleging that his client was unjustly held in prison. Despite protests of representatives of the state's attorney's office here the judge issued the writ. A full hearing on the writ will be held in Wheaton tomorrow.

When informed of these facts Judge Sullivan said: "This whole thing smacks of the worst bit of shyster tactics I've ever encountered."

Notifies President of Bar.

After ordering Lofton's citation the judge telephoned to Henry A. Gardner, president of the bar association, and informed him of Lofton's action. Attorney Gardner said: "If the situation is as outlined, the association will take steps to discipline Mr. Lofton."

In Wheaton Judge Allaben said: "I was duty bound to issue the writ upon the representations made to me by Attorney Lofton. He did not tell me, however, that he had been denied a writ in the Cook county courts."

Prosecutors here pointed out that if Pantales is freed on the writ the state will have no recourse against him. If he appealed the case, the best "break" he would get from the Supreme court would be a new trial.

Convicted of $10 Holdup.

Attorney Lofton's petition for the writ is based upon an alleged confusion of orders in the case. Pantales was convicted of robbing Harry Ress of $10 in a hotel at 316 South Halsted street. He was seized by police with the money in his pocket.

After conviction a writ of coram nobis, alleging the discovery of new evidence, was filed before Judge Fisher. On July 20, 1932, the case came before Judge David, who entered an order vacating Judge Fisher's action in allowing the writ to be filed and sending Pantales to the penitentiary.

Attorney Lofton in March, 1932, was escorted out of Danville, Ill., by angry American Legionnaires after he appeared there as attorney for the American Civil Liberties union.

AAA DESTRUCTION RESURRECTS HIGH COST OF LIVING

Reduction of Crops Hits Every Pocket.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Riding on the heels of the political destruction of food supplies in a year of scarcity, Old Man High Cost of Living has come back to reside with the American householder.

The prices of meats, butter, eggs, vegetables, canned goods — in fact, most of the articles that make up the food costs of the ordinary market basket—have been rocketing. A cursory examination of the sources of supply and of the sentiment of the marketplace indicates nothing to brake this upward movement.

The reason is simple. In a year of scarcity, when nature was producing too little rainfall to produce normal crops, the government, through its Agricultural Adjustment administration, was destroying food and curtailing farm production.

Two Chief Causes of Plight.

Just how much blame should be placed on the drouth and how much on the professors of the brain trust who sponsored the theory of producing wealth by destroying wealth it is impossible to determine. But the folly of restricting production is coming home to roost in a big increase in the ordinary citizen's food costs.

At the nation's twenty leading markets receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep during the first 14 days of this year have been the lightest on record. Only 1,567,000 head of live stock were received, compared with 2,482,000 in the comparable period last year, 2,359,000 head two years ago, and 3,289,000 head three years ago.

Add Folly to Misfortune.

Part of this reduction has been due to the drouth that burned up pastures and forced distress selling of live stock last summer. But even the drouth would not have produced so acute a shortage of food animals if it had not been accentuated by the government's program of reduced hog production and of subsidies for farmers who produced less corn and wheat.

The government chose to reduce the production of corn, the big live stock feed crop, in a year when nature was reducing it herself. The result: a corn crop of 1 billion 381 million bushels, compared with the 1929-'33 average of 2 billion 645 million bushels.

With only half a crop of corn and with the wheat crop also reduced by the AAA and the drouth, the farmers rushed to sell their meat animals last fall and now they have fewer than normal to bring to market.

Householder Is Hemmed In.

The householder, under normal circumstances, could turn from pork and other products in which the government has raised prices by creating a shortage. He could eat more beef, butter, eggs, and vegetables. But it so happened that the AAA scheme was launched in a year of drouth when there was a shortage all around. And so he turns from high pork only to find that butter, beef, eggs, vegetables and all the rest are also scarce and expensive.

Beef carcasses now sell at 8½ to 16 cents a pound wholesale. A month ago they sold at 6 to 13 cents, and a year ago at 5½ to 11 cents. Pork loins now bring 15 to 18 cents a pound wholesale. A month ago loins were worth 11 to 13½ cents; a year ago 8½ to 9½ cents. Lamb carcasses at wholesale have risen from 11 to 15 cents a month ago to 13½ to 18 cents at present.

Taxes Piled on to Farm Price.

Those higher prices for meat are merely the reflection of higher prices that the packers are paying for live animals from the farm. They are also in part due to the fact that a processing tax of $2.25 per hundred pounds must be paid to the government on every hundredweight of live hogs.

Hogs now average ten dollars a hundred pounds at the Chicago stockyards, including the $2.25 levied by Uncle Sam. This is the highest price since September, 1930, and the highest January price since 1927. Only a few weeks ago hogs were selling at $7.74 and a year ago they were $4.45, including a processing tax of $1.

Now turn to butter. On Jan. 10 the wholesale price of 92 score butter was 33¾ cents per pound, compared with 18½ cents a year before. Since winter came to the farms and removed the green pastures brought by late fall rains, the farmers have had to feed their dairy cows corn—and corn, because of political tampering, plus the drouth, comes high. Result: The sudden advance in butter prices.

Have Few Eggs on Hand.

Eggs are up, too. Extra firsts at wholesale yesterday were selling at 27½ cents, compared with 15¾ cents six months ago and 21 cents a year ago.

Cold storage stocks of butter are now less than half those of a year ago. Egg stocks also are much reduced, the present supply of 647,000 cases being 84,000 less than a year ago and 346,000 under the five year average.

As for grain, the United States, normally one of the biggest exporting nations in the world has actually reached a place where it must import for its domestic needs.

Private estimates last month placed United States importations of Canadian grain at 20 million bushels for the last four months of 1934, of which 12 million bushels were low grade wheat. Other grains have been imported from Argentina, Poland, and other countries.

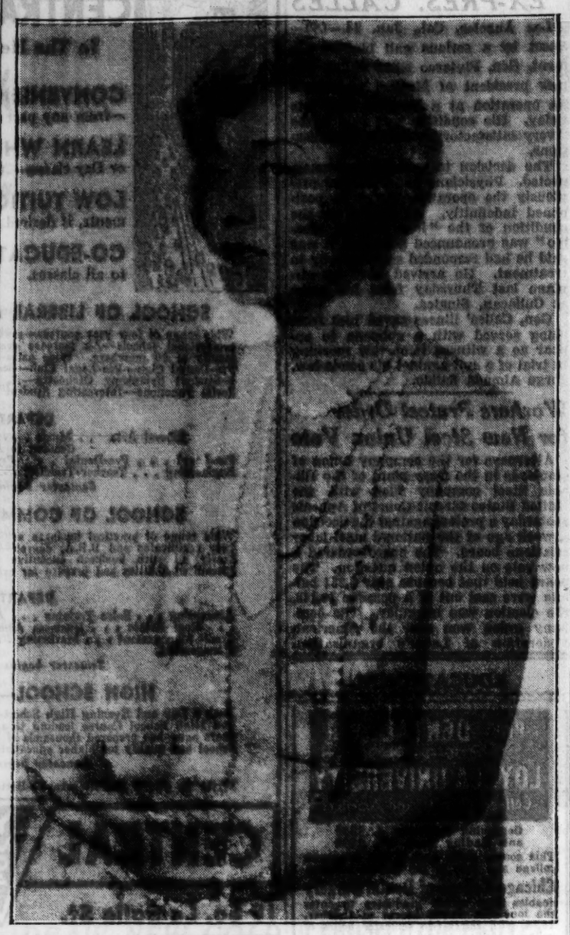
Grain Quotations Show Effect.

Wheat prices today are about a dollar a bushel; corn, 90 cents; oats, 53 cents, and rye 71 cents. These prices do not include the processing tax levied on millers producing flour for domestic use. A year ago wheat was 85 cents; corn, 52 cents; oats, 37 cents, and rye, 59 cents.

LEAPS TO DEATH AT HOSPITAL.

Joseph Zurikowitsch, 34 years old, 5827 South California avenue, a mental patient, died yesterday in the Billings Memorial hospital a few hours after he leaped from a window on the fifth floor.

Her Divorce Suit Set for Hearing



[Paul Stone-Raymor, Ltd., Photo.]

MRS. NELLE M. JOYCE.

In Court 5 Years

After lying dormant for 4½ years, the divorce suit of Mrs. Nelle M. Joyce against James Stanley Joyce, Chicago lumberman, will come up for disposal on March 4.

This was announced by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday when the case came up in the routine call and attorneys for Mrs. Joyce asked another continuance. "It is time this suit is gotten out of the way, one way or the other," Judge Finnegan said.

Mrs. Joyce filed her suit on Aug. 9, 1929, charging cruelty. She was the second wife of the lumberman, who was husband No. 3 of Peggy Upton-Archer-Hopkins-Joyce-Morner, from whom he was divorced in 1921. The Joyces were married on Nov. 20, 1926. Mrs. Joyce has been receiving $500 a month temporary alimony.

Representatives of Joyce said yesterday that they had had no hand in the previous delays, and declared that the lumberman would "vigorously oppose" the suit when it went to trial.

Truck Gardeners Protest Randolph Market Control

A delegation representing the Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers' association, headed by August Gewek of Des Plaines, yesterday appeared before Mayor Kelly to charge that there has been mismanagement of the Randolph Street Farmers' market and to seek changes in the organization of the market. The group presented a proposed ordinance which would regulate the distribution of the market's space facilities.

ROYALISTS CHEER EXILE ALFONSO AS DAUGHTER IS WED

Beatriz's Bridegroom Is Son of American.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 14.—The monarchistic spirit in Spain is dying hard, according to the scenes witnessed at the Church of Jesus today, where, in the presence of ex-King Alfonso XIII., the king and queen of Italy, and fifty odd royal princes and princesses, the Infanta Beatriz became the bride of Don Alessandro Torlonia.

Unusual demonstrations of loyalty to the exiled king and his daughter were made by hundreds of bejeweled Spanish women and men, who crowded the church for the brief celebration of the marriage, and by the thousands who attended the wedding reception. The royalists cheered as Alfonso entered the church and walked down the aile, and again as he left. It is estimated that 4,000 Spaniards came to Rome for the wedding.

Ex-Queen Is Absent.

The only jarring note in the wedding ceremonies was the fact that the bride's mother, ex-Queen Victoria Eugenia, was detained in London by illness. Rumors circulated in London that the ex-queen is seeking annulment of her marriage from Alfonso were denied today by authorities of the sacred rota, the Vatican court which deals with annulments.

Don Alessandro, today's bridegroom, walked into the church with his mother, Princess Elsie Moore Torlonia of New York, but after that Princess Elsie was pushed nearly out of the picture, taking her place on the benches back of the altar for near relatives, but no chair was provided for her as mother of the bridegroom, as is customary. Ex-King Alfonso, King Victor Emmanuel III, and Queen Elena of Italy had special chairs. Princess Elsie had a seat far down the left side of the table at the wedding breakfast.

Mourning Period Not Ended.

After today's ceremonies in the Jesuits' church, performed by the Cardinal Pedro Segura, exiled primate of Spain, the married couple went to the Vatican and they were given a twenty minute audience by Pope Pius XI. and then they prayed at the tomb of St. Peter.

Royal houses represented at the wedding and reception were those of Bavaria, Orleans, Braganza, Greece, the French Bourbon branch, and the Hapsburgs. The infanta's family included her father; her sister, Maria Cristina; her eldest brother, the count of Covadonga; the Infante Don Jaime, and Infante Don Juan.

One who was missing was the Infante Don Gonzalo, who was killed in an automobile accident in Austria last summer while Beatriz was driving. It was a cause for wonderment to some that Beatriz was married before the six months' period of mourning had expired.

It was revealed that the bride's wedding ensemble was made in Spain. She wore a simple, almost severe, white satin gown with a long train. The gown and train were trimmed with white ermine. Orange blossoms from Valencia were made into a coronet. The bride wore a tulle veil and a collar and necklace of pearls.

The reception in Rome's Hotel Excelsior was a reunion for nearly 2,500 of Spain's harassed nobility. They gave Alfonso and the newlyweds a prolonged ovation time after time.

Mussolini Absent.

Tonight the couple attended another large reception for Roman society. Then the two slipped away to Frascati in the Alban hills, preparatory to leaving by train tomorrow for London to see the former Queen Victoria. Alessandro hopes to take his bride to the United States soon, but this trip may be delayed to attend the wedding of Beatriz' brother, Jon Jaime, in March.

Alfonso's gift to the newlyweds was a diadem, collar and pendant of black pearls which once belonged to Empress Maria Teresa of Austria-Hungary and later to Queen Maria Cristina of Spain. Another diadem, collar and bracelet set in aquamarine was given the bride by Queen Elena, while Princess Torlonia gave her new daughter-in-law a jeweled spray.

No one from the Spanish embassy here, which is republican, attended the wedding. Premier Mussolini, too, was absent, not wishing to give offense to Spain. Officials explained that the wedding was not an official government matter.

Victoria Silent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Whatever her reason for not attending the wedding of her daughter, Infanta Beatriz, to Don Alexander Torlonia in Rome today, the ex-Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain remained unavailable to interviewers in the west end London hotel where she has been staying for the last two or three months.

Her secretary said, "I cannot give any reason why her majesty did not go to Rome."

COUCH FAMILY ENTERS TODAY 100TH YEAR OF HOTEL DIRECTING HERE

Represented by Jack Couch, assistant manager of the Drake hotel, the Couch family enters today its 100th year of providing hotel service for Chicago.

The tradition began Jan. 16, 1836, when Ira Couch, Jack's great grandfather, opened the old Tremont house at Randolph and Wells streets. Four years later he enlarged it, and in 1856 he leased it to John B. Drake, who later founded the Grand Pacific hotel and who began in the Tremont as a room clerk. Couch then opened the Commercial house. The family for years upheld the tradition in the Tremont and the Commercial house. Jack Couch's father is Ira J. Couch, stock broker, who is a resident of the Drake hotel.

Father and son will observe their annual custom today by visiting the grave of Ira Couch in Lincoln park. Old Ira Couch, one of the first Chicagoans to go south for the winter, died in Havana in 1858.

PLANES COLLIDE; INDIANA FLYERS FALL TO DEATH

Too Close to Ground for 'Chutes to Open.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two Indiana National Guard airmen were killed and a third flew his crippled ship to a safe landing today when two planes collided in the air about seven miles southeast of here.

The two pilots and an observer were returning home from the air races in Miami. They left the Florida city this morning and were heading for Sky Harbor airport, near here, when the collision occurred, dashing one plane instantly to the ground and leaving the other to struggle to a landing in a cornfield about six miles away.

Lieut. W. B. Morgan, who escaped, identified the two men who were killed as Lieut. Henderson Wheeler, pilot, and Lieut. Richard Miller, observer, of Indianapolis. All, said Morgan, were members of the 113th observation squadron of the Indiana National Guard.

'Chutes Fail to Open.

Wheeler and Miller, a witness of the accident, said, in a last desperate effort to save themselves, jumped from the doomed ship, but their parachutes did not open sufficiently before they struck the ground.

Lieut. Morgan reported that the planes were flying low, and he was in the lead.

"All of a sudden the other ship appeared on my right coming up from behind me," he said. "He turned in on me and that's when we ran together.

Wing Tips Torn Off.

"We were flying a little off course, and my first impression was that Lieut. Wheeler was trying to show me the way to the airport—that he was trying to turn me back on the course.

"It may have been that his plane was out of control."

The tips were torn from the wings on the right side of Morgan's plane. Clark Couch, farmer who witnessed the collision, said that a wing was torn completely off the plane flown by Lieut. Wheeler.

"Right away I saw two men climb down it, and both of them jumped," Couch said. "They fell, and the plane fell, and that was all I could see. I don't think their parachutes ever had a chance to open."

Couch and others found the men had been killed instantly. The chutes were spread out on the ground about them. The plane was near by.

Beggar's Assistant, Hired at $1 an Hour, Is Freed

Frank Wojtecki, 39 years old, 2917 Central Park avenue, who admitted he served as lookout, at $1 an hour, for Frank Mosselle, 6425 Cottage Grove avenue, while Mosselle solicited alms from his wheel chair contrary to a recent police order, was freed of a disorderly conduct charge yesterday.

NEEDHAM LOSES APPEAL TO U. S. SUPREME COURT

The United States Supreme court refused yesterday to review the conviction of Leslie A. Needham, attorney for H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate concern, on a charge of using the mails to defraud, according to word received from Washington.

Needham's conviction was affirmed on Oct. 25 by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Four other former officials of the company, convicted with Needham, did not join in his appeals and are now serving sentences of three years in prison. Needham is under sentence of one year.

The four are Henry F. Norcott, president; Harold D. Bennett, vice president; Charles P. Packer Jr., treasurer; and W. Scott Carroll, controler. Originally they and Needham were sentenced to serve twenty years each, but the case was reversed and remanded for retrial.

JAIL FOR RADICAL TEACHERS URGED BY BILLY SUNDAY

Jail for socialistic and communistic college professors was proposed yesterday by the Rev. William A. [Billy] Sunday of former sawdust trail fame before the regular meeting of the Congregational Ministers' union, 19 South La Salle street. The evangelist, who is 72 years old, told the 100 pastors assembled that educational institutions which permit subversive teachings should be closed.

"The country is full of schools today where decent Americans don't dare send their sons and daughters if they wish them to grow into honest to goodness Americans who love their country, their families, and their God," shouted the evangelist.

"As for preachers who have gone over to socialism," the Rev. Mr. Sunday added, as he pounded the table, "they should be thrown from their pulpits."

LIBERTY LEAGUE HITS "JUGGLING" IN U. S. BUDGET

Charges Move to Conceal Financial State.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Charging a juggling of figures to conceal the true state of government finances, the American Liberty league today issued an analysis of the President's budget, from which it draws three conclusions of "a highly disturbing character."

The league is the recently organized nonpartisan body, including Al Smith and John W. Davis in its membership, which is combating the excesses of radicalism in national and state governments.

Points to Debt Increase.

The features of the President's budget which the league finds disturbing are these:

1. A return to a level of regular expenditures as high as that which early in the depression occasioned a nation-wide revolt.

2. A prospective increase in the public debt by nearly two and a half billion dollars beyond the point which the people were told a year ago should mark the end of continued treasury deficits.

3. A huge emergency fund which permits executive allotments without adequate legislative direction for public works projects which may lack economic justification and may not accomplish the purpose for which they are intended.

Cites Buried Paragraph.

The league calls attention to a paragraph buried in the body of the budget report, but not included in the President's message itself, which stated that expenditures to meet the regular requirements of the government are estimated to be $1,077,000,000 greater for the fiscal year 1936 than were the actual expenditures for these purposes in 1934. Interpreting this paragraph the league analysis states:

"In effect, it wipes out the savings of upward of a billion dollars in ordinary governmental costs which were accomplished in the attempted drive for economy commenced during the final year of the last administration, and was carried forward with a marked degree of success in the early months of the present administration."

"Repudiates Party Pledge."

This, the league points out, constitutes a complete repudiation of the Democratic platform pledge to reduce government costs "not less than 25 per cent."

In this connection the league analysis questions the budget message statement that with the exception of funds for the relief of unemployment "every current expenditure of whatever nature will be fully covered by our estimates of current receipts."

"In his tabulation supporting this statement the President eliminated processing taxes from general receipts and both agricultural benefits and public debt retirements from regular expenditures," says the league. "Debt retirements were omitted from the President's tabulation of regular expenditures despite the fact that in the next paragraph he included them in an enumeration of various 'regular' expenditures which have shown an increase.

"Tells Different Story."

"As against the President's assertion that regular expenditures will be balanced by ordinary receipts, the tabulation on the daily treasury statement basis in the annual report of the secretary of the treasury tells a different story.

"The general budget was in balance in the fiscal year 1934, receipts exceeding general expenditures, including public debt retirements, by about $15,000,000. In the fiscal year of 1935 estimated general expenditures exceed receipts by about 225 million dollars. The estimates for the fiscal year 1936 show an excess of general expenditures over receipts amounting to about 407 million dollars.

"The deficit in the general budget is in prospect for the fiscal year 1936 despite the fact that receipts are estimated at a total about 876 million dollars greater than that for the fiscal year 1934."

Urges Congress Study.

Congress, the league suggests, should scrutinize the proposed regular expenditures, the increase in which means the further postponement of a balancing of the budget and the dissipation of hope of lightening taxation.

Commenting upon the problems created by the increase in the public debt, which, according to the President's estimates may total $34,239,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year, 1936, the league says:

"The failure of the President to fix this total as a new limit for debt increase adds a further reason for a feeling of uncertainty. There is no assurance that the 4 billion dollar lump sum appropriation which the President asks for relief of unemployment through public works and projects of other kinds will mark the end of emergency outlays which must be financed by borrowed money."

"Inflationary Process."

Pointing out that recent treasury offerings have been absorbed largely by the banks and that it is estimated that as much as 60 per cent of the total public debt now is being held by federal reserve banks and commercial banks, the league says that "the financing of deficits through the banks is an inflationary process which is menacing to the credit structure."

As to the budget showing that the estimated deficit for 1936 is a little less than that for 1935, the analysis shows that "the total would be considerably greater except for the use of revolving funds such as of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to meet new emergency outlays."

"The President," the league explains, "has asked congress to transfer 900 million dollars from unobligated emergency authorizations to direct relief, needs during the remaining month of the current fiscal year. The effect of this method of appropriation is to use funds of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other agencies which might otherwise be returned to the treasury. Such action tends to cut into revolving funds which represent assets recoverable at some future period.

"Involves Tax Burden."

"It would seem fairer to the public to appropriate such money as is needed for relief directly from the treasury instead of using unobligated emergency funds. The method proposed seems to imply that the money already is available and that it involves no burden upon the taxpayers. This is not the fact."

Referring to the President's request for blanket authority to use 4 billion dollars for relief of unemployment, the league pamphlet states:

"What is proposed is that the President shall have power to decide all the different questions of policy arising in connection with an expenditure of an amount of money equal to the total annual costs of the government at the beginning of the depression. Congress is asked to waive entirely its right and duty to make proper segregation of the purposes for which the money is to be spent."

House Awaits New Roosevelt Social Security Plan Tomorrow

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The house adjourned after a half hour session today to resume its deliberations Wednesday, when the New Dealers are expected to have a batch of new legislation ready and the big putsch for the President's social security program will start.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] said the social security plans might be placed before the house Wednesday. The program will include unemployment insurance, old age pensions, maternity and handicapped children's benefits—all at a cost of $90,000,000 for the first year.

Delay Job Dole Bill.

The big 4 billion dollar program vesting the President with powers to spend the money for his "dole of jobs" plan will not come up until later in the session, the speaker said. To this is added a 300 million dollar appropriation for an extension of public works and the TVA.

"They will be put in the same bill," said Speaker Byrns. "There's no use taking two bites at it."

The speaker was pressed for comment on the report that congress might add to the Supreme court inasmuch as the justices had voted against the administration's plans in the "hot oil" decision and had indulged in some sharp questioning of the New Deal legal talent in the gold clause case last week.

"I don't believe in enlarging the Supreme court to get a verdict," replied Byrns. "There has been talk, but I don't think it will get anywhere. I don't favor it and I don't think the country would stand for it."

Hints at New Laws.

Byrns hinted that should the high court find objectionable features in the administration's policy of abrogating the gold clauses that the situation might be remedied by legislation. The speakers' remarks were made in his office at the morning press conference.

When the house was called to order a few minutes later Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.] was on his feet with a plea that the Republicans be given some advance knowledge of legislation to be passed during the session.

"Last session under the argument that it was an emergency a great number of bills were passed here with only limited hearings," said Snell, "and several were not even in print when they were passed."

The request sounded reasonable, Representative Edward T. Taylor [Dem., Colo.] said, and promised to do all he could to fulfill it.

Committeemen Named.

The minority committee assignments were announced by Snell. Posts going to Republican congressmen from Illinois were as follows:

John T. Buckbee, post office and post roads.

Chauncey W. Reed, coinage, weights and measures, District of Columbia and world war veterans' legislation.

Ralph E. Church, naval affairs.

Leo E. Allen, foreign affairs, accounts.

Everett M. Birksen, banking and currency, District of Columbia, immigration and naturalization.

Leslie C. Arends, military affairs, invalid pensions, patents.

Reason given for the adjournment till Wednesday was the death yesterday of Representative Anthony J. Griffin [Dem., N. Y.].

SENATE TO OPEN DEBATES TODAY ON WORLD COURT

Quick Okay of U. S. Entry Seems Certain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Debates on the 14 year old world court question will begin in the senate tomorrow and may occupy most of the week. It is expected to adopt the resolution of adherence unless the measure is sidetracked by the administration's social security program.

Passage of the resolution is conceded, with not more than 12 or 15 votes against it, the only remaining question being how long the opposition can hold out.

The world court protocols were made the unfinished business of the senate today, and Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas announced he would make the opening blast for the administration tomorrow. First, however, the senate must take up a resolution introduced by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] which would keep the United States out of the purely political disputes of other countries and maintain this nation's traditional freedom from foreign entanglements. The Vandenberg amendment was defeated in the senate foreign relations committee.

Confident of Quick Okay.

Both Senator Robinson, the majority leader, and Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], minority leader, are confident of an early passage of the world court measure. McNary said not more than half a dozen Republicans would oppose it and this number will not be greatly exceeded by the opposing Democrats.

The opposition debates will be led by Senators William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] and Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], irreconcilables of long standing. Ratification will be opposed, for one reason, on the belief that adherence to the court is just another step toward the administration's goal of getting the United States into the league of nations.

Proponents of ratification will content themselves with Robinson's introductory speech and then leave the floor to the opposition. After the handful of opposition senators have had their say the administration leaders will demand an immediate vote. Senator Robinson expects action before the end of the week and the President's social security message, expected Wednesday or Thursday, is the only thing that might cause a delay.

Schall Assails Works Billions.

Much of today's brief session of the senate was taken up by a speech of Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.] assailing the NRA and the President's request for a lump sum of four billion dollars to be expended at his discretion on works projects. Schall also introduced a bill to repeal title 1 of the NIRA, but not title 2, the public works section.

Schall charged that "administration log rolling" was responsible for the passage of the NRA. He said there was strong support for a public works program, but that the administration agreed to one only on the condition that the provisions of Title 1 of the act be incorporated. Alone this section never could have been adopted, he declared.

"The 670 codes of NIRA are in effect so many prohibition acts upon normal industry," Schall said, "while extending monopoly grants to the benefited industrial trusts. The Supreme court has shown us the way in knocking out, by a vote of 8 to 1, the fundamental defects of all the 670 codes."

Sees Presidential "Slush."

Schall asserted that President Roosevelt, in the interests of clarity, should have asked the four billion dollar lump sum "to put it in his own pocket, to be used as his judgment dictated."

"When the executive is a candidate for reëlection he will be chief beneficiary of this four billion dollars in a lump sum to be allocated by him," the Minnesota senator added. "Will the Supreme court deem that a constitutional reason for abdication of its duty by congress? If 250 million dollars had to be allocated to Maine in the off year 1934, how much would Maine have to get for its 'emergency' in a presidential campaign year, the allocator being the leading candidate?"

SECOND BILL SPLITS HOUSE BACKERS OF BONUS IN TWO CAMPS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—With the right of way for soldiers' bonus legislation already agreed to by house leaders under a plan to get action on the issue before Feb. 1, serious dissension broke out today among advocates of immediate cash payment with the introduction of a bill by Representative Vinson of Kentucky. It differs radically from that proposed by Representative Patman of Texas.

The expected result, since the Vinson measure is supported by the American Legion, is a division of forces heretofore solidly behind the cash payment principle.

The Vinson bill differs from that proposed by Patman in that it makes no provision for inflation of the currency and calls for complete cancellation of interest due the government on loans to veterans against their certificates.

The new bill leaves to congress the method of raising the funds, but Vinson let it be known he had in mind a bond issue maturing in January, 1945. Mr. Patman would have the treasury issue noninterest bearing notes to pay off the veterans. He also is opposed to complete cancellation of interest due the government on loans and would limit remission to the amount of interest accrued since October, 1931.

QUICK OPERATION IS PERFORMED ON EX-PRES. CALLES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Beset by a serious gall bladder ailment, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, underwent an operation at a hospital here late today. His condition was said to be "very satisfactory," with no complications.

The decision to operate was unexpected. Physicians had indicated previously the operation might be postponed indefinitly. At that time the condition of the "iron man of Mexico" was pronounced good and it was said he had responded satisfactorily to treatment. He arrived here by airplane last Thursday from his home at Culiacan, Sinaloa.

Gen. Calles' illness saved him from being served with a subpena to appear as a witness tomorrow morning in trial of a suit against his son-in-law, Jorge Almada Salido.

Workers Protest Order for New Steel Union Vote

Attorneys for the company union of employés in the Gary plant of the Illinois Steel company filed with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday a protest against the decision a week ago of the national steel labor relations board. The board ordered a new vote on the union question. The board held that because only 8,231 ballots were cast out of a possible 10,143, the election was irregular. The company union won over the American Federation of Labor's organization.

That kitten you hold in your arms was born scratch-free. But, alas, it's bound to grow claws, as time goes on.

Good tobacco, on the other hand, grows smoother, friendlier, and richer, as time goes on.

Herein is the reason for Old Gold's sunny smoothness. The choicest sun-ripened, queen-leaf tobaccos, aged to the mellowness of rare old wine. Nature doesn't grow "throat-scratch" in such tobacco.

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

This ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS W. VA. CHAIN STORE TAX

5 to 4 Decision Gives New Dealers Courage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court, in a 5 to 4 decision, today upheld West Virginia's drastic chain store license tax, which, in the case of many gasoline filling stations, amounted to far more than the 1932 profits.

New Dealers, stunned only a week before by the overwhelming 8 to 1 decision holding unconstitutional the oil section of the National Recovery act, hailed what they regarded as a liberal swing of the court. Their anxiety with respect to the pending 69 billion dollar gold clause cases was somewhat relieved.

The division of the court was the same as that upholding the Minnesota mortgage law and New York milk law emergency legislation, with Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Van Devanter, and Butler dissenting without handing down a separate opinion. This encouraged the hope of administration leaders that the gold cases will be decided in their favor by at least 5 to 4, and tended to allay sub rosa threats of "packing" the court.

Standard Oil Brings Suit.

The West Virginia chain store tax provided license fees ranging from $2 on a single store up to $250 each on all stores in excess of 75. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, owning or controling a total of 1,003 units in West Virginia, as well as having 848 leased or vending privilege outlets, brought suit to enjoin the tax as discriminatory and in violation of the due process clause of the 14th amendment. A federal three-judge court in West Virginia granted a permanent injunction and the West Virginia tax commissioner appealed to the Supreme court.

The opinion, written by Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, only dissenter in the oil case, acknowledged the contention of the complainant that the tax worked a heavier burden upon its stores than upon others, but held that "when the power to tax exists, the extent of the burden is a matter for the discretion of the lawmakers."

"Chains for the sale of gasoline have units many times more numerous than chains for other purposes," the opinion said. "The longest 'general commodity' chain is that of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, with 198 stores within the boundaries of West Virginia. Not only are the gasoline units more numerous but the sales from any one unit are, comparatively speaking, small, as must always be the case when subdivision is so minute.

Admits Burden Is Heavier.

"The result is to cast upon the complainant and upon competing chains in the same business a burden much heavier, both absolutely and relatively to earnings, than any that is borne by others. This is brought out clearly through statistical tables in the records. The store license fees from all sources during the year 1933 amounted to $569,693. Of this total stores other than gasoline stations contributed $83,525. Five oil companies, including the complainant, paid $476,171, or 83.5 per cent, and the complainant alone paid $240,173, or 42.16 per cent.

"During 1932 the average net income for company stations was $1,782.78 (it had been more than double in 1931) and for agency stations only $89.75. Upon that basis a tax of $250 would have left a profit for the one group but a loss for the other."

The Supreme court was called upon first to decide whether a chain of filling stations could be subjected to a different measure of taxation from stations in separate ownership. This question was decided in favor of the state on the ground that standardization, rapid turnover, and group advertising all combined to give special advantages to chain systems.

Question of Discrimination.

The second question was whether, if the chain stations are subject to a graduated tax, the graduation in its consequences is so extreme as to be an arbitrary discrimination between longer chains and shorter ones or between chains for the sale of gasoline and for the sale of other products. Having first determined that the graduated tax was valid, the court held:

"When the power to tax exists the extent of the burden is a matter for the discretion of the lawmakers. The subject was fully considered in Magnano company vs. Hamilton, 292 U. S. 40, decided at the last term.

"Even if the tax should destroy a business it would not be made invalid or require compensation upon that ground alone. Those who enter upon a business take that risk."

The court entered upon no defense or consideration of the economic aspects of the West Virginia law, explaining that "we deal with power only."

The broad scope of the court's opinion, it was predicted in congressional circles, will encourage agitation for federal taxes on chain stores and other large corporations now being led by Senator La Follette [Rad., Wis.] and other radical legislators.

DRAW NEW GOLD BILLS IN FEAR OF COURT UPSET

Oliphant in Charge of Monetary Changes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The treasury department under the direction of Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., is drafting new monetary legislation which will be rushed through congress immediately if the Supreme court throws out the New Deal's existing gold laws.

This was learned today when Secretary Morgenthau said, "We always try to do our home work," when he was asked whether precautionary measures were being taken to guard against an adverse Supreme court ruling on gold revaluation.

"The whole thing is so delicate that I don't want to say anything further," Secretary Morgenthau explained to reporters who asked him detailed questions about his plans. It is understood, however, that the new legislation will seek to achieve the same ends by different and more legally acceptable means.

May Put Embargo on Gold.

A gold embargo may be necessary for a short time if the Supreme court upsets the present so-called international gold bullion standards on which the New Dealers have been operating, some observers believe. A stoppage of gold movements out of the country would be essential while the government repaired its monetary fences.

Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury and author of much of the New Deal monetary legislation now under fire, is in charge of drafting the new measures also. Possessing an astute and devious knowledge of monetary law, Oliphant is devising means of carrying out gold revaluation in a new fashion if the Supreme court declares existing legislation unconstitutional.

Secretary Morgenthau is also completing work on new banking and lending legislation. He disclosed today that the interdepartmental lending committee, of which he is head, will hold its "final" meeting tomorrow.

Drafts Omnibus Measure.

This committee has been drafting an amnibus banking measure to include all banking and lending revisions which the New Dealers desire. Among the features of the omnibus bill will be:

1. Increased control by the government over the federal reserve banks as the fountainheads of credit.

2. Increased power over commercial banks for the federal deposit insurance corporation.

3. New funds for the home financing activities of the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

4. Extension of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for another two years.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, announced after calling on President Roosevelt today that an extension of the huge credit agency for another two years had been agreed upon. Mr. Jones said that the corporation was needed to support many of its subsidiary organizations such as the Commodity Credit corporation.

Wants RFC as a Club.

The President himself has said bluntly that he wants the RFC as a club over private capital.

A final decision on how much new money the HOLC will be given is to be reached at tomorrow's meeting of his interdepartmental loan committee, Secretary Morgenthau said.

Banking reforms, which are scheduled to meet a bitter opposition in the senate, will be the most revolutionary features of the banking bill. Control over the federal reserve banks is being sought in an effort to allow central bank inflation of credit.

This control will be sought by an amendment to the Federal Reserve act permitting the reserve board to have a greater voice in the management of the reserve banks' credit policies.

Deposit Control to be Drastic.

Increased FDIC control over banks also will be drastic. The deposit insurance corporation wants power to consolidate throughout, or otherwise discipline banks which it considers too weak to participate in the insurance fund.

The FDIC also wants to take over the authority which the controler of the currency now has over national banks, thus consolidating all federal bank examining agencies.

PROSECUTOR PROVES ALIBI THAT ACQUITS ROBBERY DEFENDANT

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty surprised a jury in Judge John C. Lewe's Criminal court yesterday by proving an ironclad alibi for the defendant in a robbery trial, with the result that the jury followed the prosecutor's recommendation that the defendant be acquitted and forthwith signed such a verdict.

The defendant was James Cuba, president of the Excavating and Grading Teamsters' union, of which Marcus [Studdy] Looney is the business agent. Cuba was charged with being one of four men who robbed Anton Plebanek, 2436 West 24th place, of $369 on Nov. 2. Pelbanek later identified Cuba as one of the robbers and repeated his identification yesterday in court.

The defense had announced it would show that Cuba at the time of the holdup was in Judge William V. Brothers' Criminal court where the Trucking and Transportation exchange [TNT] conspiracy trial was under way. Prosecutor Dougherty checked the alibi, found that Cuba had been in the court and had participated in arguments in behalf of Looney. He placed policemen on the stand to verify the facts and proved to the jury's satisfaction that the defendant was innocent.

Britain's Auto Death Toll Mounts to 7,273 in 1934

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Despite elaborate safety first campaigns, the ministry of transport's efforts to reduce the heavy toll of highway accidents in Great Birtain have failed so far to produce the hoped for results. Statistics issued tonight show that 7,273 people were killed on the roads of Great Britain in the last year and 231,698 were injured. This is seventy-one more deaths than in 1933 and an increase of 15,307 injured.

ROOSEVELT GIVES AID TO FARLEY'S JOB TRADE DEAL

Elevation of Judge to Satisfy Wallace.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today asked the senate to give its approval to a political job trading deal rigged up by Postmaster General James A. Farley, Democratic patronage boss, at the expense of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth circuit.

The President's request came by implication when he asked the senate to confirm the nomination of Judge Charles B. Faris, now federal district judge at St. Louis, to succeed the late Judge William Kenyon on the Circuit court.

Elevation of the elderly Judge Faris to the Eighth Circuit court, which embraces Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, Arkansas, and North and South Dakato, is the keystone in a spoils sharing scheme cooked up by Boss Farley to placate Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.], and Senator Louis Murphy [Dem., Ia.].

Eligible to Retire.

The deal, as admitted by Farley himself, is as follows:

Judge Faris, who is 70 years old and who has been eligible for retirement since October, has agreed to resign from the Circuit court at the end of a year. Incidentally, he will then retire at $12,500 a year instead of the $10,000 he would get as a District court judge.

To succeed Judge Faris at the end of a year the President, with Farley pulling the strings, will select Seth Thomas, protégé of Secretary Wallace and Senator Murphy. Mr. Thomas will step up from his present $8,000 job as solicitor of the department of agriculture to the $12,500 judgeship on the Circuit bench, provided Wallace and Senator Murphy in the meantime can soothe certain Iowa congressmen who do not want Mr. Thomas.

Clark Twice Winner.

Senator Clark will get his slice of the spoils two ways. First, he will have Judge Faris, a native of St. Louis, sitting on the Circuit court for a year even though Missouri already has a judge on that bench, while Arkansas and North Dakota have none. Secondly, Senator Clark will name Judge Faris' successor on the District court and has announced that it will be George Moore, former internal revenue collector for Missouri.

And a year from now Boss Farley will get his. Mr. Thomas will be taking the oath as a Circuit court justice and Mr. Farley will have Mr. Thomas' present $8,000 job in the agriculture to fill during a crucial presidential election year when patronage counts.

The broad outlines of this deal have been admitted by Postmaster General Farley himself and are common knowledge among the Iowa and Missouri congressional delegations.

Iowans Prefer Eicher.

"O, yes," said Representative Bernhard M. Jacobsen [Dem., Ia.], when asked about Judge Faris' elevation, "that's for just a short time. Judge Faris is an old man, and he will retire. Senator Murphy has been backing Mr. Thomas to succeed him, but the Iowa congressmen are united on Mr. Eicher."

Representative Edward C. Eicher [Dem., Ia.] has had the support of the Iowans in the house of representatives from the start, and the failure of the representatives and Senator Murphy to agree opened the way for Senator Clark, who wailed loudly that St. Louis had no Curcuit court judge while Kansas City had one, to slip in Judge Faris. During Judge Faris' year on the bench the Iowans must compose their internal troubles.

Pet Poodle Dies of Grief Over Loss of Invalid Friend

For three years Trixie, a French poodle, kept a vigil at the bedside of an invalid friend, Mrs. Lena Geistmeyer, mother of Trixie's mistress, Mrs. Lillian Eggert, 316 West Allen street, Joliet. Three weeks ago Mrs. Geistmeyer died. The dog mourned in his own way, refusing to eat or be comforted by others of the family. Yesterday, at the advanced age of 18 years, Trixie died. He had been with Mrs. Eggert since he was six weeks old.

WOMAN SEEKS MORALS PURGE IN WASHINGTON

Offers Bill to Prevent "Lewd Enticement."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Staid old Washington was in something of a dither today over a move to clean up local morals.

The leader in the cleanup was Representative Mary T. Norton [Dem., N. J.], chairman of the house committee on the District of Columbia. Mrs. Norton introduced a bill "to prevent enticement for lewd purposes" in the district.

The Norton measure went into considerable detail on the situation and provided that convicted offenders should be classified as vagrants. The asserted offenders are on the distaf side.

Schedule of Penalties.

In addition, the bill set forth such drastic penalties as: $100 fine and imprisonment of sixty days for the first offense; $250 fine and imprisonment of six months for the second infraction, and a fine of $500 and a year in jail for the third and subsequent convictions.

The local press has been talking about vice conditions in the capital for several days, mentioning also an increase in gambling and crime.

Extremely unofficial estimates are that 10,000 "filles de joie" have descended on the town, attracted by the report of federal spending and the increase in the population caused by the overnight growth of emergency agencies.

Fate Up to Committee.

There are more than 82,000 payrollers in the new governmental activities who have not as yet been classified under civil service, sent to Washington by their home congressmen or other local authorities, wielding federal patronage powers. Besides this group the town has seen a great influx of business representatives, dispatched by their local concerns to unsnarl NRA requirements and other complexities of the New Deal.

Whether Mrs. Norton's bill will put a crimp in an old business depends first of all on whether it will be reported out of the district committee to which it was referred.

KIN OF SLAIN WOMAN SUES 'MA' FERGUSON FOR CHARACTER SLUR

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Relatives of Mrs. Pearl Hall, slain in November, 1933, filed suit for $175,000 damages today against Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband-adviser, James E. Ferguson. They alleged defamation of the deceased woman's character in a proclamation granting a pardon to Mrs. Mary Boone on the five year prison sentence assessed for the slaying of Mrs. Hall. In the proclamation Mrs. Ferguson observed:

"Let me say that if women let other women's husbands alone, crimes like this will never occur, but just so long as bad women do not behave themselves we can expect to read of cases just like this."

FAT CAN BE DANGEROUS TO VITAL ORGANS
By Dr. W. M. Thompson
"It has been found that fat affects both special organs and the vital parts. One cannot tell which part of the body it is going to strike. Sometimes Eyes, Ears, Liver or Heart. Therefore, it is obvious that overly fat people should remove their excess weight, not only for appearance sake, but most important of all, as a protection against being stricken by other ailments. The detoxication method of fat reduction is recommended, as it is harmless. This method eliminates poisons that prevent the system from functioning normally. With the organs properly regulated, impurities are eliminated, thus making it possible to remove fatty tissues." The detoxication principle as described by Dr. W. M. Thompson, is used in the BonKora method of home treatment now obtainable at druggists. Thousands are using it for overweight due to toxic condition, overeating and faulty elimination. Losses up to sixty pounds and more are reported. BonKora's cost is little and it is easy to take. Contains no harmful drugs. Acts as a tonic to build you up as it helps you to get thin. GERMANY WINS SAAR BASIN BY LARGE MAJORITY

Nazis Plan to Celebrate Today; Foes Mobilize.

bilize at various pre-designated points for a protest demonstration in the streets.

"Never shall the Saar become Hitler booty," the paper said. "A new stage of our fight begins."

The league's governing commission, presided over by President Geoffrey G. Knox, which is responsible for the safety of all citizens in the Saar, was informed of the delicate situation, but as far as could be learned it had not taken any definite step to call out the 3,300 soldiers who constitute the international army in the territory.

Ready for Flight.

It is feared the Nazis will take advantage of today's celebration to settle old scores with their enemies. Hundreds of refugees from Germany, Jews who have been active in politics and others opposed to what they call the Nazi terror, are preparing to sell their possessions and flee across the frontier. Max Braun, the Socialist, Fritz Pfordt, the communist, and other leaders of the United Front apparently intend to stand by for a while, however, although they say they will probably be targets for Nazi gunmen.

Authorities believe that once this outburst is finished—providing of course there is not a bloody clash between large groups of partisans—relative order can be preserved in the Saar until the withdrawal of the international troops in March or April.

Foes Are Threatened.

After that Hitler has promised that there will be no mass reprisals. Even so, certain Nazi hot heads warn they intend to vent their wrath on a half dozen leaders of the United Front if they stay in the territory as well as several hundred refugees from Germay, who, they say, had no right to meddle in Saar politics.

The date when the Saar will be turned over to Germany has to be fixed by the league council. That decision probably will be made at Geneva this week. Until that date the present government remains in control — at least in name.

The landslide victory for Germany does not necessarily mean a vote for Hitler, although it naturally serves to enhance his prestige. There are many indications that thousands of Saarlanders who voted as Hitler wanted them to did so because they felt the fatherland came first.

Ceremony of Quaint Contrasts.

The ceremony of counting the votes inside Wartburg palace, a grimy brick building which normally houses a private club, was one of quaint contrasts. The plebiscite commission had done its best to build up the Geneva atmosphere. The counting took place on the floor of the club's auditorium. The members of the commission were solemnly seated at a long table on the stage behind an imposing row of microphones.

British Tommies with tin hats and fixed bayonets were on duty outside, and the grim faced, blue coated police officers were stationed inside.

A reporter wishing to see the Geneva principle of the free determination of peoples in action on this historic occasion had first to run the gauntlet of hard boiled sentries. Once in the vestibule of the temple, he had to submit, with hands in the air, to a businesslike frisking by plain clothes men. Authorities were taking no chances of some one dropping a bomb in the middle of the ceremony. Photographers had to submit their cameras to a particularly rigid examination.

Machine Guns on Hand.

Machine guns, gas masks, and gas bombs were on hand for emergencies, but were kept out of sight.

Heedless of all these martial trappings, the members of the plebiscite commission presided over the confusion from their benevolent throne.

The substantial, cheery, businesslike figure of Miss Wambaugh sat at the end of the table a little in front of the three chief delegates, who were, respectively, Swedish, Swiss, and Dutch.

Promptly at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon A. E. Rodhe of Sweden, president of the commission, arose and delivered a brief speech into a microphone. The gist of it was that he hoped the people of the Saar would continue to behave themselves with calm dignity until after the vote was announced and the league council made its decision on who is to get the Saar. In the tone of a starter at a race, he ended with: "The count begins."

At these words, Swiss, Dutch, Swedish, English, American, and other plebiscite officials in the floor below began dumping the sacks of votes on tables where 140 tellers sat counting. Inside the sacks were the blue envelopes containing the ballots, which were sorted out and arranged in neat piles on a desk.

By 6 o'clock the opening of the ballot envelopes themselves was under way. Three little piles of ballot cards soon sprang up—one for Germany, one for France, and one for the status quo, or continued administration by the league.

One pile towered far above the others, and the German correspondents, watching from the press gallery, whispered jubilantly.

Aged Auto Has 3 Crashes in 20 Minutes; Succumbs

Three accidents within twenty minutes yesterday reduced the ancient automobile of Joseph Hobjan, 1211 Jackson street, North Chicago, to a "four foot high pile of junk," according to the police report. Hobjan's car figured in a collision on the icy pavement at Belvidere street and Louis avenue, Waukegan. As he started to push his machine to the roadside another car came along and accomplished the feat for him. Ten minutes later a third automobile struck Hozjan's, demolishing it. No one was injured.

HITLER HERALDS VICTORY IN SAAR AS PEACE MOVE

Assails Versailles Treaty in Radio Message.

BERLIN, Jan. 15 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler in a radio address on the victory in the Saar plebiscite said today that "15 years of distress, which was a painful period for all Germans, has finally ended.

"The joy of the return is the joy of the entire nation," the Nazi dictator continued.

"Our success was huge because the voice of blood and reason decided and not the treaty of Versailles, which promised the world peace, but brought unrest. Neither force nor persuasion could influence you. I express the gratitude of the German nation for your loyalty.

Urges Strict Discipline.

"You dear Saarlanders cannot imagine how happy all we Germans feel at this moment. You may be proud to be Germans. During the coming years you will be representatives of the German people and the German reich.

"I know you will remain loyal under the most difficult circumstances. I ask you once more to keep the strictest discipline, for even at this late hour there may be some who will try to provoke incidents. The German people will thank you the more for your discipline."

Church bells tolled throughout Germany after the vote was announced.

Hitler tolde the world he regarded the Saar vote as a "decisive step on the road to ending the most terrible and most unfruitful fight that tore European nations."

He assured Saarlanders "your decision gives me the possibility of contributing to a solution of Europe's problems. Once we have attained equality we can coöperate in those tasks of international solidarity which are so necessary for pacification of the world."

Germany Ready to Take Saar.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associate Press.]

BERLIN, Jan. 14. — Germany has perfected every detail to enable the reincorporation of the Saar valley into Adolf Hitler's reich within a month, Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick said today. He declared a month would be more than the necessary time to accomplish the technical and administrative tasks involved.

The veteran associate of Hitler, as minister of the interior for both Prussia and the reich, is charged with the details of absorbing once more the rich coal region in anticipation of the plebiscite victory.

"The reich's government can accomplish the reincorporation in the shortest time," Frick declared. "According to the report of Baron Pompeo Aloisi to the league of nations' council Dec. 3, 1934, a minimum term of one month was envisaged. That is quite sufficient for us and need not be extended. The reich government, furthermore, is willing to enter negotiations with France concerning possible questions of commercial policy that may present themselves."

"Have Money to Pay France."

"And how are you going to pay for the re-purchase of the mines?"

Calmly, and with the poise of one who feels he has vast resources to draw upon, the interior minister replied:

"According to the agreement of Dec. 3, 1934, the reich must pay France 900 million francs [about $59,000,000] for the re-purchase of the Saar coal mines inclusive of several railways and customs stations. The German reich will have no difficulty in raising foreign exchange to comply with the method of payment prescribed. Considering the fact that the German budget exceeds 6 billion marks [about $2,400,000,000], raising 900 million francs constitutes no serious problem."

British Are Ready to Give Germany Equality in Arms

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The time for a showdown on the German situation has arrived it was revealed today following a meeting of the British cabinet.

Great Britain, it was officially announced, believes Germany should be released from the military clauses of the Versailles peace treaty on the condition that Adolf Hitler's government joins an armaments limitation pact and returns to the league of nations.

France Ready to Relent.

France, which has insisted all along that it would not agree to recognize German rearmament unless it was assured of security, already has gone a long way in that direction in the last few months. The entry of Russia into the league and the virtual alliance with France eased the Paris government's mind a lot. Last week's political agreement with Italy also has made France feel more comfortable.

With two such allies France can afford to allow Germany a position of equality. Britain is anxious to bring this about and remove the German sore from Europe. To this end Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, has been working hard to bring Germany back into the comity of nations.

No definite step can be taken, however, until after Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France confer with the British leaders here. This conference is expected to be held about the midle of next week.

Italy's Assent Expected.

When the French and British have agreed, the Italians will be informed. Premier Mussolini's assent is anticipated and possibly that of Russia. After that smaller powers may, as a matter of courtesy, be informed before definite proposals to Germany can be made. European statesmen are much more hopeful of a happy outcome than they have been for years.

It is felt that Hitler wants peace with honor, and France is believed to feel that she can give it to him without imperiling her own security.

The German dictator has declared that once the problem of the Saar is out of the way there will be no cause for friction between France and Germany.

Today's cabinet meeting was a regular Wednesday session pushed forward two days for the convenience of Prime Minister MacDonald. He starts tomorrow on a speaking tour in the north of England to open the next general election campaign.

Jewish Immigrants to Palestine Up 40 Pct. in 1934

JERUSALEM, Jan. 14.—(AP)—An increase of Jewish immigration of 40 per cent as compared with 1933 is revealed in the 1934 statistics on immigration published today by the Palestine government. During 1934 42,358 legal Jewish immigrants entered the country. For the corresponding period of 1933 there was 30,327 Jewish immigrants.

GROCERS OF U. S. HEAR NRA LEADER AIM DART AT NRA

Whiteside Raps Theories, but Asks Confidence.

In a plea for increased confidence in the New Deal administration, Arthur D. Whiteside, a member of the National Industrial Recovery board at Washington, last night promised that businessmen and bankers will have a greater part in the shaping of future legislation. Speaking at the Congress hotel, he addressed 500 members of the National American Wholesale Grocers' association, one of the several national food industry organizations which opened conventions here yesterday.

"There is reason to believe that those who are most directly concerned with the legislative changes soon to be considered will be given more of a part in determining the final form which legislation will take than they had in the 73d [last] congress," Mr. Whiteside declared. "I believe that our banking and monetary legislation ultimately will be influenced to a degree by the opinion of sound private banking and financial interests."

"Hysteria Ended," He Says.

Although in one phase of his address Mr. Whiteside admitted he "feared" what the new congress might write into law, he later asserted that the danger of radical legislation has passed because "the initial period of popular hysteria" is ended.

"If the action of this congress does not shatter the confidence of our people, or pass legislation which will retard the recovery which is now under way," Mr. Whiteside said, "it will be to the credit of the President."

Included in his general bid for greater confidence were Mr. Whiteside's tacit shots at the academic and theoretical groups in authority in Washington. Contending with practical men, he said, the theoricians "pull things all out of shape."

Raps the "Theoricians.

"One thing that theory will never do—and they hate me for saying this—is to meet a pay roll," the NRA member declared.

Unemployment cannot be absorbed by further shortening of hours, regardless of what congress thinks or does, he said.

He urged that the NIRA be continued in its present form on grounds that the average experience of the code authorities thus far is only seven months, and to prevent enactment of permanent "unripe" legislation in its stead.

Mr. Whiteside drew applause when he said he would continue to advocate a differential in prices to wholesalers. He advised them to battle infringement of the wholesalers' intrinsic economic function, which, he indicated, is the apparent goal of some members of the administration, by making their services as wholesalers increasingly valuable.

Canners Fight A-B-C Labels.

One particular administration plan affecting industry received the particular attention of affiliated food organizations convening here. This was the expressed NRA plan to compel the nation's canners to label their products in three alphabetical grades, "A," "B," or "C," according to standards of quality and content to be fixed by the government.

In opposing the "A-B-C" system a majority of the industry urged adoption of a system of comprehensive, descriptive labeling which leaders agreed would be a marked improvement over the government's plan—making the label "talk" and tell for the benefit of the buyer the full story of the can's contents. It was pointed out that the individual shopper is interested in obtaining certain characteristics in canned foods, and that these could be accurately described in accordance with standard definitions.

The descriptive labeling plan was advocated by the National Canners' association at a convention which drew 2,000 delegates to the Stevens hotel. It also was recommended by leaders of the National Association of Retail Grocers and by the association of wholesale grocers.

He's Reported Dead; What a Time Disproving Story!

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Returning from a trip today, John E. O'Neill Jr., former football star, met a friend. "Heard you were dead," said the friend, "that your body's at the morgue." O'Neill phoned and found his parents already on their way to New York. He called a friend who had identified the body. He was out. The morgue reported his parents had arranged to ship his body home. He told his troubles to Brooklyn police, who told him where his relatives were staying. He phoned them and finally convinced his sister he was very much alive.

Cuban Government Agrees to Demands; Strikes to End

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Havana's strike threat appeared ended tonight with acceptance of strikers' demands by government officials at the recommendation of Dr. Carlos de la Torre, who was called in as arbitrator. Agreements ended the department of labor and census bureau strikes which were called off effective tomorrow morning. The medico-interne strike settlement was accepted by the acting mayor and strike directors subject to ratification by the meetings of the groups involved.

Opens Canners' Convention with Bang

CANNERS' CONVENTION NOTES

New canned products shown at the national canners convention at the Stevens hotel run the gamut from the simple to the sophisticated. There is a combination three-in-one baby vegetable food, in which is combined three necessary vitaminic vegetables and as a sophisticated contrast there are the diminutive two-ounce cans of cocktail concoctions.

Alphabetically, the canned products run from albano to vermicelli, but there is one fruit at which the canning industry silently folds its cans and creeps away. That is the avocado pear. A fortune, they say, awaits the canner who can preserve an avocado so that, on opening the can, he will find pear rather than pulp.

A new key-opener can is being shown. The key, zipping around the top of the can, unfastens a metal strip which leaves a smooth turned top.

Also newly introduced, principally for the use of canners, is a white soluble pepper, processed from the black. Its advantage over the former black and white and Saratoga peppers lies in the fact that it retains the distinct flavor of black pepper, but not the black specks.

Women want to know three things about a can of fruit, declares Miss Ruth Atwater of Washington, D. C., home economics director for the National Canners' association. How many servings does it contain? How many pieces of whole fruit? Is the syrup sweet or sour? The industry proposes to "take the guesswork out of buying," Miss Atwater says, by answering these questions on the label.

Housewives interested in mechanical efficiency have much to see in the exhibition of the Canning Machinery and Supplies association, also at the Stevens. Whirring steel blades slice 320 beets, chopping steel knives dice 160 carrots, and water frothing through a field of wire washes five bushels of spinach—all in one minute!

What do women want in the way of meat? They want, first of all, visual education in how to use it, Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives league, reported to the department of research and education of the National Association of Retail Grocers at the Palmer house. They want this education in the form of colored meat charts, showing cuts and uses, and they want these charts set up in meat markets which are combined with grocery stores.

No longer will the tenderness of a canned peach be a matter of personal opinion. Instead it will be determined scientifically by a novel puncturing device. By using it, and stating results on the label, canners hope to please both the public and the palate.

Mrs. Harry A. Hooten Divorces Naval Officer

Mrs. Clementin A. Hooten, 105 Scranton avenue, Lake Bluff, was granted an uncontested divorce by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county in Waukegan yesterday from Lieut. Harry A. Hooton of the U. S. S. Annapolis, now on the west coast. She charged desertion, testifying they were married in 1911 in Brooklyn and that he left her on Feb. 26, 1932. A settlement gives her $125 a month alimony and several antique articles, and requires Hooton to return to her 2,495 shares of the preferred stock of the Associated Laundries of Illinois now held as security for a $1,300 loan.

HOLD WOMAN IN SLAYING.

Roberta Wilson, 33 years old, 4408 Hazel street, was held to the grand jury on a manslaughter charge yesterday on recommendation of a coroner's jury. She confessed stabbing, during a drunken quarrel Saturday, Anthony Yegervitch, 35 years old, with whom she had been living.

"Leave the rest to nature"

DOCTORS SETTLED IT, LONG AGO.

UNDER the doctor's care, or in the hospital, you would get a liquid laxative. And the liquid form is what you would use at home, if you knew what a doctor knows!

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less.

Once you have experienced this comfort, you will never return to any form of help that can't be regulated to suit the need.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit — even with children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. You'll like its taste, and like its action. It's pleasant to take, and won't sicken you like a violent cathartic.

So, try Syrup Pepsin. Take regulated doses until Nature restores regularity. Those who have made the "liquid test" know why most doctors favor a liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Get a bottle today.

BE CAREFUL

IF any laxative makes you thirsty, affects your appetite, seems to burn, or requires larger doses than when you first began its use — change to a liquid laxative!

GERMAN CABINET SHAKEUP SEEN IN RECOVERY DRIVE

Hitler Plans to Increase Schacht's Power.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan 14.—Germany today began plans for the reorganization and strengthening of her economic position.

Banking circles assert that this is bound to lead to a shakeup of Reichsfeuhrer Adolf Hitler's cabinet. They see Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economic dictator and president of the reichsbank, who is steadily gaining favor with Hitler, as the coming victor. They predict he will be granted such powers as to make him second only to Hitler.

Hitler Champions Schacht.

When veteran Nazis recently took the reichsfuehrer to task for increasing the powers of Schacht, the "arch-capitalist," and forsaking his own original socialism, he replied:

"Dr. Schacht is our greatest economic expert at the moment—I hope that in two years, when we will have overcome our economic difficulties, I will be able to refer to him publicly as the saviour of the fatherland."

Plans now under discussion are designed to place the nation's economic and financial structure under Schacht's orders. He is seeking greater influence over the finance ministry, the labor ministry, and the ministry of agriculture. Walter Darre, the minister of agriculture, is a strong advocate of "Nazi ideals" and a vigorous opponent of capitalists.

Would Strengthen Army.

Schacht's associates argue that Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk should relinquish his post as minister of finance in favor of Dr. Schacht.

Hitler's reorganization of the cabinet, it is reported, would also include strengthening the position of the army, which demands control of all men bearing arms, except the police. The position of the army's representative in a new government, it is pointed out, would be so strong that several diplomats already are referring to a "diluted military dictatorship under Hitler's orders.

Gen. Werner von Fritsch, commander in chief of the army, it is predicted, will be Hitler's chief adviser in the formation of the government.

Dyed-in-the-wool Nazis assert that they are confident the fuehrer will not abandon his "German Socialism."

GERMAN IDLE FIGURE RISES 252,000; TOTAL GIVEN AS 2,604,000

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Labor office figures published today revealed that the number of officially registered unemployed increased 252,000 during December, raising the total to 2,604,000, compared with the low point of 2,368,000 during October.

According to these figures, the year started with an unemployed list of 4,058,000. As a result Adolf Hitler's second "battle of labor" is credited with a net reduction of 1,454,000 during the year, compared to a net reduction of 1,956,000 during the first "labor battle" of 1933.

Altogether, therefore, the Hitler régime claims a net reduction in the unemployment roster by 3,410,000. Of that number about 2,500,000 have been put in "regular" employment at regular wages, the rest being subjected to more or less compulsory labor at merely nominal wages in labor camps.

CARROLL'S SHOW LOSES $55,000 IN SCENERY BY FIRE

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 15—[Tuesday].—(AP)—Fire in the English theater here early today destroyed scenery, properties, and costumes of a touring company of Earl Carroll's "Vanities." James Carroll, manager of the company and brother of the producer, estimated the loss to the show at $55,000.

The blaze was discovered by employes of another theater nearby not long after the "Vanities" completed the first performance of a three day engagement.

Water pouring from sprinkler connections prevented spread of the flames. Vince Burke, theater manager, estimated damage to the show house, located on Monument circle in downtown Indianapolis, at $3,000.

Carroll said the show will be produced in another theater here Wednesday, and that the tour will be continued.

DOCTOR NAMED IN TRUE BILL AS AID IN MURDER

Admits Treating Robber After Tavern Killing.

Dr. Albert C. Bellini, physician with offices at 2703 Devon avenue and 927 South Loomis street, and two other men were reported named in true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday charging them with being murder accessories after the crime. Dr. Bellini is said to have admitted to the grand jurors that he treated one of the five bandits who received a bullet wound in a pistol battle with a policeman in a tavern Dec. 22, in which Benjamin Yoder, 67 years old, a patron, was killed.

The others reported named in the true bill are Henry Robarge, 1128 South Wood street, in whose home the treatment took place, and Vito Laterza, 1429 Elburn avenue, who obtained the services of the physician.

Arrests Follow Confession.

The arrest of Dr. Bellini and the other two followed the confession to Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash of Joseph Aurell, 21 years old, the robber who was wounded in the battle in Michael Kilmartin's tavern at 5601 South Halsted street. Mario de Stefano, 19 years old, who escaped from the central police building Dec. 31, and Daniel Mirra, still in police custody, were two of Aurell's companions in the robbery.

Aurell was a witness before the grand jury and is said to have told of going to Robarge's home after the shooting and of Laterza's bringing his brother-in-law, Dr. Bellini, to treat his wound. Aurell had been shot in the left side, the bullet passing through his body and emerging through his right side.

Doctor Admits Treatment.

Dr. Bellini appeared before the grand jury on an immunity waiver and admitted dressing Aurell's wound, it was said. He told of being paid $50 for his services and $20 for medicines. He sought to justify his actions by declaring to the grand jury that "the very atmosphere of the Robarge home" was an intimidation. He did not accuse the others, however, of making any direct threats if he did not treat the wound.

Besides Yoder, the slain man, who lived at 5614 South Union avenue, and Aurell, four other men were wounded in the tavern affray. De Stefano and Mirra were captured by Policeman Thomas Lydon of the trafic division, although the policeman was wounded in the hip. All of the robbers have been named in true bills charging murder.

WOMAN CALLS BRUNO SPY ON RANSOM MOVES

ays He Watched Condon at Rail Station.

sought to bring out is that the notes were dictated by an educated person to an illiterate person. That second person, the defense contends, misspelled the small words of his own accord, but asked for the spelling of the longer words.

Or, on the other hand, the defense lawyer's questions indicated, the notes may have been written by some person who purposely misspelled the small words, but betrayed himself in the correct spelling of the longer words. In either case, the discrepancies were counted on as causing confusion in the minds of the jury concerning the true author of the written demands for the ransom.

Stein's testimony mainly was an explanation to the jury concerning his decision that Hauptmann wrote the ransom notes. Stein pointed out that both in the "request writing" of Hauptmann [statements written by him from dictation after his arrest] and in the ransom notes the following similiarities in spelling occurred in addition to those already noted:

"They" was spelled "the"; "money", "mony"; "anything", "anyding"; "right", "rigth"; "by", "be"; "was," "whas"; "can," "cane."

"These misspellings, taken separately, might not be so important," Stein told the jury, "but taken all together, they are strongly significant."

Jury Listens Carefully.

The jurors were more patient during this type of testimony than the courtroom crowd which wanted thrills. All the jurors, with the apparent exception of Mrs. Vera Snyder, 260 pounder, listened carefully to the witness. They studied photographic comparisons of Hauptmann's writing and that of the ransom notes. Mrs. Snyder yawned.

Defense Attorney Fisher asked Stein if the police perhaps had not told Hauptmann to misspell the words as they appeared in the "request writing." Stein said he did not know.

"Wouldn't a man who had been kept without sleep for fifteen hours write differently?" the attorney also inquired.

"Not necessarily," was Stein's answer. "The most important factor in obtaining samples of writing is the guilt or innocence of the person involved. If innocent, he writes naturally. If not, he attempts to disguise his writing."

Attorney Fisher and Stein engaged in heated arguments.

"I deprecate this debate," Judge Trenchard said, ordering both to refrain from argument.

MORNING COURT SESSION

The morning session started out with the firm assertion from the handwriting expert, Osborn, that the evidence indicating Hauptmann as the writer of the ransom notes was "irresistible, unanswerable, and overwhelming."

Osborn also, in answer to queries from Assistant Attorney General Joseph A. Lanigan, expressed his scorn of the science of graphology.

"That science," he explained to the jury, "attempts to infer from handwriting the character of the writer. A graphologist will tell you from your handwriting whether a person will be a good husband or wife, whether he likes children and dogs. The graphologist goes so far as to diagnose disease from handwriting."

"And is your determination of Hauptmann's writing based upon the principles of graphology?" Osborn was asked.

"No sir," was Osborn's emphatic answer.

It has been reported that several of the handwriting experts called as defense witnesses are graphologists.

Mentions Isador Fisch.

Cross-examination of Osborn by Attorney Reilly immediately brought the name of Isador Fisch into the record.

Reilly announced he was suffering from a bad cold. His voice was low and husky. He handed the so-called "nursery note" to the witness. This was the note left in the nursery from which the Lindbergh baby was taken. Col. Lindbergh testified that the note was found on the night of the crime.

"Now, isn't that note entirely different in looks from the other notes?" Reilly asked Osborn, who replied: "No. You use the word 'entirely.' I would say 'somewhat.'"

"You examined writings of other persons in connection with this case?" Reilly asked Osborn, getting the answer: "More than a hundred."

"Did you examine the handwriting of Isador Fisch?" Reilly asked suddenly.

"I believe so," Osborn replied.

Reilly then handed to Osborn a sample of Fisch's handwriting.

"Now, isn't the 'y' in that writing the same as the 'y' in the word 'mony' in the ransome note?" Reilly asked.

"There may be a general resemblance," Osborn admitted.

Demands Writings by Fisch.

"I demand that the state produce all the samples of Fisch's handwriting which it has," Reilly said.

"I don't know why we should produce papers," Wilentz objected, "which have nothing to do with this case."

"They should be produced so that our handwriting experts may testify about them," Reilly insisted.

After some more argument Judge Trenchard ruled that the state should produce the specimens of Fisch's handwriting.

"I'll ascertain if we have any," Wilentz remarked.

There was some discussion about the holes punched in the ransom note. Osborn would not admit they were made with a punch which pierced the paper in three holes at once. The holes were made one at a time, he insisted.

Calls Notes Rapid, Careless.

Osborn also refused to admit that the handwriting apparently was done by a man copying some other writing. As the lawyer pounded him with question after question along that line, Osborn said sharply:

"You're misinterpreting the physical evidence. The notes were not copied. They were written rapidly and carelessly and they do not show the characteristics of imitation."

Reilly read the names of various books on handwriting. He asked Osborn if the authors were regarded as authorities.

One was just an "advertising circular," another "a pamphlet," to Osborn.

Later Notes More Fluent.

Reilly cross-examined Osborn.

Q.—Didn't you find in the later notes a better flow of English? A.—In some particulars, yes. The later notes were brief and they said perhaps a little more definitly what they intended to say. But I think the language is substantially the same.

Q.—Now, regarding the hyphenating of the word "New-York" in the ransom notes which you regard as so unusual. Isn't it customary for Germans to hyphenate the names of towns with double names? A.—No, I don't believe it's customary.

There was some amusement in the courtroom as Attorney Reilly repeated the names of German towns and asked if they were not customarily hyphenated. Reilly had a little trouble with his German accent.

"Such hyphenating is characteristically Teutonic, is it not?" he insisted.

"No," repeated Osborn.

"Is it Scandinavian?" Reilly asked, Osborn replying, "I don't know."

Reilly switched back to the ransom note symbols, the mysterious overlapping circles of red.

"Did you hear Dr. Condon say the symbol on the second note was a poor imitation of the one on the nursery note?" Reilly asked Osborn, receiving the answer, "No. I heard none of his testimony."

"Well, do you think it is?" Reilly asked, Osborn answering "No."

"Well, doctor," Reilly began.

"Neither doctor nor professor," Osborn interrupted.

Attacks Opinion of Expert.

"I suppose you make mistakes," Reilly suggested, getting the reply, "I don't pretend to be infallible, but I do pretend to be careful."

"But you've been mistaken many times," Reilly insisted. Osborn said, "No, not many times. In many cases, it is almost impossible to judge, but in this case the evidence is so extensive there could be no mistake."

Attorney Reilly then asked about other cases. The questions and answers follow:

Q.—You never testified in Easton, Pa., that a signature to a $10,000 note was genuine and it was found to be forged?

Osborn did not remember. Reilly continued the examination.

Q.—Do you remember the Whitehurst case that involved signatures to a marriage certificate? You declared them genuine; they were later found to be false? Do you remember the Kilborn will case in Potsdam, N. Y.?

Q.—Do you recall back in 1925, Dr. Sinclair Tusi of New York City? A.—I remember some one by that name called on me. I don't think he was, oh, sane.

Reilly objected to the answer.

Q.—Didn't you render an opinion?

A.—I don't remember.

"There are cases," Osborn added earnestly, "in which there is such conflicting evidence that an honest difference of opinion is possible between experts. There are cases in which the evidence is so clear that conflicting testimony may be accounted for only on the basis of incompetency or dishonesty."

Attorney Reilly gave up at that point. Osborn was excused with instructions from the court to remain available for further questioning if the Fisch handwriting specimens should be brought into court.

A short recess was taken.

WOMAN TELLS OF SPYING

"Miss Alexander!" called Prosecutor Wilentz. A tall, good looking young woman stopped forward. She was garbed very smartly in a tight fitting black suit and a coat with a big mink collar.

Miss Alexander's hat also was black and was trimmed with the same fur. She wore black gloves to complete her ensemble.

Somewhat nervously she took the oath and ascended the witness stand. She tilted her chin and her large blue eyes under finely arched eyebrows regarded her questioner. She later told of seeing Hauptmann spying on John F. Condon.

"This witness is being put on out of turn to accommodate her," Attorney General Wilentz explained to Judge Trenchard.

Miss Alexander said she resided in the Bronx, New York City, with her mother.

"Do you know Dr. Condon?" Wilentz asked her.

"I do," she answered.

Q.—In March, 1932, did you see him? A.—I did.

Q.—Was it after it was known that he was involved in the Lindbergh ransom negotiations? A.—Yes.

Q.—But before the ransom was paid? A.—Yes.

Q.—You don't know the exact date? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Where was Dr. Condon? A.—He was just outside the telegraph office in the waiting room of the Fordham station of the New York Central railroad in the Bronx.

Sees Condon Is Watched.

The direct examination of Miss Alexander by Attorney General Wilentz continued.

Q.—What time was it? A.—About 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Q.—Who else did you see? A.—I saw a man looking at Dr. Condon.

Q.—How far were you from the man? A.—About the distance you are from me.

Q.—About 10 or 15 feet? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was there anybody else around? A.—I didn't notice.

Q.—What were you doing there? A.—I was going to telephone to my mother that I wouldn't be home for dinner.

Q.—What was Dr. Condon doing? A.—He was talking to the man at the telegraph table.

Q.—What was the other man doing?

A.—Watching him.

Attorney Reilly objected to the answer as being a conclusion of the witness. Judge Trenchard said, "Let the answer stand."

Miss Alexander described the position of the telephone booths and the ticket booth in the station. Dr. Condon's back was toward the man who was watching him, she said. Condon's profile was towards her.

"What attracted your attention to the man," Wilentz asked, getting the reply, "He was very obviously watching Dr. Condon."

Again Attorney Reilly protested and moved to strike out Miss Alexander's answer, but he was overruled by Judge Trenchard. The direct examination of Miss Alexander continued.

Q.—Do you know to whom you refer? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you see him again? A.—Yes, I did. Two or three evenings later. He was walking along Fordham road, near Webster avenue, in the Bronx.

Miss Alexander turned to look at Hauptmann. Many times Hauptmann has endured that look during this trial as witnesss prepared to identify him. This time he managed a slight smile.

Woman Identifies Hauptmann.

"I say that man was Bruno Richard Hauptmann," Miss Alexander replied coolly.

"Did you see him when he was arraigned after his arrest in the Bronx?" Attorney General Wilentz asked her. She said, "I did."

"To whom did you report this?" she was asked, answering: "First to my mother, later to the foreman of the Bronx grand jury."

"Did you come to Flemington to see the defendant?" Wilentz asked her, and she said, "Yes."

"When did you first mention this?" Miss Alexander was asked, replying, "On that very night. I mentioned it to my mother on the telephone."

"You didn't know who the man was?" she was asked, answering, "No. I thought he may have been—

Defense Blocks Her Answer.

A defense objection was interposed. That question was withdrawn.

Defense Attorney Reilly's attitude was belligerent as he took up the cross-examination. His portly frame shook with horror as he discovered that the witness modeled lingerie. He shook his head at the four women in the jury box. But they displayed no visible alarm.

The cross-examination of Miss Alexander by Attorney Reilly followed.

Q.—With whom do you live? A.—My mother.

Q.—What is your occupation? A.—Modeling clothing.

Q.—How long have you been employed with your present firm? A.—Three years.

Q.—What firm were you with in March, 1932? A.—The same firm.

Q.—What time did you finish work that day? A.—At 5:30 p. m.

Q.—What do you model? A.—Tea gowns, negligees, pajamas.

Q.—You don't model or sell suits or street dresses? A.—No.

Asked About Route Home.

A series of questions followed about the manner in which the witness went home each evening. Miss Alexander explained during this phase of the cross-examination that she was attending sessions at the Theodore Roosevelt school at the time of the Dr. Condon incident. The cross-examination of Miss Alexander by attorney continued.

Q.—Why didn't you go home that evening? A.—I had an appointment.

Q.—Where? A.—At a Chinese restaurant.

Q.—[Loudly.] With whom?

The state objected, saying the defense attorney would be supplied with the name of the escort, if he wished. Miss Alexander interrupted to say that she had no escort in the restaurant. Attorney Reilly boomed: "So the state is going to supply me with the name of some one who doesn't exist?"

There followed many questions about the appearance of the railroad station where Miss Alexander had said she saw Hauptmann watching Dr. Condon.

Finally the state objected. Judge Trenchard inquired:

"What is the purpose of this line of questioning, Mr. Reilly?"

"I want to prove," shouted the lawyer, "that she was never in that station and doesn't know what it looks like."

"She has testified several times that she was there," the judge remarked mildly.

"That doesn't prove it," Reilly retorted, and was allowed to continue.

Miss Alexander pouted a little at Reilly's statement and she was angry as the examination continued.

Q.—Don't you know that the station closes at 5 o'clock? A.—I have never known it to close at 5 o'clock. I have always been in there.

Q.—Did you ever try to buy a ticket in the station, going north on the New York Central? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—After 6 o'clock? A.—No.

Q.—Now it is nothing more than a local station on the New York Central for local trains? A.—That is correct.

Q.—From 1924 down to 1932 you tell us you had never seen Dr. Condon once, is that right? A.—That is right.

The cross-examination by Reilly took another line of attack.

Q.—How long have you known Dr. Condon? A.—Since 1923.

Q.—Where did you meet him. A.—In a theater. The manager introduced us.

Explains Meeting Condon.

Q.—Why did the manager of a theater introduce you to Dr. Condon? A.—I was working there as a cashier and going to high school at the same time. The manager knew Dr. Condon had some connection with the board of education and wanted to know if it was all right for me to work there.

Q.—When did you next see Dr. Condon? A.—The night at the station.

Q.—From 1924 to 1932, you never saw him once? A.—That's right.

Miss Alexander was taken again over the scene she had described, but Attorney Reilly did not ask her about her identification of Hauptmann as the man watching Condon.

On redirect examination by Attorney General Wilentz, Miss Alexander said she had dreaded the publicity in the case and had only agreed to testify at the "urging of the state."

"Thank you very much," the attorney general concluded. Miss Alexander stepped down from the stand. She remained in the courtroom, sitting beside her mother.

Another Names Hauptmann.

Stein, the second handwriting expert, testified briefly before the adjournment for the noon recess. In stating his qualifications he remarked that he had testified in the Jennings will case in Chicago. His qualifications as an expert were accepted without dispute from the defense.

Stein was shown the ransom notes and the specimens of Haputmann's handwriting and he declared both had been written by the same man.

"And that man is?"

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

ISADOR FISCH'S KIN ARRIVE TODAY FOR STORY ABOUT RANSOM

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Four persons who kept a death watch over Isidor Fisch, whom Bruno Richard Hauptmann said gave him $14,800 of the Lindbergh ransom money, will arrive under guard on the liner Ile de France from Germany tomorrow. They are the late Isidor Fisch's brother, his sister, the young woman nurse who attended him in a hospital at Leipzig, Germany, and his best friend, whose name is not known except to officials. They will be taken aboard a revenue cutter at quarantine and rushed to New Jersey for questioning by Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

One of these witnesses may be placed on the stand late this week. That would be done to bolster the state's charge that Hauptmann's mysterious assets from April 20, 1932, until his arrest totaled $49,960 despite the fact that not one cent of this was earned income or profit from stock market speculations.

"We are prepared," said Prosecutor Hauck of Hunterdon county, "to show that Fisch had nothing to do with the writing of the ransom letters and that the story of his having given Hauptmann the $14,800 is a fantastic falsehood."

Additional samples of Fisch's handwriting are being brought over by Detective Arthur Johnson of the New York police department.

The state's chief counsel, David T. Wilentz, announced today he is undecided about calling Larry Snofsky, a New York garage owner, who said Hauptmann brought his green automobile to his establishment shortly after the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped and had its fenders painted black.

FATHER SAYS HE TOLD MISS ALEXANDER NOT TO AIR BRUNO STORY

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Miss Hildegard Alexander, who testified today she saw Dr. Condon being followed by Hauptmann, wanted to reveal her information to the police almost immediately after Hauptmann's arrest, her father said today. Her father is Paulus Alexander, a writer for German newspapers here and abroad.

"But I forbade her to do so," Mr. Alexander explained. "I told her it was best to keep out of all this kidnaping business."

Miss Alexander resides at 730 East 236th street and models for a manufacturer of negligees and pajamas. Miss Alexander testified that she had told her mother and the foreman of the Bronx grand jury.

Mrs. Odgen Mills at Trial; Chief Defense Lawyer Is Ill

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Among the spectators at the Hauptmann trial today was Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the former secretary of the treasury. She came to Flemington with a party of friends in her Rolls-Royce. A garage man explained "even the big shots can't take the place of my regular customers" when told he had refused a place for Mrs. Mills to leave her car. Mrs. Mills and her party were reminded of the town's economic laws when they tried to eat a luncheon of their own at the hotel. First a waitress and then one of the owners said that simply was not done.

Mrs. Richard Whitney, wife of the president of the New York Stock exchange, was another visitor.

Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, went to bed immediately following court adjournment this afternoon. He has tonsilitis. The case was described later as "not at all serious."

Flemington has a local ordinance which forbids the sale of liquor on Sundays.

A dispatch from Trenton said two defense handwriting experts have tentatively withdrawn after their week-end comparison examination of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's handwriting with that of the Lindbergh ransom notes. It was reported Samuel C. Malone and Arthur P. Meyers decided they could not conscientiously swear that they believed Hauptmann did not write the ransom notes. The defense said the trouble was over fees.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz explained that a bank clerk probably wrote the "J. J. Faulkner" deposit slip made out at the federal reserve bank in New York the day this nation went off the gold standard. That slip covered the exchange of $2,980 in ransom gold currency for ordinary bank notes. Wilentz did not say whether the state would produce that clerk as a witness.

New York dispatches said Dr. John F. Condon dedicated his work in the Lindbergh case today to "the safety of every child in the world," in a letter to the Bronx Home News.

Among the experts who want to view Hauptmann are numerologists, psychologists, palm readers, students of astrology, phrenologists, and students of physiognomy.

After a thorough inquiry into the story of Abraham Samuelsohn, Bronx cabinet maker, who said he made the ladder allegedly used by Hauptmann in entering the Lindbergh nursery, it was said the prosecution has decided not to call him as a witness.

BARRY AND 3 GET CHANGE OF VENUE IN SWINDLE PLOT

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Salecki and B. Luckowski, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Leo Buckbee, robbery, 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Donald Walker and Russell McGinnis, burglary, 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Albert Zuvis, assault to commit robbery, 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Leroy Ballinger and Charles Bailey, larceny, 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Donald S. McKinlay.

Trial of Dave Barry, boxing referee, and three others on charges of having embezzled $55,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank was delayed again yesterday when Barry's attorney demanded a change of venue from the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller. The case then was sent back for reassignment to Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan, who will set the trial date this morning.

Accused with Barry are Joseph Baiata, said to be the brains of the plot; Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, and Otto Van Derck, 23 years old, a former teller at the bank, who confessed the defalcation because he was going to be married and wanted to clear his name.

Jack Johnson, Negro, who once held the world's heavyweight boxing title, was in court yesterday as a state's witness. Part of the bank's money was said to have been used by Barry in promoting an enterprise at A Century of Progress in which Johnson was employed.

Conspiracy charges against Barry, Baiata, and Karatz and three others in an alleged attempt to gain control of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., will not be tried until the present case is disposed of, according to Assistant State's Attorney C. Vernon Thompson.

SECOND OF PALOS WOLVES IS SLAIN WITH PITCHFORK

For the second time in two weeks the county was called upon yesterday to pay a $20 bounty on the scalp of a wolf killed in the southwest part of the county.

Yesterday's claimant was William Doogan, 20 years old, son of a Palos township farmer who lives at 111th street and Mannheim road. He told County Commissioners Peter M. Kelly and Daniel M. Ryan that he and John Duda, a farm hand, killed the animal with a pitchfork as it escaped from a trap they had set in the Doogan farmyard. Several days ago William Kelsey, a neighbor of the Doogans, collected $20 for a wolf he shot.

There are at least six wolves left in the pack, farmers report. They make their home in the forest preserve which is protected against hunters, and live on farmers' live stock. A farmer may legally kill a wolf only when it leaves the preserve.

The commissioners deferred payment of the bounty and also the question of authorizing a community wolf hunt until the next county board meeting.

HUSBAND, BEHIND ON SUPPORT, GOES TO ALIMONY ROW

Last June Mrs. Rose Murphy, who lives at 6912 Michigan avenue, sued her husband, Thomas, for divorce and he was ordered to pay temporary allmony and support money for his son, Thomas Jr., 4 years old. Two months ago Mrs. Murphy obtained an attachment, charging Murphy was $165 in arrears in his payments.

A week ago process servers found Murphy in custody of the Woodlawn avenue police on a disorderly conduct charge. They took him before Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan, who set bond at $500. Unable to pay Murphy was locked up until yesterday, when Attorney Norman Becker for Mrs. Murphy asked that the husband be compelled to pay at once or go to jail. Murphy said he could not pay, and on his wife's plea was committed to allmony row for six months. He lives at 7227 South Wabash avenue.

Jaguar, 1 Month Old, Has Big Debut in Lincoln Park

ARREST SECOND LABATT KIDNAP SUSPECT IN KY.

Seized by Local Police on U. S. Request.

Covington, Ky., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The second man arrested in connection with the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, wealthy Ontario brewer, was seized here today. The suspect, who is a former convict with a long police record, gave his name as Kingston P. Murray, 34, and said he was a salesman.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward Pflueger, the prisoner pleaded not guilty and was held in bond of $50,000. A hearing was set for Jan. 23.

Murray offered no resistance when he was taken this afternoon by local detectives who seized him on a street corner after federal authorities had asked that he be apprehended if seen.

Known by Three Names.

Though listed as a salesman, the man was disclosed to have called himself an actor in 1920. Bureau of identification records of Cincinnati said he was variously known as Kent P. Dayton, Albert Murray, and "Piccolo Pete."

He served a term after conviction for grand larceny in Columbus, O., in 1913, the records revealed; he was later accused of embezzlement but freed when a grand jury ignored the charge; he was sentenced to the Kentucky reformatory at Frankfort in 1920 after conviction on charges of receiving stolen goods, escaped in 1921 and since had been free.

Murray was arrested on a Canadian warant charging him with kidnaping the brewer.

Second Kentuckian Arrested.

The other man under arrest in the kidnaping case is David Meisner, also of Covington. He surrendered in Detroit and protested he was here when Labatt was kidnaped on Aug. 14, 1934, and knew nothing about it. He was extradited at the request of Ontario authorities and will be tried at the next Ontario Supreme assizes in London, starting Jan. 28.

A third man is still being sought.

OFFICIALS PLEDGE AID IN CAMPAIGN AGAINST 1934 AUTO LICENSES

Mayor Kelly and local police officials pledged their support last night in the campaign to force automobile drivers to purchase their 1935 state licenses immediately. Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced yesterday in Springfield that official requests for cooperation in the statewide campaign would shortly be sent to all law enforcing agencies in Illinois. City Controler Robert B. Upham said he would direct Police Commissioner Allman to have trafic tickets issued to all drivers who lack 1935 licenses after Mr. Hughes' official request arrives.

Pointing out that the law requires the new licenses on automobiles on Jan. 1 and no authentic stay of grace is allowed, Secretary Hughes said that his offices at Springfield are prepared to deliver the licenses within 48 hours after application is made by mail. Chicagoans can obtain their licenses immediately by applying in person at the state bureau at 120 South Ashland avenue.

Most automobiles still are carrying the 1934 licenses and even a few 1933 licenses have been seen on the streets.

REAL INTERVIEWS WITH REAL FOLKS as told to Marion Lang EX-LAX Reporter

PILOT SAYS "EX-LAX FLIES WITH ME ALWAYS"

PILOT WARNER eased himself into the narrow cockpit of his plane. "Thanks for the interview", said the Ex-Lax reporter. "Don't mention it", he said. "I've often given thanks for Ex-Lax. So long!" The motor snarled into action... he taxied down the field... a few minutes later he was just a black dot in the blue sky.

Before the take-off he had cheerfully answered all the reporter's questions... told her how and why he was an Ex-Lax user... one of the 44,000,000 people who buy it every year. Here's his statement:

"For quite a while I have used Ex-Lax, the chocolated laxative. I saw Ex-Lax advertised and thought I'd try it.

"I always carry the 10c box of Ex-Lax on my flying trips in my small bag, if I'm out for a trip overnight, or for a couple of days.

"My meals are very irregular, so that I find I need a laxative more often when flying. The hours of sitting in a cockpit without exercise necessitate the use of a laxative.

"As soon as I land I take two tablets of Ex-Lax, and find that I feel fit the next day. My landings are frequently made at night, so that I take Ex-Lax then.

"I prefer Ex-Lax to all laxatives because it's easy to take and I like the taste."

Good health is part of an aviator's stock in trade. You can't afford to be sluggish 5000 feet in the air. You must undergo regular physical examinations to keep your pilot's license. When it comes to choosing a laxative you're super-careful.

You will find Ex-Lax the right laxative for you for the same reasons that Pilot Warner did.

Ex-Lax is as thorough as any laxative you can take... yet, it is gentle. It won't upset you, it won't cause stomach pains, it won't leave you feeling weak afterwards. You get thorough relief from constipation... painlessly and pleasantly.

You don't have to worry about forming a habit... with Ex-Lax. You don't have to keep on increasing the dose to get results. And it's a pleasure to take... just like eating a piece of the most delicious chocolate.

That "Certain Something"

These are the cold facts about Ex-Lax. But to know how really good it is, you must go beyond these facts. Ex-Lax has a "certain something" that is born of the ideal balance of all of its qualities combined in the exclusive Ex-Lax way, and it gives you a certain satisfaction that can't be put into words. But once you have tried Ex-Lax, yourself, you will never be satisfied with less. And you will understand why 44,000,000 boxes of Ex-Lax were bought by America last year!

Ex-Lax comes in 10c and 25c boxes—at any drug store. Look for the exact spelling—E-X-L-A-X. Don't experiment with imitations!

COLD WAVE HERE... and we mean colds. Sneezing, sniffling, coughing, misery-creating colds. Guard against them this way: Get enough sleep, eat sensibly, dress warmly, keep out of drafts, keep your feet dry, and KEEP REGULAR... with Ex-Lax, the delicious chocolated laxative.

NEED FOR CHECKS ON RELIEF CITED BY GRACE ABBOTT

Finds Place for Public and Private Agencies.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Seven million children are on relief in the United States and nearly a million of them are in a "more or less permanently dependent group," Grace Abbott, professor of public welfare administration at the University of Chicago and former chief of the United States children's bureau, declared yesterday. She addressed the fifty-first annual meeting of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society in the Chicago Woman's club.

"Wherever the blame for the depression should be placed, it should not be on the shoulders of children," said Miss Abbott. "We know there is no real security for children until economic recovery arrives. Their parents must be able to look the world in the face, and independence, self-reliance, and freedom from assistance from any agency, private or public, must be returned to their homes."

Takes Issue on Agencies.

Miss Abbott took issue with some of the statements made by Chauncey McCormick, president of the society, who in a previous address declared that "the whole system of enlightened child care began with private agencies" and held that governmental agencies could not replace them.

"The public has always carried the larger share of the burden of child care," Miss Abbott said. "It is your obligation to be intelligently and seriously interested in the proper administration of public agencies. That is one reason for the need for private agencies—to set certain standards by which to judge the public agencies.

"It is necessary for private agencies to keep watch over the public administration of welfare, and it also is necessary for the public agencies to watch the private ones. Selfish motives are not confined to politicians. There are always some private agencies which utilize the appeal of sympathy to promote poor work."

Cites Society's Progress.

Mr. McCormick pointed out that the society, which cared for 3,917 children during 1934, of whom 1,845 were completely housed, fed, and clothed, operates on a baianced budget. The society's income for 1934 totaled $345,136, as compared to an income of $135,581 for 1920. He reviewed the strides the society had made since John Alden Carpenter was president 13 years ago.

Mr. McCormick was reëlected president, and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter was reëlected president of the Chicago woman's board of the society, which raised $450,000 for the society in the last 13 years.

C. B. Goodspeed, Herman D. Smith, Adlai Stevenson, and Miss Eunice Smith of Alton were elected vice presidents; Louis B. Sudler, secretary, and E. C. Lingle, treasurer.

ESTATE LOSES $103,000 SUIT FOR GERMAN BONDS

Heirs to the estate of the late Robert J. Thompson, Chicago business man, who was American consul at Aix la Chapelle, Germany, at the outbreak of the world war, lost yesterday their long legal battle to force the alien property custodian at Washington to pay them $103,000 for bonds of the Imperial German government purchased by Thompson.

The federal District court and the Circuit Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia denied the claim and the United States Supreme court yesterday refused a petition for a writ of certiorari to review the case. After Thompson's death in 1931 the litigation, which was begun more than ten years ago, was carried on by Attorney Whitman Taylor, representing the Northern Trust company, administrator of the Thompson estate.

The German government made the bonds valueless after the war by inflating German currency and suit was brought against the alien property custodian to require him to reimburse Thompson for a large block of Reichsbank stock seized in the United States in 1917. The courts held that the Reichsbank was a private corporation and was not responsible for the government indebtedness.

Thompson, who was 66 years old, was head of the Thompson Automatic Recording Safe company, 35 Wacker drive. The bulk of his estate, valued at $55,000 exclusive of the German bonds, was left to his widow, Mrs. Madeleine Muriel Thompson. The residue was shared by three children and Thompson's former wife, Martha.

AMELIA EARHART WILL STAY IN LOS ANGELES; FLYING WEATHER BAD

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Bad weather today caused Miss Amelia Earhart, blonde heroine of a solo flight from Honolulu to Oakland on Saturday, to abandon her plans to fly on to Washington, D. C. She said she intended to remain here and visit her mother for a time.

"There is really no point in making the flight now," she commented at the Union air terminal as she inspected her reserviced trans-Pacific monoplane, which had been tuned up for the continuation of her journey east.

"When I took off from Honolulu I had intended flying directly to Washington with one stop being made either at Oakland or Salt Lake City. In this manner I intended to demonstrate how easy and little fatiguing such a trip would be by air, and to link the Hawaiian capital with this nation's capital.

"However, because of the bad weather on the transcontinental route, I did not feel it was advisable to try the flight, so I came to Los Angeles and intend to visit my mother."

MAC VEAGH FILES REPLY TO SUIT OF WOMAN ARTIST

Terms Annuity Plan a "Gift," Not Contract.

Eames MacVeagh, 60 years old, son of the late Franklin MacVeagh, pioneer grocer and secretary of the treasury under President Taft, filed an answer yesterday in the Municipal court to the suit for $2,500 brought against him by Miss Louise Hagen, New York artist.

The answer, in the form of an affidavit of merit, was drawn by MacVeagh's attorney, State Senator James J. Barbour, and alleges that money promised to Miss Hagen by MacVeagh in a contract was in the nature of a gift and no legal consideration was involved on her part. For these reasons, the affidavit said, the contract, dated Jan. 18, 1930, is void and cannot be enforced in court.

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green will set a trial date for the case on Jan. 17.

According to the contract, MacVeagh agreed to pay Miss Hagen $300 a month for two years and $250 a month thereafter for life to assist her "in pursuing the calling of an artist," and with the condition that it settled all claims between them and "neither would molest or annoy the other or expose either to publicity or criticism."

Miss Hagen's suit charges that the payments have not been made for ten months since March, 1934. Because of the publicity attendant on the filing of the suit, Miss Hagen has violated the contract the affidavit asserts.

The affidavit further asserts that at the time the contract was made MacVeagh was wealthy, but his assets have dwindled to the point where he is now insolvent. MacVeagh lives at 900 North Michigan avenue.

CHICAGO OPTICAL CONCERN GIVEN LABOR WARNING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The International Optical company, Chicago, was held by the National Labor Relations board to have violated section 7A of the NRA.

The board's finding was based on the fact that the company, which operates the Dr. Ritholz Optical stores in Chicago, had fired B. R. Mason, president of the Employed Optometrists' union. Mason's discharge, the board held, was an act aimed at balking the organization of the workers and therefore in violation of section 7A.

Unless the company reinstates Mason within ten days with full back pay from Oct. 17, the board threatened to turn the case over to "the appropriate government agencies" for action.

G O P CANDIDATES WILL PADDLE OWN MAYORAL CANOES

Committeemen Refuse to Make Indorsement.

The Republican ward committeemen decided yesterday not to indorse any primary candidate for mayor. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] presided at the meeting, which was held in the Bismarck hotel. The committeemen, setting as the city central committee, adopted a resolution asking all Republican primary candidates to refrain from personal or political attacks on their primary opponents and to conduct their campaigns in such a manner that after one is nominated the others can join in his support.

The names of several were mentioned for indorsement as candidates for city clerk and city treasurer, but the same policy was adopted for those offices. The party will not participate, as a city-wide organization, in the aldermanic contests in the various wards, Ald. Nelson said, as aldermanic races are on a nonpartisan basis.

Endorsement Asked by Wetten.

Attorney Emil C. Wetten was the only candidate to seek the indorsement of the central committee. His primary petition and that of Mrs. John Wesley Gray are now on file, that of Mrs. Gray being filed yesterday, and it was expected that several others would enter the Republican primary before the filing deadline at midnight Thursday.

The Dencen group of the Republican party has urged George E. Q. Johnson, former United States attorney, to become a candidate, and it was reported he was asked yesterday to reconsider his refusal to make the race. It is said that he would prefer to run for the United States senate next year.

Mortimer B. Flynn, coal dealer, was regarded as a possible last minute entry. Mr. Flynn has been active in Republican politics for two decades and is said to have considerable support among party leaders.

Coal Dealer Is Undecided.

Those urging Flynn to run insisted that he would be a harmony candidate who would have a chance of defeating Mayor Kelly. The coal dealer said he hadn't yet decided, but if he yielded to the insistence of some of the party leaders he would wage a vigorous campaign against the Democratic nominee with the expectation of being elected.

Petitions were in circulation for Sol G. Goldberg, millionaire "hairpin king," who said he would submit his name to party voters. Others still classed as possible entrants in the Republican primary contest are Arthur F. Albert, Thomas O. Wallace, and Noble B. Judah.

George J. McKerr, a director of the Chicago Board of Trade, filed a petition yesterday as a Republican candidate for city treasurer. Another seeking that nomination is S. J. Simon, former arbitrator of the Illinois industrial commission.

WIDOW SWINDLED OF $272,350 FILES INTERROGATORY

More than 100 questions are contained in a special interrogatory filed yesterday by attorneys for Mrs. Grace M. Forschner, wealthy Palos township widow, in her suit to recover $272,350 of which she alleges she was defrauded.

The questionnaire, brought under the civil practice act, was directed against all of the defendants, but principally against J. Henry Jonassen, owner of the Wetzel Iron works, 3345 Grand avenue. The co-defendants are John Donald [Don Champagne] Walker, 615 North Lockwood avenue, and Mrs. Louise M. Ranger, 5637 Kimbark avenue. Largely through the widow's efforts, Walker was paroled to Jonassen in May, 1933, from the Joliet penitentiary. Mrs. Ranger was the "contact," Mrs. Forschner alleges.

In the interrogatory Mrs. Forschner asks that Jonassen explain why he sponsored Walker's parole and how he obtained money to finance a racing stable in Kentucky. Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy gave the defendants ten days to answer the questions.

TAX COLLECTORS CONTINUE USING RECEIVER SPUR

Judge to Permit No Court Delays.

Invocation of the Kerner-Skarda tax receivership law against delinquent income-bearing properties will continue unabated in 1935, it was announced yesterday.

Circuit Judge Denis J. Normoyle announced that he would permit no delay in such suits, but would impose receiverships on tax delinquent properties when petitions are filed.

"Attorneys for the defendants," he said, "can find no relief in this court. The figures of the tax collecting bodies make a prima facie case against the defendants. It seems to the court that in many cases the property managers await the filing of receivership suits before paying up the taxes, as evidenced by the alacrity with which the back taxes are forthcoming when suits are filed."

25 Receivership Cases Daily.

Since Jan. 1, Judge Normoyle said, there is a daily average of 25 cases in which the county treasurer is appointed receiver of buildings, and about the same number of cases are dismissed daily by settlement.

Robert J. Murphy of the treasurer's office, assigned to Judge Normoyle's court, said he is about ready to ask receiverships for properties owing 1932 taxes.

"The Kerner-Skarda law," Murphy said, "has speeded collection of back taxes. Before the law was employed last June our collections averaged $100,000 a week. Thanks to the new law, they are now between $700,000 and $800,000 a week. Last week the collections totaled $853,000. I have filed about 8,000 receivership suits for the treasurer since June, and some 7,000 of these have been disposed of."

No Extension of Penalty Date.

County Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer reiterated yesterday that there will be no further extension of the 1933 tax penalty date. Today is the last day for payment of 1933 taxes without the penalty of one per cent a month, he said. Taxes now due include all 1933 personal property levies and the first instalment of realty taxes.

While clerks in the treasurer's office were kept busy yesterday by the "eleventh hour" taxpayers, there was no such overflow as resulted last month, before the 15 day extension of the penalty date was announced.

Collections of 1933 realty and personalty taxes for the day totaled $1,716,082. In addition, $190,058 in delinquent real estate and personal property taxes was paid.

RELIEF CLIENT IS ACCUSED OF REFUSING JOB

An unemployed tailor, cited for contempt of court for refusal to pay a $65 judgment, was accused yesterday of turning down a $20 a week job because he was "on the relief and didn't have to work." The tailor is Walenty Wrzesinski, 1042 North Damen avenue, a naturalized citizen, and the charge was made by Attorney Saul Epton, 127 North Dearborn street, in the court of Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green who ordered a thorough investigation. Epton obtained the judgment as counsel for William Shemerdiak, 701 West 120th street, a painter, for work done on Wrzesinski's house two years ago. The contempt citation was issued and Wrzesinski was brought to court yesterday on a body attachment.

MAYOR LAUNCHES NEW DRIVE FOR LINK BRIDGE FUND

Sees Hope for PWA Grant to End Delays.

Mayor Kelly last night announced inauguration of a new campaign to obtain federal funds for completion of the outer drive link bridge project under the terms of President Roosevelt's new four billion dollar public works program. The mayor will begin negotiations at once, he said.

A total of $6,878,000 is needed to construct the bridge, for which approaches already have been built and a portion of the steel work processed. The span when completed will link the important north and south side trafic arteries over the mouth of the Chicago river, and will provide a new outlet for heavy loop trafic through an extension of Randolph street east.

Ickes Hurls Monkey Wrench.

Funds for the bridge program, originally conceived as a project to be carried out by the old south and Lincoln park districts, once were allocated by the federal Public Works administration. This fund, however, later was withdrawn by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who declared that the collateral offered by the Lincoln park board was not acceptable to the government. Later Ickes expressed the view that Chicago might still qualify for the bridge grant when new funds were available.

"The new public works order of President Roosevelt is to encourage municipal building, through use of federal credit, and I feel confident that the government will now extend funds necessary for the completion of the outer drive bridge," Mayor Kelly said last night.

"I believe that Chicago can offer adequate collateral. South park bonds, issued to finance two-thirds of the structure, were aproved by the government. There is a good possibility that the government can still accept these south parks bonds and will provide the additional money needed in the form of a grant, as has been done for other municipalities.

Seeks to Begin Work at Once.

"There is the further possibility that the government will accept the south park bonds and that the new Chicago Park district can issue bonds to replace those of Lincoln park. This can be done without exceeding the district's bonding power.

"The government has announced that public building should replace outright relief, and it appears that congress will provide the necessary funds. Certainly the outer drive bridge is vital to Chicago, and, granted the loan, we can begin at once work that will take hundreds of men off the relief rolls."

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE that the amount of merchandise and cash taken from the public by thieves or holdup men during 1934 was $1,909,441 more than in 1933. While the figures for 1934 of $3,499,901 property and $1,476,347 cash were correct, the totals for the previous year should have been $3,582,220 and $2,193,992 respectively, making a decrease in 1934 of $799,964. Attention to the error was called by Mayor Kelly, who pointed out that this is the third consecutive year a reduction has been achieved.

HEARING TODAY ON CANAL BOARD DIVERSION CASE

The four lake states which brought litigation to force the sanitary district to provide full treatment of sewage in the Chicago area at a cost of more than $200,000,000 to reduce the flow from Lake Michigan, today will appear at a war department hearing to oppose the district's efforts to secure funds for carrying out that program through the sale of its channels to the federal government for $90,000,000.

Legal representatives of Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin appeared unexpectedly when the hearing was first opened Dec. 19, and forced a continuance to today.

The delay may prevent the war department from placing its recommendations on the sale of the canal before the present congress, according to Lieut. Col. Donald H. Connelly, army district engineer, who is in charge of the hearing.

The hearing is called for 10 a. m. in the postoffice building.

Begin Picking Jury to Try Brothers for Tax Evasion

Selection of a jury to try Maurice and Robert O'Meara, brothers, on a charge of having defrauded the state of $90,000 by evasion of gasoline tax payments, started yesterday before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court. They were indicted in 1930 with another brother, C. Smythe O'Meara, who is a fugitive. The brothers owned the Morris Petroleum company.

JAPAN SEES WAR WITH REDS THIS YEAR OR NEXT

Alarmed Over 250,000 Men on Soviet Border.

BULLETIN.

HARBIN, Manchukuo, Jan. 15.—(Tuesday.)—(AP)—Japanese military reports today said two soviet airplanes flew over Hsiaosuifen, 16 miles west of Pogranichnaya, Siberia, Monday afternoon, apparently reconnoitering. Earlier, the dispatches said, a pair of soviet planes made a similar flight over Mishan. It was understood Japanese officers viewed the incidents seriously and would probably protest to Moscow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 14.—The military leaders of this country are convinced that soviet Russia, swiftly mobilizing a vast force of men in Siberia and sending war materials to the frontier on the double tracked trans-Siberian railway, means to fight Japan this year or in 1936. Already, according to Japanese estimates, the Russians have 250,000 men on the frontier.

"Why has Russia collected this vast army of soldiers on the soviet-Manchukuo border?" asks Lieut. Gen. Toshizo Okudaira, director of the Meirinkai, an influential patriotic body. "Is it because they are afraid of Japan?" he further asks.

Japan's Isolation.

Answering his own questions, he maintains that Russia is not afraid of Japan and will take the offensive.

"Japan's relations with the United States, Great Britain, and Holland over disarmament and trade questions have placed her in the position of a country isolated and persecuted. This country, thus, is in no position to wage war on soviet Russia and has no intention of doing so." Gen. Okudaira says.

"Russia," he continues, "has a wonderful spy network and certainly knows what the situation in Japan is and that Japanese troops in Manchukuo are retained there to keep peace within that territory and not to fight Russia."

The general thus places the following interpretation on the gigantic military preparations of soviet Russia. By pushing through their five year plan, he says, the Russians are now able to promote their arms manufacturing industry at maximum speed. This, in turn, will enable them soon to wage war on an extensive scale. Taking advantage of the present predicament of Japan, they will strike at this country. In the confusion that follows this conflict, they intend to spread the sinister hand of bolshevism throughout the world.

Goal Is Whole World.

Gen. Okudaira further sees in the vast Red program of military preparation something more than an intention of fighting one country, that is Japan, only. No nation would put such emphasis on armaments and make such terrific sacrifices for this purpose, he feels. It is, he concludes, because soviet Russia has the great aim of bolshevizing the world.

In the opinion of Lieut. Gen. Toyoki Takata, retired, war with Russia is most likely in 1935 or 1936. He feels that in this eventuality the United States and Great Britain will remain neutral. They will, however, sell arms to both sides and are likely, moreover, to spread their influence into territories which are now regarded the spheres of influence of Russia or Japan, he says.

According to Eitaro Seo, an expert on soviet military affairs, the soviet far eastern army in the maritime provinces and in Hellunkiang province possesses about 800 war planes. Many of these are powered with four motors and are capable of carrying 12 one ton bombs.

The Russians, moreover, says Seo, do not utilize hangars and have no large hangars in the far east, thus making it difficult to estimate their true strength. They keep their machines in remote villages and hide the smaller craft in barns or under waterproof covers.

Most Japanese believe that in a soviet-Japanese clash the greatest danger is from the air. Discussing this question, Lieut. Gen. Heitaro Uehara, a member of parliament and an expert on air warfare, warns that the Russians are fully capable of staging such an attack.

"There are means by which we can resist their attacks," he maintains. "As a case in point we can send our planes to their headquarters and attack them or meet them on their way here. We have carried out several extensive aid defense maneuvers and as a passive step may defend the city by this means. I do not attach much importance on anti-aircraft guns. Still it is possible we must put these defensive measures into play if war breaks out, for even if we attack the enemy and shoot down some of their planes en route to Japan we must still be prepared to have some reach Japan," he says.

Gen. Uehara adds that this danger is not very great at present because of the distance between Vladivostok and Tokio, which is 870 miles. Supposing the Russians go off their course once or twice, it would be necessary for them to possess planes with a cruising radius of at least 1,863 miles if they are effectively to attack Tokio.

New Orleans Puts Finances Under U.S. Court to Balk Long

New Orleans, La., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long's allegedly vengeful attempt to financially break the city of New Orleans was given a setback today when Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley and the commission council, his bitter political foes, placed the city's fiscal affairs under jurisdiction of the federal court.

However, this action was shortly followed with the disclosure that the Kingfish's state court proceedings to tie up the city's funds, though halted by a federal court restraining order, already had scored to some extent. Mayor Walmsley announced that because of the legal controversy, the city would be unable to meet its semi-monthly pay roll tomorrow.

Though the federal court action was taken with the consent of New Orleans banks, who are creditors of the city for more than 51 per cent of its total debt, city officials said they were unable to borrow money from the banks to meet the pay roll.

May Pay in Part.

The mayor said some other arrangement may be worked out to pay part of the salaries to the thousands of employés, some of whom have not been paid their full salaries since Dec. 23.

Federal Judge Wayne G. Borah immediately signed an order in the case upon appearance of state counsel before him. The order cited Attorney General Gaston L. Porterie to appear in federal court to show cause why he should not be enjoined from proceeding further with a concursus suit now pending in the Civil District court. That action seeks to restrain the city from disbursing funds other than for specified purposes.

Action Is Voluntary.

Attorneys for the city of New Orleans explained that placing the city's financial affairs in the hands of the federal court is a voluntary proceeding on the part of the city for readjustment of its finances. They said it does not affect its bonded indebtedness in any way.

About the same time these events were taking place, a subcommittee of the Square Deal Association of Louisiana took a slap at the obstreperous senator at Baton Rouge.

The committee presented a letter at the office of Long's henchman, Gov. O. K. Allen, which stated that upon the chief executive rested the responsibility for what might happen if he did not take measures to repeal "obnoxious laws" passed for the Long dictatorship. The letter said it is "within your power to prevent bloodshed."

Deadline Wednesday.

The governor has been given until midnight Wednesday by the "Square Dealers" to call a special session for repeal of "all dictatorial measures" under an ultimatum sent to him by the association on Jan. 5.

Today's communication disavowed any threat, "express or implied," but stated that the situation is now so "tense, wrought up and determined" that the association disclaimed all responsibility for what might happen.

SOVIET STATE FARM PRODUCES 200 TONS OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

ASKABAD, Turkmenistan, U. S. S. R., Jan. 14.—National rubber is being produced for the first time in quantity in Turkmenistan [near the Caspian sea]. Two hundred tons have been shipped from the Kara Kalinsky state rubber farm.

This rubber is produced from guaioli, which grows wild in Mexico and which is extensively cultivated for rubber in California. The soviet union, which is making synthetic rubber on a large scale, also has been cultivating rubber bearing plants for several years.

Guaioli plants are found growing wild in Turkmenistan. The first plantation was started in 1932 and is now effectively producing.

U. S. INCREASES DECEMBER PRICE OF "CREAM" MILK

Ten cents a hundred pounds was added yesterday to the price of "class 2 percentage base milk" delivered to Chicago distributors by farmers during December. The increase was announced after a conference between representatives of the federal milk market administration's Chicago office and of the Pure Milk association, bargaining agency for 18,000 dairy farmers.

On Saturday the association rejected the federal government's announced December price of $1.09 a hundred pounds [2.34 cents a quart] for this class of milk which is used in supplying cream to consumers. After yesterday's meeting Frank Baker, federal milk market administrator for the Chicago area, announced that the price of $1.09 a hundred pounds had been raised to $1.19 [2.56 cents a quart]. Mr. Baker said that he was able to make the change because during the last few days dealers had been generous in making payments to the federal milk marketing pool.

2 SOVIET SAILORS GET DEATH FOR FIRE ON BARGE

GUFA, Bashkir Republic, U. S. S. R., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two drunken members of a steamer crew were sentenced to death today and three other sailors were ordered imprisoned for ten years for causing the loss of 1,000,000 rubles — nominally about $500,000—to the soviet by the burning of a barge on the Delaya river.

Panin, assistant to the captain of the steamer which had a barge in tow, is one of the two who must die. He was the communist party organizer on the steamer and was also foreman of the gang charged with unloading the barge.

The barge was carrying alcohol. Panin and his gang imbibed part of the cargo and somehow the barge caught on fire.

Chilean Railway Workers Threaten Strike for Bonus

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 14.—(AP)—State railway workers tonight threatened to call a general strike, effective at midnight, unless granted a bonus such as recently was given other federal employés, who were conceded a 25 per cent increase for 1935.

NEW DISCOVERIES SEEN AS AIDS IN FIGHT ON CANCER

Chemist Describes Rays of Protactinium.

Dr. Aristid von Grosse, youthful professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago, who recently won international recognition through his discovery of "element 91," yesterday told five hundred physicians and research workers that new discoveries in physics and chemistry hold "enormous possibilities" as aids in the fight against cancer. His address was the principal talk at the annual tumor clinic held in the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital.

Prof. von Grosse described the new element, which is called protactinium, as a substance from which alpha, beta, and gamma rays are given off. The rays of protactinium are twenty times less active than those of radium, he said, but are more penetrating, a fact of great importance in connection with the possibility that the element might, in future, be obtained in sufficient quantity to allow its use in medical research.

Longer Lived Than Radium.

With the caution typical of scientists, Dr. von Grosse pointed out that, in respect to protactinium, no biological experiments have yet been made with it, that the amount of the element thus far isolated—two-tenths of a gram—is insufficient to permit of other than purely scientific experiments. These experiments, however, have shown that the life of an atom of the element is far greater than that of an atom of radium; in other words, a gram of protactinium will remain powerfully active much longer than an equal amount of radium.

The professor illustrated his remarks by holding a tube containing protactinium near a powerful laboratory apparatus through which the rays emanating from the substance were transmitted and became visible as flashes in a thyratron tube, similar to an ordinary radio tube in appearance.

In the second phase of his talk an explanation of new discoveries through experiments in producing artificial radioactivity, Dr. von Grosse was less hesitant in predicting that these discoveries hold tremendous possibilities for medical men engaged in the fight on cancer.

Shows Artificial Radioactivity.

To demonstrate the method of producing artificial radioactivity the professor placed a silver cup in a glass vessel containing water. A tube containing radium was then held over the cup of water for a few minutes. That the silver cup had thus become radioactivised was shown with the same apparatus used to demonstrate protactinium. The flashes in the thyrotron tube continued for several minutes, decreasing gradually. It is now possible for scientists to produce artificial radioactivity with such common substances as iodine, bromine, sodium, and several others, he said.

The importance to medicine, particularly the field of cancer treatment, of artificial radioactivity, he said, is that the action of an atom of artificial radioactivity, unlike the radium atom, is not dangerous to the subject. The energy released does not continue and there is no residue. The dangers attendant upon the use of the powerful rays are well known.

Sticks Like Chewing Gum.

In this connection the professor referred again to protactinium. It has the advantage over radium of "sticking to its subject like chewing gum," he said.

Summing up, Prof. von Grosse said that "if it becomes possible to produce artificial radioactivity in large quantities there may be in the future some very benevolent effects for mankind as a whole."

CALF WEIGHS 127 POUNDS.

W. J. Heath, Missouri rancher, claims to own the heaviest calf born. It weighed 127 pounds at birth. It was the second offspring of a Holstein cow now weighing 1,100 pounds. The average weight of baby Holstein calves at birth is about seventy-five pounds.

QUIT, AVERS IERC LAWYER; OUSTED, SAYS REYNOLDS

Is Denied Stenographer for Work in Hotel.

Attorney Harry Muskat resigned either before or after he was fired by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Gossip at the commission's headquarters yesterday revolved about whether it was before or after.

In either event, the unwillingness of Muskat's superiors to send a stenographer to his hotel evidently constituted a major factor in his severance from his job. The commission had employed him to prepare cases on relief frauds. To give Muskat standing in the courts he bore the title of assistant attorney general.

The chief tangible evidence on his discontinuance in this position is found in letters he exchanged with Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the IERC.

Tells of Stenographer Incident.

One letter from Reynolds to Muskat informed him his position was being eliminated for reasons of economy, effective on Feb. 1. Another, from Muskat to Reynolds, concluded with the resignation and related the incident of the stenographer. Both letters, however, were dated Jan. 11.

Muskat wrote that he had been ill Jan. 7 and 8—days when he was classed as "A. W. O. L." at relief headquarters. The next afternoon he felt that he could work "for about an hour," he wrote, so:

"The hotel at which I live affording me the temporary use of its office, I called my stenographer at 2 p. m. She stated she would come right over. I waited for two hours. Between 4 and 4:30 I called the investigation department [where he was employed] and a number of times was given sundry reasons why I could not speak to her."

Resents Reynolds' Ruling.

The assistant attorney general said he received a memorandum stating that Mr. Reynolds had ruled that none of the stenographers should be "allowed to go to the homes of any of the members of this staf for the purpose of taking dictation."

"The boldness of your ruling," Muskat wrote to Reynolds, "enacted just at a moment when it tended to interfere seriously with affairs of the commission, surprises me. Only one inference can be drawn therefrom, and that is that it was intended as another stumbling block in the path of the prosecution of the Christian county relief fraud cases.

"I therefore find it necessary to notify you that I withdraw my services in behalf of the commission, to take effect immediately."

Just to Please Girls.

In a written reply to this missive, Reynolds said yesterday:

"I took this matter up with the director of the investigation department, finding that there was some reluctance on the part of stenographers in that department to respond to requests of this nature made by you.

"Under these circumstances I readily agreed that stenographers should not be required to comply with such requests. This is to assure you that such action was in no way intended to block your work."

Mr. Reynolds further said that the work of preparing copies of indictments against three merchants and a relief clerk in Christian county could be trusted in the hands of the state's attorney there.

Of Muskat's charge of "blocking" the prosecution, and of further criticism in a letter the former employé wrote to Attorney General Kerner, Mr. Reynolds said the situation might supply the answers.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Building Up Sheep

January 14, 1935.

TWO new pure bred Oxford ewes have just arrived at the Tribune auxiliary farm near Wheaton, Ill. They came from the Marellbar farm near Libertyville, Ill. These two black-faced aristocrats, one 3 years old and the other 4 years old, bring the breeding flock of mature ewes at the farm to a total of 173.

Forty-nine of the choicest ewe lambs have been saved from the 1934 crop and will be crossed this fall with a pure bred Corriedale ram in the farm's breeding tests. With five rams, two Corriedales and three Southdowns, the auxiliary farm flock amounts to 227 head. A new Corriedale ram was recently brought to the farm from Malcolm Moncrieff's famous Corriedale flock at Big Horn, Wyo.

The new ram, a prize winner at the 1934 Portland, Ore., show, is from the same flock that produced Rameses, the outstanding ram that attracted so much attention among visitors soon after he arrived at the farm last summer.

Men at the farm are getting ready for the new crop of lambs which is expected to arrive in about six weeks. Northern Illinois breeders are particularly interested in the lambs that are to be produced by the fifty ewes which have been built up from range ewes crossed over a period several years with Southdowns and mated last fall with Rameses. One hundred twenty-three other ewes, crossed with Southdown rams, will produce lambs in March.

With the thermometer registering only a few degrees above zero this morning, Rameses and the other four rams were given the warmest place in the barn, because their fleeces were clipped off Saturday. Although the shearer left a quarter of an inch of wool on the rams' backs, Rameses' clip, now about 12 months old, weighed 21 pounds.

It is an established practice at the auxiliary farm to shear the rams in midwinter, many weeks ahead of the regular spring shearing time. This practice has been found worthwhile, because the rams take less space and stay in better condition during the spring months. Removing the wool aids in keeping parasites under control. After shearing at this time of the year the rams are kept indoors and are protected from the low temperatures and snowstorms.

Slayer of Niece Granted Court Delay Till Jan. 24

Carl F. Zerr, shell shocked war veteran, who on Dec. 31 stabbed and fatally wounded his niece, Miss Viola Seaberg, 21 years old, 5551 North Spaulding avenue, was taken before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court in a wheel chair yesterday and was granted a continuance of the murder charge against him until Jan. 24 in order that he can be examined by the court allenist. Zerr has been in the Bridewell hospital since he attempted suicide by cutting his throat in his cell after his arrest.

3 JAPANESE YOUNG MEN LEAP INTO CRATER OF VOLCANO MIHARA

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Jan. 15 [Tuesday].—Three Japanese young men leaped into the flaming crater of Mount Mihara on Oshima island in Saganie sea yesterday, this being the second triple suicide there since New Year's.

During the last year the volcano has acquired notoriety as a suicide place for Japanese weary of the world. Police precautions somewhat reduced the death toll last year, but a fresh epidemic of suicides began with the holidays.

Yesterday's tragedies occurred in presence of a crowd of tourists who were viewing the volcano, in which a macabre interest has been displayed since it became a fashionable place of departure from this world. While they gazed at the slowly mounting smoke, a young man in a modern suit suddenly jumped into the crater and was lost. A second man, also in foreign dress, followed his example. No sound came from the depths and spectators turned away, leaving a youth in Japanese dress alone. He threw off his common kimono and jumped naked into the crater. The newspaper Asahi reports villagers believe the god of death himself has taken up his abode in the crater and lures visitors to their doom.

CLERGY, LAYMEN WANT DOGS USED IN EXPERIMENTS

Resist Proposed Repeal of Arvey Ordinance.

Support for the Arvey ordinance making stray dogs available for medical research, and resistance to its proposed repeal by the Nelson amendment, gained momentum in two quarters yesterday.

Religious and lay representatives joined in indorsing humane animal experimentation at a meeting in the college of medicine of the University of Illinois called by the Liberal Ministers' Association of Chicago. At the same time Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], sponsor of the ordinance at issue, received 3,800 pledge cards from citizens who asked that the ordinance remain undisturbed.

Humans Held More Important.

The Rev. Edwin H. Wilson was chairman of the meeting at the university. "As a minister," he told the clergymen and their friends who attended, "I feel that humans are more important than animals. I am convinced that great benelt to mankind is made possible through vivisection. I have ascertained that every effort is made to keep animals used in this research from suffering needless pain."

Dr. Maurice B. Visscher, head of the university's department of physiology, discussed the ethics of the vivisection question.

He charged foes of animal experimentation with having coined the word vivisection to convey a false impression of cruelty. As for man's ethical right to experiment with animals, he pointed out that in many other ways we force them to serve our convenience. He held that the anti-vivisectionists, while accusing their opponents of bias, do not even bother to investigate the claim that animal experimentation is carried on humanely.

Save $2,000,000 a Year.

"All of the dogs used for research," he said, "would be destroyed anyway. Medicine saves $2,000,000 a year through use of dogs from the pound, and this money goes for other research and for charity."

Dr. D. J. Davis, dean of the college of medicine, warned that another influenza epidemic, which will affect 25,000,000 persons, is due soon, and declared that by the study of the disease in dogs medicine will prepare itself better to cope with the epidemic when it arrives.

The pledge cards received by Arvey were circulated by the Illinois Institute for Medical Research. Thus far only two of the cards have been returned with adverse comment, Arvey said.

Expressions favoring retention of the Arvey ordinance, he said, have come from numerous groups and individuals. These include the Chicago Heart association, the Illinois Society for the Protection of Medical Research, the Chicago Dental society, the Sisterhood of Temple Isaiah Israel, the American College of Radiology, the Chicago Medical society, the Chicago Orthopedic society, and Dr. Frank Jirka, state director of public health.

Sculptor Sues First of His Three Wives for Alimony

VIENNA, Jan. 14.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of an Austrian court a man is suing his wife for alimony. The case is doubly unique because the plaintif is the well known deaf and dumb sculptor, Gustinus Ambrosi, who has had three wives. Ambrosi seeks alimony from his first wife, Mme. Dermorgen, for support of their daughter, whom she agreed to maintain as a part of their divorce agreement.

Freezing 60 Mile Gale Hits Shivering New York

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—A sixty mile northwest gale hit New York and the eastern seaboard today, sweeping in a cold wave which the weather bureau said probably would bring weather as severe as any this winter. The high winds loosened signs and cornices in all parts of the city and kept police emergency squads on the run.

LINK GENNA KIN'S SLAYING TO CUT RATE CLEANING

Francesco Abrignani, 30 years old, 1022 South Ashland avenue, who was found shot to death in his automobile yesterday morning before 1514 Taylor street, may have been slain because of his cut rate competition with neighborhood cleaners and dyers, according to Maxwell street police.

Abrignani, who was a brother-in-law of the late James Genna, one of the notorious Genna brothers who ruled the Maxwell district alky peddlers during the prohibition era, operated a cleaning and dyeing shop at 3544 Southport avenue until about a month ago. His widow, Marie, told the police that he was forced to close the shop because of financial difficulties, but that he had taken and secreted a clothes press worth $1,000 on which he had paid $100. He began soliciting business in the neighborhood at cut rates, she told the police.

His widow was unable to tell the police of any threats he had received. The police are also investigating a theory that he may have been bootlegging and incurred the enmity of rivals.

OLE MAN RIVER.

In these brisk times of disputation there may be some difficulty in putting the disputants in their nitch, but the future will do that. There is hope for the perplexed in spirit. They won't have to answer all the questions which confront them. No one could. Ole Man River has more to do with it than the inspired or excited persons splashing around in his current. He just keeps rollin' along.

Let's risk a prophecy, basing it upon a few facts. Only seven years back there were personages of the highest reputation and greatest renown for acumen who committed themselves to the opinion that there was a new era. It wasn't going to rain no more. Poverty had been banished. There could be no more panics. The country had been placed permanently upon foundations which could not be shaken. Three years later a collection of these remarks was made. The authors of them were selling their yachts. It is still an amusing collection.

The disappearance of these authorities made room for others. The old order died. Capitalism was dead. It could not be revived. The New Deal and the Planned Society emerged. The new world sought its beginnings in the Tennessee hills, going back to Eden. Upton Sinclair and Dr. Townsend ascended to clouds and sat on their pink edges. The capitalistic chaos was reduced to blue prints and the future was built according to scale. Five years from now another interesting collection of remarks will be made.

Fourteen years ago the excitement was more specific and specialized. A new world was coming out of the eighteenth amendment. Confident zealots had congress by the ears. People are beginning to forget what amendment it was. Back of that there was making the world safe for democracy—Stalin's, Mussolini's, and Hitler's democracies, it now seems.

Mr. Bryan had the country on edge in two battles for free silver and the presidency and one for the presidency and ripened in the fullness of days battling against the descent of man and for Florida townsites.

The prophecy is that within ten years it will require a research historian to discover who the New Dealers were.

BY AIR TO EUROPE.

As the season of the year best adapted to aeronautical trail blazing approaches we again hear talk of trans-Atlantic flights; not of spectacular feats such as those of Brown, Alcock, and Lindbergh, but of genuine commercial ventures with public service at a profit as the objective. Airplane manufacturers state that they are ready—the only remaining obstacle is delay in the announcement by congress of a square deal for aviation. While air line authorities have made no such statement, most of the articles on the subject name New York as the western terminus of the transoceanic hop, probably because the stunt flyers have generally taken off from that vicinity. Commercial aviation, however, will be governed by different principles. The first consideration will be the trafic pool from which the line will draw its patrons and the second the economy of distance.

A glance at a globe will show that New York possesses no aviation advantages. It early assumed the lead among Atlantic seaports because of its location at the foot of the easiest route to the center of the continent via the Hudson and Mohawk valleys and the Great Lakes. Aviation, however, knows no such restrictions. It can ignore physical obstacles to penetrate directly to the inland territory. True, New York offers a trafic pool of seven million people, but the new air line will be seeking the center of a trafic pool of a hundred million prospective patrons. At any rate, with economy of distance and pay load as prime considerations, either St. John's, Newfoundland, or, better still, Cape St. Charles, Labrador, will be a far better airport for trans-Atlantic service than New York. That the planes following the northern course will stop at one of these points for refueling is a foregone conclusion, so why follow a zigzag course via New York from the center of the continent? Chicago is a far more logical point of concentration from the point of accessibility, existent airplane schedules, and actual flying mileage.

Let us again consult our globe, this time with the aid of a pair of dividers and the knowledge that the air and rail lines serving the continent converge at Chicago. A continuation of the established lines will show that the most favorable route to London, England, follows the St. Lawrence valley to Cape St. Charles, Labrador. Our dividers will demonstrate that if western passengers continue on to New York they will digress very decidedly, probably to the extent of two or three flying hours. They would be following two sides of a triangle. Tracing a natural route in the opposite direction, one encounters an even greater superiority for Chicago as a point of distribution for passengers destined to interior United States. A plane from London, pausing for fuel at Cape St. Charles on its westbound journey, would be well beyond Buffalo or within an hour's flying distance of Chicago before the equivalent of the Cape St. Charles-New York mileage is spanned.

The details of these proposals should be carefully studied as a demonstration of the immense advantages of Chicago as a point of concentration for trans-Atlantic flights. At New York City are centered the greatest number of passengers for ocean travel, but they are collected from all over the country, with that city itself supplying no more than its fair share. Moreover, experienced managers of aviation lines tell us that there is less interest in aviation in the thickly populated east. One must go west to a country of great distances to find appreciation of the attributes of air travel. Chicagoans will do well to support the project for trans-Atlantic flights from our city by aiding the movement for a lake front airport that will give to Chicago the name of the premier air city of America.

WAYWARD AND CRIMINAL YOUTH.

Judges of the Criminal and Juvenile courts have recommended changes in the state laws to permit better handling of youthful criminals. The state's attorney's office and many of the judges agree that faults in the law are contributing to serious conditions. The juvenile age limitation is a protection to juvenile criminals. Incorrigibility is not checked by what the law can do to them when they are discovered early in major criminal activities.

The juvenile malefactor presents society with one of its most disturbing questions. Youth going wrong may be found in a range from mere waywardness to extreme criminality. Boys of fifteen may have the tendencies of mature criminals and have also the ability to commit all major crimes with an irresponsibility which aggravates them. If the law regards these youths as wayward boys whose environment has been responsible and whose rescue is probable with a change of conditions, it will not make the distinctions prerequisite to any expectation of success.

The theory has been that if youth were treated for its offenses as adults are treated the contamination would be certain and places of detention and correction would breed the adult criminal from the youthful offender. The laws tried to avoid making it certain that when it stepped in to correct the evil tendencies of youth it would only aggravate the evil tendencies of manhood, but it is apparent that a classification of juvenile offenders merely by an arbitrary age standard will not serve the social purpose. Age in itself does not indicate what the procedure should be. The problems are not so simple as that and changes in the law which will permit the courts to use greater discretion as cases are disclosed to them should increase the power of judges to make suitable commitments when they have studied the individual before them for judgment.

AMERICAN MERCHANT SHIPS.

The many accidents that occurred on the Great Lakes just prior to the close of the 1934 season of navigation and the succession of sinkings that have occurred on the ocean within the last six weeks suggest that far too great a proportion of the ships are old hulls and far too many of American registry. Do our laws encourage obsolescence?

Under income tax laws, the rate at which our shipping companies depreciate the hulls of their vessels becomes of importance to the government. In the first application of these tax laws the rate was found to be extremely irregular. Under certain agreements, now ancient history as things move in our modern world, the percentage rate at which a shipping firm could depreciate its vessels was fixed at 3 per cent. Therefore, unless a steamship line has a superpowerful financial structure, which incidentally no present transoceanic company has, a hull must be thirty-three years old before funds are fully available to replace it. This fact alone is enough to militate against patronage of American shipping. The larger British companies depreciate at 4 per cent and when a vessel is twenty-five years old it is scrapped and replaced. As a consequence their fleets, particularly in the passenger services, outmode those of the United States companies, at least in the opinion of the experienced traveler. Sweden, too, permits much more rapid replacement, and some of their nationals operating into Atlantic ports during the last season have shown modern features that have been subject to much favorable comment.

The world is moving faster. Nothing should unnecessarily retard progress in our merchant marine. Early replacement of our fleets, perhaps with welded, motorized ships of new types, fireproof construction and utilizing the new metals, should be encouraged—not discouraged.

Editorial of the Day

PUBLICITY OF INCOMES.

[Detroit News.]

The treasury, with frank reluctance, has decided it has no choice but to put in effect March 15 the amendment to the 1934 revenue act by which congress ordered the publication of all income tax returns.

The decision was no surprise, for the language of the amendment plainly is mandatory and we have held all along that the only hope of avoiding the evil consequences of this invasion of privacy is for congress promptly to repeal the amendment.

In its report of the treasury's decision, the United Press says officials are apprehensive that swindlers will "reap a harvest" from the forthcoming publication of income tax data.

"It is expected to afford them an easy check on their sucker lists," the dispatch explains.

The apprehension of the officials in that regard is not based on mere surmise, but is fully waranted by what happened following the enactment of a similar publicity provision in the revenue act of 1924. This provision, promptly repealed the next year, was found to have been solely useful to the promoters of all manner of fraudulent, near-fraudulent and get-rich-quick schemes.

Publication of income tax returns was supposed to promote honesty in the making of them and to aid congress in discovering and remedying possible loopholes in the law. There is no evidence that the 1924 experiment aided either of these purposes.

However, the best comment on that score is: First, that the treasury itself is reluctant to give effect to the present publicity provision; and, second, that President Roosevelt for the last two years has had permissive power, under prior law, to order publication of income tax returns, but has not done so.

The provision in the 1934 act should be repealed by congress as soon as it reassembles.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

NOW I DON'T HAVE TO SLAP Disdainful Dorothy on the wrist. That little matter will be attended to by Florence of Benton Harbor. I got Dorothy's letter first and was wondering how a gentleman could give a lady a nice, gentle little admonitory slap on the wrist and get away before she could sic her police dog on him. And right afterward and in the same mail came Florence's letter. But first for Dorothy. She writes: "The first half dozen times you penned sharp, ugly, unbecoming remarks very much in behalf of nasty little Sealyhams and much to the detriment of police dogs I merely lifted my eyebrows skeptically and felt a sense of disappointment in your tastes. Before you dedicate yourself to the writing of articles on dogs I would think it would be wise to learn something about dogs—ALL dogs. There are many persons who are not thoroughly sold on little woolly white dogs and who know the fineness, loyalty, character, yes, and gentleness, of one of man's greatest friends, the police dog. And, by the way, have you ever seen a blind man being led across a busy street by a Sealyham?"

Ouch! But I'm not saying a word. I'm leaving that for Florence of Benton Harbor, who writes: "You say that police dogs have no place in the city." (I didn't say just that. I said it would be cute if they were kept on a leash just as Sealyhams, Scotties, and other little dogs are.) "Why stop there? I say police dogs should be suppressed both in the city and country, for in the country they are even more of a nuisance than in town, killing sheep, pigs, chickens, cats, and smaller dogs whose owners must be paid by the taxpayers for the damage done. Last year in this county the bill was over $3,000, and that does not pay in any way for the torture of the animals murdered by the police dogs. You say that if a police dog attacks you and bites through your wrist as one did to that woman on your street who was trying to protect her little spaniel you would try to give him a swift kick in the pants. But I won't kick him in the pants; no, sirree—I've got a shotgun."

Both parties in this lawsuit having ably presented their case, the jury will now retire to their room and decide upon a verdict. Take 'em out, bailiff!

SONNETS FOR TWO.

LVIII.

Down the dark road from heart to meeting heart walks desire lighted by the flame burning in love alone, the greater part glowing beyond the sight, and with no name.
Peer out, O friend, and reach thy two hands forth walk bravely on, discern the steady light;— (much farther than from south to measured north, much fainter than the edges of the night)— observe, as the garden opens to the dawn who paces proudly with uncovered brow through the wood and up across the lawn, so does my heart, in blossom on its bough.
And yet I know not even to this hour which is more sweet: the green bud or the flower.

LIX.

You are not gone although you walk no more across the garden leading to my gate, come not again to tap upon my door,
nor yet lift up the latch upon my fate.
There was no way that I could tell you this when you and I were walking in the sun:
how dearly I would have given for your kiss,
how cherished an hour with you when day was done.
So foolishly man houses his own soul, leaving but one small door for his escape, paying away his eloquence for toll and draping the lintel himself with heavy crape.
You stand beside me every time I call and are more mine, now you have left us all.

EGGNOG, that delectable drink dedicated to Christmas and New Year's in the dear dead days gone by, is immensely popular once more. It is even crowding out cocktails, for the time being, anyhow. And quite right if the eggnog is made properly. When it's concocted of whipped cream and is as thick as custard and has to be cut with a knife and eaten with a fork then that is not a proper eggnog, because, after all, an eggnog is supposed to be a drink and is not in the same class with corned beef and cabbage. And the moderns, knowing not the ancient customs of preparing eggnog, often dump the brandy and rum in all at once and consequently cook the eggs and the eggnog has the appearance of buttermilk or clabber. If it's like that it isn't real eggnog. It isn't even nog.

MOTOR CLUBS are working most enthusiastically on beautifying the highways. And it's a fine idea, but, after all, the most beautiful thing that can be placed on a highway is a calm, experienced driver who doesn't try to do a hundred and fifty miles an hour; who doesn't hog the middle of the road, and who has a car with brakes on and one that isn't liable to fall to pieces any minute and wreck every car coming behind it. Talk about beauty! A driver like that is as beautiful as a rainbow in the sky. And about as rare.

PLANTS THAT CAUSE DISEASE.

"OF course," we say, "there are many animal parasites, but who ever heard of plants growing on us humans?" Nevertheless plants do cause disease; in fact, bacteria are plants—tiny, one cell affairs, most of them—and they grow and multiply under favorable conditions in the body.

Plants as we usually think of them are made up of roots, stems, leaves, flowers, and fruit, but somewhere in between the one celled bacteria and the garden flowers are other types that grow as threadlike structures, forming a tangled mass that can be seen with the naked eye. Molds that grow on bread or cheese are plants of this kind. When they grow in the human body or on the skin they become parasites in the same way that the hookworm, the tapeworm, and the porkworm [trichina] are parasites.

In general, plants of this character are called fungi, and other common examples are corn smut, the red rust of growing grain, the white, powdery growth on lilac leaves, toadstools, and even ringworm, which is not a worm at all, but a fungous plant growth. Whenever certain of these fungi find suitable conditions for growth on the skin or in the body they may cause disease attended with discomfort and some danger to the individual who harbors them.

One of the most annoying of the plant fungus diseases is known as blastomycosis. It is usually observed as a rough, uneven, scaling patch on the skin, with perhaps tiny abscesses near the border of the patch. As the disease progresses nodules form, some as large as marbles, and open ulcers result from the skin destruction. The disease is generally chronic. Occasionally the lungs and certain other internal organs are involved. The skin lesions are frequently mistaken for tuberculosis or syphilis, and the lung manifestation may for a considerable time be regarded as tuberculosis. Diagnosis is made by recognizing the plant on microscopic examination. Iodine taken internally seems to be the ideal treatment, although copper sulphate and X-ray have both been used.

Another serious fungus disease is known as coccidioidal granuloma. The plant responsible for this condition closely resembles the fungus causing blastomycosis. Fortunately the disease is not common; hence its frequently fatal character has not been appreciated. The intravenous use of tartar emetic has been followed by some success.

Still another plant disease is known as actinomycosis—the disease called "lumpy jaw" in cattle. It is more widely distributed than any other of the serious plant infections. The region of the lower jaw is the most frequent site of the infection, which is characterized by a tumor-like swelling. Soon the area becomes softer and presents many openings, from which a pusilke material is discharged. Unchecked, the disease runs a long course, invading adjacent structures and causing considerable pain and suffering. As with blastomycosis, the infection may invade the lungs and even perforate the chest wall. Microscopic examination determines the nature of the infection. When recognized early patients invariably recover, and here again iodine and X-ray are important. Sometimes good surgery is required.

Several other forms of parasitic disease of plant origin are known.

Prevention of fungus infection lies in cleanliness of the skin, good mouth hygiene, and maintaining the resistance of the body at a high standard. Wounds about the hands or face should receive proper attention. Prompt diagnosis and suitable treatment with iodides and by other means will in most instances cut short what might otherwise be a stubborn and prolonged illness.

BLUSHING.

A. F. A. writes: You say that dilatation of the blood vessels of the face that are under the control of the sympathetic nervous system is the cause of blushing. This answer is inadequate. The act of blushing is involuntary. I never heard of any one blushing voluntarily.

REPLY.

The sympathetic nervous system is not under the control of the will, but responds to emotional impressions such as embarrassment, fright, fear, consternation, etc. No one can will to control blushing, but any one can train himself to be less emotional.

INFECTED SPINE.

M. M. S. writes: I have been doctoring for the last year with an infected spine. One doctor tells me it will paralyze me in time and another said it would not paralyze me at all, but would cause me to get very stiff. What is your opinion?

REPLY.

What is the nature of the infection? Is it arthritis or tuberculosis? Much can be done for either condition.

KINK IN KIDNEY.

P. L. writes: I have been told that I have a kink in my kidney. What does this mean?

REPLY.

This probably means a kink in the tube [ureter] leading from the kidney to the bladder. If the kidney moves about much, as it occasionally does in some people, the ureter may be folded over and thus prevent a normal flow of urine from the kidney outward.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

It is commonly supposed that nicotine is yellow or brown and thus imparts the yellow color to the fingers of cigaret smokers. Nicotine is never yellow or brown. It is colorless—like water. The yellow color of the fingers is due to the reaction produced in the skin by the chemicals in the tobacco and cigaret paper.

CHICAGO AND THE WATERWAYS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 7.—There are some outstanding reasons why Chicago should support the movements designed to make for the efficiency of the Great Lakes as a navigation highway, the improvement of both the St. Lawrence seaway and the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway as outlets to the high seas.

Chicago is the great city of the midwest whose financial, commercial, and industrial importance is not only well established, but for which an even greater future is promised. Coupled with Chicago's preëminence as an American center of population is its marvelous geographic location. It is not only located in the very heart and center of the midwest, with its railroads radiating in every direction, but it borders on the nation's inland oceans, the Great Lakes.

Thus we have here a phenomenal situation, namely, the second largest city in the United States enjoying an exceptional geographic location on the one hand and the promise of a direct, economical, and expeditious waterway outlet to the Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico on the other. Such communication with the high seas, and through these to the markets of the world, is entirely within the immediate possibilities. Chicago's enterprise, energy, and constructive genius ought to be centered upon the objectives here advanced. No other city could, through their realization, profit more handsomely.

In the consciousness that the city has become a great rail center, Chicago has not manifested much enthusiasm over waterways that lie at her back door. At any rate the great economies effected by water over land transportation have not been shared by Chicago in the degree that her commercial importance warants.

Since the Great Lakes make an annual saving in the nation's transportation bill of one-half billion dollars, it also follows that Chicago would be entitled to at least fifty million dollars of that saving. Instead of availing herself of the great economic advantage here afforded, Chicago clings to a one million dollar profit secured through the illegal withdrawal of lake waters for power purposes. She discards the larger advantage for the smaller.

There is another phase of the subject which concerns the material progress of Chicago. With her prestige and momentum as a great commercial center and the absorbing power which is inherent in such a center, Chicago is vitally concerned in the progress and prosperity of the entire midwest country and of the entire Great Lakes region. Chicago in a large measure draws her economic vitality from the region here described. It follows then that what is good for the larger area is good for Chicago. Her economic relations extend to thousands upon thousands of smaller communities.

The ambitions of the midwest to find an outlet to the high seas and thus expand its commerce and trade by means of inland waterways should have the sympathetic support of the great metropolitan city. At any rate it ought in nowise run counter to departures engaged in by the larger area designed in the direction of greater prosperity and material well-being. The progress of a greater midwest will always be reflected in a greater Chicago.

AMERICANS IN THE SAAR.

Morton Grove, Ill., Jan. 9.—When I, a naturalized citizen of the United States, joined the Canadian army I naturally had to swear allegiance to the flag of King George. My sympathy was with the allies and I was willing to take the consequences. By so doing I forfeited my citizenship in the U. S. A.

When I came back I had to take my first and second papers again, although I had been actively fighting on the allied side. I was anxious and glad to do it.

Now, when American citizens go to Germany to vote in the plebiscite of the Saar basin I should think they come under the same class as I did. I had, as they have, free transportation to my home country under somewhat less commodious conditions than they are enjoying. When they vote there they must be recognized and avow to be of German nationality. No American can vote in Germany any more than a German can vote here. Don't you think by so doing they are, or ought to be, losing their American citizenship and in consequence come under the quota of the immigration act?

JUST CURIOUS.

QUESTION.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Do any of the officials of the street car company, Mayor Kelly or the aldermen use the refrigerating, strap hanging, 7 cent street car service?

SAM SAYLOR.

RELIABILITY IN TRANSPORTATION.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—In your issue of today I read that "by yesterday the heavy mist blanket had spread to include the area from Omaha to Toledo and Minneapolis to Indianapolis. Not an airplane moved in the entire territory, the last one leaving the Chicago airport at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon."

This is significant because newspapers seemingly are quick to comment in glowing terms upon air transport service whenever a tail-wind blows an airplane into town ahead of its tentative schedule.

If the masses knew how unreliable air service actually is and how many millions of tax dollars are being wasted in the construction and maintenance of municipal airports throughout the country for the benefit of a relatively few travelers, most of whom have an exaggerated idea of the value of their time, the suicidal devices would be restricted to the use of the military for coastal protection where they belong, in the humble opinion of one who travels many thousand miles annually, and not only make, but actually keeps important engagements in many cities.

GEORGE CARLTON.

SCHOOL FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—It might help to solve the unemployment situation to some extent and at the same time keep people profitably occupied to use some of the money proposed to be used in the recently proposed public works program, a program which is bound to conflict to a large extent at least with private industry, in sending a large number of the unemployed to school.

GARFIELD WAITE.

NORTHWARD EXTENSION OF THE I. C.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Arthur Evans' articles in THE TRIBUNE are masterful.

Unquestionably the finest transportation in the city at the present time is the electrified Illinois Central which serves the south side. Why not extend this transportation system by tunneling under the river and utilizing the park system to the city limits? Very little if any condemnation would be required. It would be a self-liquidating project, put thousands of people to work, and would give us a much enlarged transportation system for the north side.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Button! Button! Who's got the President?

Political drama — "The President Vanishes." It's a broadside at munition makers who are discovered in an intrigue to embroil America in a European war, and its plot is based on the premise that, give a dog a flea to think about, he'll forget that he's a dog.

Just when the trouble makers believe the stage is all fixed; when propaganda has set the masses seething; when the slogan "Save America's Honor" headlines the newspapers and is being hysterically parroted by the lips of the unthinking; when a suddenly risen army of "Gray Shirts" is wreaking destruction in the name of patriotism—the country's chief executive, who is known to be unalterably against America's entering the war—vanishes. . . . And——

Gives the masses something else to think about. . . .

"THE PRESIDENT HAS BEEN KIDNAPED!"

Like wildfire the news fans out over the worl' . . .

And now all the energies of the people are bent to the task of recovering the leader, who, they realize, they have loved much and could trust well. . . .

Arthur Byron is keen, human, and impressive as President Stanley. The conspirators, represented by Sidney Blackmer, De Witt Jennings, Charles Grapewin, Charles Richman, Douglas Wood, Rosalind Russell, are convincing snakes in the grass. Secret service men are snappy minded and quick on the trigger—according Paul Kelly special honorable mention—and the "Secret Six" are secret as anything.

The picture has been directed with vim and intelligence, and keeps you intensely interested from opening to closing scene.

KIND—Western. Adapted from a Zane Grey story.

QUALITY—So so.

ACTING—NICE to see Richard Dix again! He's sincere and handsome in a part that must have made him want to groan. Martha Sleeper, who disguises very poorly as a boy during most of the action, failed to impress me. Not much personality. Others do all they can, I guess.

SCENERY and ANIMALS—Swell.

DIRECTION—All right.

Remarks—Youngsters may go for this, but I'm afraid its pretty naive for adults. Stepin Fetchit's nose must be put out of joint every time he sees that other colored boy Sleep-'n'-Eat on the screen. For if ever there was an imitation that appeared just like the genuine it's Sleep-'n'-Eat aping Stepin Fetchit.

See you tomorrow.

Child Study Meeting.

Margaret Mead, assistant curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History, will address the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education at 3:30 this afternoon at the Chicago Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street. Miss Mead will discuss "Primitive Education and What It Teaches Us."

Chamber Music Series Opens Tonight

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Peggy Hambleton, one of society's most talented and popular "bachelor girls," is a member of the committee in charge of a series of three informal evenings of chamber music, the first of which will be tonight. The programs will be given in the foyer of Orchestra hall, and the Mischakoff string quartet will play tonight.

Nursery Board Sponsors Play on Showboat

"The James Boys" Will Be Given Feb. 1.

BY JUDITH CASS.

AWARE of the popularity of old fashioned melodrama this season, the board of the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum announces that it is taking over the Dixiana Showboat, anchored in the north branch of the Chicago river at Diversey parkway, on Feb. 1 for an evening of mustachioed villains, shots, and sweet love making.

There are few that have not already paid the showboat a visit, but this does not mean that they are not ready for two more hours of riotous entertainment. The bill the night of Feb. 1 will offer "The James Boys of Missouri," or "Evading the Law."

To round out the plans for the benefit the committee in charge, headed by Miss Jane Morton, is having a luncheon on the showboat at 1 o'clock Thursday. Committee members assisting Miss Morton are Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., Mrs. George Voevodsky, Miss Jean Schweppe, Miss Mary Reed, and Mrs. Marion T. Martin.

The Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum has had a number of interesting and remunerative benefits back through the years. One of the best remembered was a night in 1927 when the board members took their guests on a trip through Benjamin Marshall's studio at Wilmette harbor.

Tell Engagement of Marjorie Block.

Interesting news this morning is the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel J. Block are making of the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Henry L. Stein, son of Mr and Mrs. Lawrence M. Stein of Highland Park. Miss Block, whose father is a member of the Block family that heads the Inland Steel company, himself a vice president, was graduated from the Faulkner school and attended Connecticut college for two years.

Mr. Stein was graduated from Dartmouth in 1930. No date has been set for the wedding.

Changes in Consular Corps in Chicago.

An interesting addition to the consular corps in Chicago is the arrival here of M. Marcel Peyronnet, who comes to take the place vacated by former Vice Consul Edmond Mayer.

M. Peyronnet with Mme. Peyronnet and their 11 months old infant arrived during the week-end from France, where they have been the last month on a holiday. Before this M. Peyronnet held the vice consular post in Tien Tien, China, which accounts for their bringing here with them a Chinese nurse for their baby and a Filipino houseboy. The Peyronnets have taken temporary quarters at 1036 North Dearborn street.

M. Mayer's new post is in Sydney, Australia. Another young vice consul whom Chicago regrets to lose this week is Edouard Kulikowski, who has been serving the Polish government in this city. Mr. Kulikowski is taking the position of secretary at the Polish embassy in Washington.

Holiday cards received by a number of Herbert Noehring's friends here tell that he is now the secretary of legation for the German government in Budapest. Until last summer Mr. Noehring served as vice consul for Germany in Chicago. His successor, Dr. Hans Strack and Mrs. Strack, are now settled in a home in Evanston.

Two Teas at Art Galleries.

On Thursday in the Breckenridge gallery at 900 North Michigan avenue a tea will open an exhibition of sculpture by Cyra Cutler Beckwith of Aurora. Mrs. Beckwith's work is especially interesting because she has been doing it for only two years and she never has had instruction of any kind. In the exhibit will be a number of portrait heads, including one of the artist's grandson, John Van Nortwick III., and one of Mrs. Robert R. Fauntleroy.

Another artistic tea of interest this week will be one tomorrow that will open Robert Somerville's new galleries of Chinese antiquities in the Italian court. Miss Jean Schweppe, Miss Mary Reed, Miss Patsy Keith, Miss Martha

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

One way to keep the complexion lovely and live looking is to adopt the use of a rich cleansing cream and a lavender freshening lotion as your faithful beauty routine.

If you want to reduce the care of that complexion of yours to the simplest point, we urge you to look into the merits of a fine white cream—cleanser and nourisher as well—and its running mate, a lavender lotion that is as refreshing as the first whiff of the spring flowers. With these two you can establish a pleasant but thoroughly practical routine that will keep your skin in tiptop shape.

You'll adore the cream. It isn't of the fast melting variety, neither is it so thick that it pulls; it's just about perfect as to texture—rich but frothy. It cleans the skin in businesslike fashion, routing out the minute particles of grime that are the root of all complexion ills with gentle firmness. It isn't expensive, and you can use it as a treatment cream as well if your skin is of the dry variety. From what we see around this winter almost every skin is.

The fragrant lotion is used after creaming. While it's called a cleansing lotion, its real purpose is to normalize rather than cleanse. Used on a cotton pad after the application of cream, it removes every vestige of the grease and leaves the skin feeling and looking delightfully fresh. If your skin is looking a bit sluggish you'll pep it up marvelously if you give it a brisk spanking with a pad saturated in the liquid. It's as bracing as a cold shower.

If a little extra creaming to relieve dryness is indicated by lack of oil, use this same cream as a night beautifier, leaving it on for the course of the beauty sleep. It will do a lot of replenishing while you're in the land of dreams—you'll find your skin soft and pliable when you rouse to face the world.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

This Concert Dispels Stories on Stravinsky

Leads Chicago Symphony at Milwaukee.

BY EDWARD MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—It is a good thing that Igor Stravinsky returned to America after ten years of absence, otherwise the myths that have been surrounding his name would have grown into something as perennial and unkillable as the cherry tree of George Washington and the cultivated art in the court of good Queen Anne.

He is back. He conducted tonight a program of his own composition, played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Milwaukee, several nights before he is due to perform the same sort of an act in Chicago.

By that token he has been displaying himself not as a mysterious storm center of music needing a controversial commentator to interpret it to a blank, misunderstanding world but as a blithe, alert composer who is thoroughly in touch with his public, and who in his own music contradicts his own statements to reporters.

It might have been enough to know that he was going to direct his own suites from "The Fire Bird" and "Petrouchka," but here in Milwaukee he added more in his ballet music, a suite from "Pulcinella" and a section from "Le Baiser de la Fee."

It was a characteristic day of his. He spent the morning in a rehersal with the orchestra in Chicago, finding complaint about copies of his music that were imperfect and needing much time for correction. Then came the trip to Milwaukee, time for dinner and more time for a nap before the concert, but meanwhile taking the opportunity to give vent to several thousand words in mingled French and German, all of them with many disrespectful implications about political conditions on the continent of Europe.

But at a quarter past eight he was on the stage of the Pabst theater, baton in hand, and ready to give a public showing of some of his more recent as well as his older compositions. Incidentally, he is a much better conductor than he was when he came here a decade ago.

"Pulcinella," according to the program notes, is a suite for small orchestra "After Pergolesi." He claims that he was trying to make a musical portrait of Pergolesi, and therefore he borrowed not only some of the melodies of the eighteenth century composer but his style of composition as well.

What it amounts to is that he has taken a small orchestra in the old manner, a string quintet to be backed up by a greater body of players, and put out some utterly charming melodies. I am certain that Pergolesi never dreamed of using trombones in the comic manner of the last movement of this work, but Stravinsky knows how to do it, and got a great effect out of it.

Likewise in "Le Baiser de la Fee" Stravinsky states that the piece was inspired by the muse of Tschaikowsky. Note well that he does not say that he himself was inspired thereby, although he should have, because the work is another composition of great tunefulness and needing no exotic explanation.

Composed seven years ago for purposes of ballet, it has not only distinct and likable melody but the sort of phrase construction to make it workable for the feet of ballet dancers, and, though Stravinsky apparently scorns that sort of comment, notable charm as well.

For those who have followed the performances of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and more recently the performances of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe there is hardly need of explanation of the "Fire Bird" and "Petrouchka" music. They are pretty well known.

Even with Stravinsky conducting, they need the stage pictures and the dancing to put them across at their best. Even then, however, Stravinsky managed to inject a little extra color and forcefulness, enough to make them stand out as vivid concert pieces on their own behalf.

Gay Bracelets Add Glamor to Tanned Wrists

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Costume jewelry thinker-uppers must be rather sleep worn these days. Judging by numerous ingenious new ideas about the shops, they must be working all day and all night. Bracelets alone keep you gasping. The brilliant doo-dads that clank noisily around the sun tanned wrists of the fashion wise are bigger, bolder and brighter than ever. Clear white clamped together with flaming scarlet, yellow teamed with vivid blue and stunning, dazzling green alone or in the cooling company of dull white are the gayest things imaginable.

Dull white—that is, composition stuff without any luster—is stunning with dark clothes and will be even more popular this spring when we slip into dark, thin wools and heavy silks. Wide bracelets of this lusterless white, made in thick, heavy designs, are effective when worn as the only bit of white contrast with big earrings that match.

Pearls flatter always. Nothing in the way of costume jewelry does a better job, especially the newer pearl creations that are arriving daily.

Long necklaces made of pearls as large as marbles are matched with twin bracelets of the same sized balls. Three and four strand chokers come in various lengths to suit nearly all dress necklines. Multistrand bracelets in pairs are lovely with the new est flowered taffeta dance dresses. Big brooches of pearls shaped like slender new moons have been revived. Big pearls, moderately sized, and small dainty pearls, anything you ever tried to find, are ready for sports clothes, slim daytime dresses and all the romantic new evening gowns. You never make a mistake if you wear pearls discreetly and smartly.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with the large brood of children of a peasant family. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Pragovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant roles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Irutsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Irina, a beautiful communist, wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Scenting danger, Stephen departs with Elizabeth for the border, stopping en route at Irutsk where they are overtaken by Petroff and Irina. Stephen plans to outwit them by denouncing Elizabeth, claiming he never suspected her identity until she began to talk in her sleep. Petroff believes his story, as does Irina. Elizabeth is put in prison, thinking Stephen has turned against her. She is called before Petroff. Stephen is with him.

INSTALMENT XXVI.

A NIGHTMARE ENDED.

Stephen got up and pushed his chair towards Elizabeth.

"Let her sit down, let her sit down or she'll be fainting again. Do you hear that, Varvara? None of your fainting tricks here; they won't do you any good. Have a drink and brace up! And if you tell Comrade Petroff what he wants to know and ask him nicely, perhaps he'll let you off without a firing party this time. He filled up his glass at the samovar and pushed it into Elizabeth's hand.

The smell of the spirit sickened her and she set it down on the table. She had sunk down upon the wooden chair and sat there looking at Petroff who had resumed his seat and was facing her across the littered table. He leaned back as if to show how much at ease he was and addressed her in a judicial tone.

"What Stefan says is to some extent true. If you are going to be sensible, I daresay I can do something for you."

Elizabeth watched him, leaning on the table.

Elizabeth stretched out her hand for the glass she had refused. At the sound of Stephen's voice a kind of inward shivering had come upon her. It was the cold, she told herself; it was cold. . . . But if she was to answer Petroff, she must get the better of it. She lifted the glass to her lips and drank. The tea was scalding hot. There was not so much vodka in it as she had supposed. She steadied herself and, with her cold hands clasped about the warmth of the glass, said:

"What do you want?"

Petroff's lip lifted in a sneer.

"What innocence! You know very well what I want and I can assure you that I mean to have it. I know that you have Nicholas Radin's formula and you'll save us both a lot of trouble if you'll hand it over quickly."

So Stephen had not given him the formula. The knowledge put a little heart into Elizabeth. She could still fight if there was something to fight for. She lifted her head with a touch of pride and said:

"What do you mean?"

Petroff flung himself forward and banged on the table.

"What do I mean? You have the nerve to ask me that? Do you suppose you're going to get away with that sort of bluff? No, no, my dear, it's not good enough. You shouldn't have let yourself talk in your sleep. First my mother hears you and then your husband. Being a good communist he comes and tells me. So now you know where we are. Come now, you ought to be grateful to me instead of sulking. You'd have been in a filthy political cell if it hadn't been for me. I've got a special authority from Moscow to deal with your case and I don't mind telling you why. They want that process of Radin's.

His narrowing eyes held hers. His voice became a mere rasp. He threw back his head and laughed a little.

"There are ways of making people speak, you know."

There was a silence. Stephen stood at the corner of the table his eyes going from one to the other like a man watching a game.

When the silence had lasted for a little while, he leaned forward, picked up the vodka bottle and tipped it up over Petroff's glass. The colorless liquid gurgled out and Petroff said:

"Hi, that's my glass!"

Stephen picked it up, laughing.

"I'll put a drop of hot tea in it. You'll be dry enough before you're through with Varvara, I can tell you. One of those quiet obstinate ones, that's what she is, the sort that wears a man down and makes his throat as dry as a limekiln." He was at the samovar as he spoke.

"Don't drown the vodka," said Petroff without taking his eyes off Elizabeth.

She sat looking past him at the curtained windows. She would do anything rather than look at Stephen. And then she was looking at him because he had come round behind the table with the drink in his hand. He leaned over Petroff's shoulder and set it down. And then, as he drew back, his fist shot out and struck the commissar behind the ear. It happened so quickly that it left Elizabeth dazed. She had no time to cry out. One moment Petroff was staring at her out of his narrow, slanting eyes and the next he was face down amongst the litter of his own papers, his body sprawling and his arms shot limply out across the table.

She found herself on her feet without knowing how she had got there. Stephen was picking Petroff up and laying him down on the floor. He said in his natural voice:

"Lock the door, will you?"

And all at once the nightmare was over. Warmth and courage came back to her. She ran to the door, locked it, and then came back again.

Stephen had been tying Petroff up in a quiet, methodical manner. There was already a gag of cotton waste in the commissar's mouth and a good wide bandage to keep it there. These things had emerged from a capacious inner pocket which further provided a length of good, stout cord. This went to the binding of Petroff's hands and the securing of his ankles.

Stephen looked over his shoulder at Elizabeth and laughed.

"That's done his job," he said. After which he picked Petroff up and carried him into the back room.

He came back alone.

"We've got to hurry," he said. "It's a nuisance about the police. We'll have to go out of that back window. There's a bit of sloping roof that might have been made for us. I'm afraid those policemen are going to have a long, cold wait."

As he spoke he was taking a canvas roll out of his pocket and opening it. It seemed to contain some very odd things. He picked out a stick of shaving soap, a razor, and a pair of scissors. Next he filled the empty glass with boiling tea and spread newspapers over the floor and upon the table. A pocket mirror came out of the roll and was set up. Kneeling down before it he began to remove his beard, using the scissors first and the razor afterward.

Elizabeth watched him, leaning on the table.

He looked younger without his beard. Her eye was pleased by the shape of his chin and the clear, firm line of the jaw.

When he had finished shaving he dived into his pocket and brought out a wig of unkempt black hair. He put it on, adjusted it carefully, and then picked up a stick of something that looked like putty, nipped a bit out of it, and proceeded to alter the shape of his nose by giving it a higher bridge.

"I'm sorry if you thought I had let you down," he said. "You see, I ran into Irina and her crowd of young communists just after I left you. The young communists were on their way to keep guard over you whilst Irina went to fetch Petroff. They didn't see me so I thought I'd better get going before Irina did."

He poured away nearly all the tea, added some dark powder to what remained, stirred it with the handle of Petroff's pen, and began to apply the stuff to his face. It gave him the skin of a gipsy and he further added to the effect by running his hands over the none too scrupulously tended floor and then smearing his face with the resulting grime. Darkened lashes and a pair of bushy black eyebrows made him the complete ruffian.

"Now for you," he said. "I'm afraid I'll have to make you a bit dirty. Don't look till I've done with you."

I think he is right, Jerry. At least you want to go out with boys of your own age as well as with him.

Adults Should Treat Childish Spats Sanely

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We were talking yesterday about the trouble that often arises when young children who are used to playing alone, play together.

The arguing, the friction, and quarreling are more or less to be expected. They are all quite normal—the effect of learning the give and take of human relationships. There is no need for worry, thinking that these little set-tos mean that Janet is going to be selfish or Billy a fighter. All there is need for is the right handling—to learn by observation and experience just how much to interfere and how much to let alone. Here are some suggestions, when quarreling arises.

Try mild and casual measures first and try to be as impersonal as possible. Sometimes a look or a friendly word will turn the tide. Sometimes a joke will turn trouble aside or turn it into fun.

But before even that, if the quarrel is or promises to be brief, ignore it. Sometimes the air is cleared by a dispute brought to its logical conclusion.

If it continues, but if you see that the children are getting somewhere and it promises results, stand by and give them time.

If things need settling do it definitly and fairly.

If you think there is an important point like justice involved, point this out.

Our leaflet on tantrums is helpful to mothers of young children. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

French Offer Piquant Garnish for Fish Dishes

Sauce Remoulade a Combine of Condiments.

BY MARY MEADE.

Just what is mayonnaise—and why? This knotty question has caused such a ruction in France, that home of smart cuisines, that it's taken the French academy, no less, to settle it.

It all started from two schools of thought—one claiming that "sauce remoulade" (a piquant affair made with oil, mustard, herbs, and various condiments) can be called a mayonnaise and the other loudly asserting that it just couldn't. After much stroking of beards the worthies at the academy came to the conclusion that sauce remoulade is not mayonnaise—boasting no eggs—and therefore deserves a separate definition in the French dictionaries.

All of which seems to call for a recipe for this debated French speaking fish accompaniment, for zestful as it is it too seldom appears in our American born cook books. One master chef does it this way:

SAUCE REMOULADE.
(Beloved of Fish.)

1 tablespoon minced anchovies
1 tablespoon minced chives
1½ tablespoons minced parsley
1 tablespoon minced capers
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ scant teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup salad oil

Blend all the ingredients with the exception of the oil. When thoroughly mixed trickle in the oil gradually, beating constantly with a rotary egg beater. Chill and serve with baked, boiled, or fried fish.

Mayonnaise, as we know it most intimately in this country, is something quite apart from the above tangy sauce. That which we buy ready made owes its goodness to the finest salad oils, fresh eggs, a blend of vinegars, and mysteriously measured spices. Or we may go ahead and make it ourselves out of these same ingredients.

Vegetable salads as a rule choose French dressing or one of its relatives for their blending medium, but fruit salads glory most in a creamy mayonnaise. One surprising little salad we know looks for all the world like a bunch of grapes—but turns out to be hiding a pear in its heart. It's the perfect background for a fine big spoonful of mayonnaise.

BUNCH OF GRAPES SALAD.
6 halves canned pears
1 package cream cheese
1 pound green or red grapes
¾ pound chopped nutmeats
⅓ cup mayonnaise

Drain the pear halves on a towel or other soft cloth. Spread the softened cream cheese evenly over the rounded pear sides and cover with seeded halves of the green or red grapes. At the large end of each "bunch of grapes" insert a chunky parsley stem from which the leaves have been removed. Now blend the chopped nuts with the mayonnaise and place portions of it in the center of crisp lettuce nests on individual salad plates. Over each spoonful of mayonnaise place a grape covered pear. Chill and serve.

Chaplin Illness Delays Work on His New Film

Wife Walks Out on Her Husband and Little Son

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We're asked to insert this little notice to bring back a mother of a 4 year old youngster to him and to the husband who is willing to forgive and forget.

"Vi, Co. All is forgiven. Come back. No questions asked."

"The most terrible thing that can happen to any man has just happened to me," the husband of Vi confides. "I came home from work to find my wife was gone; her clothes, also. We had a little spat before I left in the morning. She had been down-hearted for a week or more because of our circumstances. I had to take a job at a much reduced salary. But I was glad to get it because, at least, it keeps a roof over our heads and food enough to keep us going.

"Please asked her to come back, if not for my safe, for the youngster's who cries and asks where his mother is. I know she is going to be afraid to come back, but I will promise not to ask any questions, or make any accusations. I know she is a good girl at heart and must be physically disabled with worry and things to have gone away like that."

Well, there you are, "Vi." Your husband adds in a P. S. that he does not want to go to the police to make inquiries. That might spoil your name, he thinks. In the meantime, he is nearly out of his mind with worrying.

Don't you think you could get up the courage to go back? If not to your husband, to that little fellow whose responsibility is yours just as much as his daddy's? Think of the poor little shaver waking mornings to find that bad dream he had last night is true.

Kubelik, Noted Violinist, Calls on Mayor Kelly

Jan Kubelik, famous Bohemian violinist, who is now making an American tour, yesterday called on Mayor Kelly to extend to him an invitation to his recital at Orchestra hall on Jan. 20. Needlework Guild May Meet Each Month.

Mrs. Richardson Dunham will preside this morning at the meeting of the board of the Needlework guild at the Chicago Woman's club. The directors are expected to vote to make the guild meetings monthly rather than annual affairs and to outline some plan whereby closer coöperation may be developed between the guild and the various charities to which it contributes.

When the guild was founded years ago the members devoted all of their efforts to needlework, but now they are interested in the distribution of new garments, made by others as well as themselves, to the needy.

Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., the former Mrs. Grover Cleveland, is the national president. The late Mrs. Charles D. The tour is limited to members. After a couple of hours in the gallery there will be tea and a musical program in Mr. Harding's home, which adjoins the gallery.

He is their first child and a grandson of Mrs. Isabella C. Greenway, congresswoman from Arizona, and Prof James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago. Mrs. Greenway, who is in Chicago for the event, will return to Washington shortly.

Black Crepe Makes This Dress

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Today's dress is wonderfully attractive in a black, crinkly silk crêpe. The neck is becoming with its softly falling jabot, and curved seaming minimizes the bulk that is apt to creep in about the hips. The shoulder tucks lend graceful ease over the bust. In lightweight woolen, satin back crêpe, or one of the printed silk crêpes it will also be delightful.

The pattern, No. 3442, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

Several Days' Liquid Diet Is Beneficial

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We may be just a little late with the holiday season waistline cure. We should have thought of it earlier.

However, the waistline feeling may still be with you. You feel rather crowded, and minus the old flexible mid-rift.

They tell us in ordinary times we carry around a few pounds, at least, of waste product that the system, complexion, and pep would operate better without.

Make yourself a fine big bowl of vegetable soup. Have plenty of good vegetables in it and good soup bones. Cook thoroughly and well. Strain, and make a day or two's luncheon and dinner of the liquid soup.

I find this soup better and more sustaining than broths or other soups. You'll want something hot, anyway, these cold days. But stick to liquids all day for a couple of days and see if you don't feel several pounds lighter.

If you can stay in bed for a Saturday and Sunday with a fruit juice concoction at your side and drink a couple of quarts of it, fine.

And do an exercise or two. One done twenty times morning and night with a noon session thrown in for good measure will make you feel tops in no time. Here's a simple one that will help a number of things besides the crowded feeling. Sit on the floor. Bend from the waist forward, extending the hands in a rowing action. Come back with a snap and force in the arms.

It's easy to do; not tiring, but fine for the waistline muscles and for the bloated diaphragm.

Globe Players Win Praise in 'Twelfth Night'

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Old Globe players of the Fair, rounding into the final phase of their postcript activities at the Studebaker theater, staged "Twelfth Night" last night in a way that renewed old enthusiasms. Whenever I see this jaunty frolic of mixed identities among the lords and ladies of Illyria, it becomes my favorite Shakespearean comedy, and in the vivacious treatment of these gallant and expert young classicists it ran true to form. The reaction of the audience, also, recalled the frank enjoyment of the many thousands of pilgrims to the Old Globe theater inside the walls of Merrie England last summer.

It should be noted that on its current schedule of two performances a night the company no longer uses "tabloid" texts. "Twelfth Night" runs well over an hour in this version, and contains almost as much of the structure of the play as any of the full blown productions of the past.

The rôle of Viola is the heart of "Twelfth Night," and has a rich acting tradition. The great ones of my time were Julia Marlowe and Viola Allen—the former a luscious reader of such speeches as "She never told her love," and a rare artist in the coy poetry of the rôle; the latter a gay and bouncing comedienne, whom the elder critics were wont to take to task for her soubrettish humor.

Miss Jackson Perkins is the current Viola, happily endowed with the right figure for the masquerade as a youth and a mellow voice on which Shakespeare's poetry rides smoothly even at the quick pace of modern realism. Miss Perkins is a boyish and debonair Viola who seeks for the comedy of the situations rather than the romance of the love story. She avoids the pensive note of the bygone Violas; in fact, she forgets her grief over her probably drowned brother too quickly. In general, this is a characterization of much charm.

Carl Benton Reid is an admirable Sir Toby Belch, jovial when sober, richly humorous when drunk, and always the natural Elizabethan tavern knight. I rate him about the best Toby of my experience.

The Malvolio of Donald Gallagher is surprisingly good. Patterned, apparently, after Mr. Sothern's, it strikes a more plausible note of bizarre characterization and is entirely free from Sothern's hard mannerisms of diction.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SOME EXAMPLES OF THREE BIDS ILLUSTRATING THE OPENING BIDDER'S LATER MOVES.

Mrs. Sims, after reading over the last week's articles, says that I have made it very clear what the responding hand should do with the various aces and kings he may hold, but neglected the opening bidder's procedure on the later rounds. Here are some instances:

Sp. x Di. x
Ht. A K Q J x x x Cl. K Q J x

Three hearts. If partner says three no trumps, now three tricks must be lost to aces, so you sign off with four hearts. If he bids three spades, bid three no trumps, inquiring about other aces. If he says four hearts, pass, as two tricks are off the hand. If four diamonds, now the hand is safe at six; so bid four no trumps, compelling him to bid again. If he now shows the last ace by bidding five clubs, you bid seven hearts. If he denies it by bidding five hearts, your bid is six hearts. If over three no trumps he had bid four clubs, now you know that he has denied the ace of diamonds and your bid is six hearts. If over three hearts he had bid four diamonds, now you know the ace of spades is against you. Bid four no trumps to permit him either to show the ace of clubs [enabling you to bid six hearts] or to deny it by bidding five hearts, which you pass. If his first response is four clubs, you know the two other aces are against you and you close the bidding with a rebid of four hearts.

With 150 Aces.

Sp. A x Di. A x
Ht. A K Q J x x x Cl. A x

This is a hand with which you would have made a two-bid before I introduced the king-showing feature for the three-bid. Nowadays, your bid is three hearts. Three no trumps will be the response, as you already knew. Four clubs by you. Now if responding hand bids four spades, you know he has both the black kings, and that six no trumps will be made. You next probe for the king of diamonds and, according to his reply, bid either six or seven no trumps. If over four clubs he bids four diamonds, he has denied the king of clubs, but shows that of diamonds, making the hand safe at five. You now probe for the king of spades; if he has it, he says five spades and you say six no trumps. If he lacks it, he says five hearts, and you pass. If you sign off below a slam, the hand must be played in hearts, not no trumps. Your partner is not allowed to pass five no trumps, but must pass six no trumps.

Sp. A x Di. A K Q J x x x x
Ht. A K Cl. x

If his first response is three no trumps, you know a club trick must be lost. So you merely probe for the king of spades, and you either pass five diamonds or bid six diamonds, according to his reply.

If his first response is four clubs, you know the hand is safe at six diamonds; however, there are two cards which will give you seven—the king of spades or the king of clubs. So bid five clubs. If he bids six clubs or five spades, bid seven diamonds. If, however, he denies the club king with five diamonds, bid five spades to probe for that king. If he then bids six spades to show it, bid seven diamonds. If he denies it, he does so by bidding six diamonds, which you pass.

Sp. K Q J 10 9 x x x x Di. A x
Ht. — Cl. A x

Three spades. Now the response is four hearts, a useless duplication unless he has one of the two minor kings, in which case it will remove the other loser, as that king will be an entry to make use of the ace of hearts. However, you cannot afford a probe as you will have to probe at the level of five. If he holds neither minor king you cannot make five spades. At this point, therefore, you must INVITE YOUR PARTNER TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE by signing off at four spades. This plainly says, "Your heart ace is a complete duplication; it removes no loser from my hand as it has not enabled me to probe or to make any move which would get us up to the level of five." Now if responder has both the minor kings, he knows that both of them cannot be a duplication, though one may. He should, therefore, bid four no trumps, saying, "I am willing to be probed for either minor king, having them both." Opener can now bid six spades. There is still the ace of trumps to be lost. If responder had a second ace [in conjunction with a different opening hand—say A x and K Q in the minors] he should bid it over the four-spade sign-off, as one may flatly assume that both of the two aces in a responding hand do not constitute a duplication.

BILL FOR RELIEF MAY PASS TODAY IN STATE SENATE

School Levy and Tax Acts Up for Action.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—In a perfunctory session today the senate advanced to third reading the appropriation of 9 million dollars of state funds for relief, Chicago's board of education "pegged" levy bill, and two measures validating tax levies of several downstate counties.

Tomorrow the bills will be called for passage. Indications are they will experience no difficulty in obtaining a two-thirds' vote, required by their emergency clauses, and then they will be rushed to Gov. Horner for his signature.

Make Relief Money Ready.

The first two bills will make available money for relief purposes for three months and aid the school board in adopting its 1935 budget.

Later in the day, inaugural services were held in the senate chambers for John Stelle, McLeansboro, new state treasurer, and John A. Wieland, Calumet City, new state superintendent of public instruction.

Both were elected in November, 1934, Mr. Stelle succeeding John C. Martin, Salem, and Mr. Wieland assuming the position previously held by Francis G. Blair, Charleston.

The oath of office was given by Chief Justice Norman L. Jones of the state Supreme court in the presence of many officers of the state and leaders of the Democratic party.

In the evening a party was given in their honor at the St. Nicholas hotel under auspices of the Illinois Veterans' league.

Stelle Fills Posts.

After the ceremonies, Mr. Stelle made public the names of several of his appointees. They are Raymond W. Moore, Chicago, Democratic committeeman of the 44th ward, assistant treasurer, and Howard Ashton, Rockford, chief securities clerk.

James Hardie, Carlinville, will retain his position as chief clerk and Roy Winterhalter, Chicago, will remain as chief revenue clerk.

Three Street Cars Jam Together; 8 Persons Hurt

Eight persons were injured yesterday morning when a street car southbound in Ashland avenue crashed into the rear of another street car which was discharging passengers at 63d street, pushing it into a third street car ahead. Although all those injured remained at the Southtown hospital, none was reported to be seriously hurt. The motorman and a passenger said the accident was caused by the failure of the air brakes, but street car company officials asserted they were found to be in good condition. They believed the motorman, who has a good record during his 27 years of service, had a fainting spell.

Sir Francis Drake Estate Promoter Off to Prison

Oscar M. Hartzell, promotor of the mythical estate of Sir Francis Drake, will leave Chicago today in the custody of a United States marshal on his way to Leavenworth penitentiary where he will serve a ten year term. He was convicted of using the mails to defraud in the federal court at Sioux City and was seized here Saturday night when he failed to surrender after the Supreme court refused to intervene.

BARES COMMON LAW MARRIAGE IN ESTATE SUIT

Kansas "Friend" Says She's Widow.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Bertrand L. Taylor, New York millionaire, went through a "secret common law marriage ceremony" with her daughter, Geraldine, in 1928, Mrs. C. W. Ott of Pittsburg, Kas., testified today before Surrogate Delehanty.

Geraldine Ott is seeking a share as common law wife in the estate of Taylor, who died on Jan. 6, 1934, leaving a will under which she, described as "my friend," receives $10,000. The rest of his $1,200,000 was divided between his son and daughter, Bertrand L. Taylor, one of the governors of the New York Stock exchange, and the Countess Dorothy Dentice di Frasso.

Called "Mrs. Taylor."

Miss Ott, whom her counsel uniformly called "Mrs. Taylor," took the stand as the hearing began today. Mrs. Ott followed. She said she and her daughters were in Miami in the spring of 1927 and there met Taylor. After a few weeks, she said, he asked to be allowed to take Geraldine, then 27 years old, while he was 65, to Europe, and finally her sister, Marcella, also.

On Jan. 2, 1928, according to Mrs. Ott, he came to Pittsburg, stayed at a hotel, and in the evening came to the Ott home.

She said he told her and her husband, who is a dentist, "I love your daughter and I want to marry her, but it must be a secret common law marriage, because my children would object to my marrying again, and I want no such publicity as Daddy Browning has been getting."

Parents Enter Discussion.

There was a long discussion, she said, in the course of which Taylor said he had suggested such an arrangement to Geraldine, and that she had said he must propose it to her mother and father.

At last, although she didn't mention giving consent, she testified that Taylor said to Geraldine, "I've kept my part of the bargain; will you keep yours?" and her daughter said, "Yes."

Then, Mrs. Ott testified, he produced a large ruby ring, placed it on Geraldine's finger, and said, "With this ring I make you my wife," adding a moment later, "That ring belonged to the first Mrs. Taylor."

After this description Mrs. Ott gave a long recital of her daughter's travels and homemaking with Taylor.

Burglar for Girl Friend Revealed as Married Man

Stanley Seward, 24 years old, ex-convict, who resorted to burglary to supply his girl friend with pretty clothes, was revealed yesterday as a married man, a father, and a relief client. His young wife and their 2 year old son visited him at the detective bureau. Held with Seward is Miss Dorothy Mackey, 22 years old, 640 Barry avenue, who, police said, acted as a lookout during his robberies. They were arrested early Sunday.

FLU EPIDEMICS START WITH COLDS!

A Cold Neglected or a Cold Lightly Treated May Take a Serious Turn!

One thing you can't fool around with is a cold.

The so-called "common cold" is the cause of more influenza and pneumonia than any other thing.

One reason for the heavy toll colds take is the foolish things people do for them.

Cure-alls are self-deception.

Preparations good for all kinds of other ailments besides colds simply can't be equally effective for colds.

Surface remedies are equally futile. A strong smell or a stinging sensation doesn't make a preparation a cold cure.

If it calls for anything, a cold calls for a cold treatment.

It also calls for one internal in effect, for a cold is an internal infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment required. It is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds. It is internal treatment and of fourfold effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, a desirable step in routing a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

These are the four effects you want in treating a cold.

Bromo Quinine is nothing new or untried.

For more than 40 years it has been the stand-by of thousands in treating a cold.

The fact that it is the largest selling cold tablet in the world assures you of its efficacy and harmlessness.

Waste No Time or Run No Risks

Take a cold seriously and save yourself the danger of grave complications. Adopt a proven treatment—Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

Every drug store in America sells Bromo Quinine and the few pennies' cost may save you a lot in time and money.

IOWA WINS, LEADS BIG 10; PURDUE BEATS N. U.

ABEL REFUSES OFFER TO SIGN WITH BLACKHAWKS

DEFENSE STAR SAYS SPLIT IS OVER $88.33

Taffy Out on Eve of Toronto Game.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The mysterious vanishment of 245 pounds of hocky player, dramatized Sunday night as "The Strange Case of Taffy Abel," was solved, after a fashion, when the big Blackhawk holdout hocky star was interviewed yesterday afternoon by THE TRIBUNE.

TAFFY ABEL.

Abel, who had been billed to make his comeback at the Chicago Stadium Sunday night against the Boston Bruins, was reported to have disappeared from a conference with Manager Clem Loughlin Sunday afternoon, to have failed to keep a 7 o'clock Sunday evening appointment, and to have evaded a squad of scouts sent out to locate him.

More than 13,000 fans, a great majority of them admirers of Abel and alarmed at the inadequacy of the Hawk defense line, howled for Taffy when the team took the ice and remained puzzled at his absence during the evening, an evening, incidentally, of very uninteresting hocky.

Crowd Is Let Down.

Because the crowd had been let down on the Abel nonappearance and, perhaps, because of the poor hocky game and the fact the world champs have not won on their home ice since Dec. 16, Hawk officials yesterday had turned very sour on the popular defense giant and it was intimated that all negotiations for his services are at an end, desperate as the team is on its defense line.

But first let's tell Abel's story as he told it yesterday, following with the Hawk rebuttal. Here's what Taffy says:

"I did not run out on any appointment with Clem Loughlin Sunday, as publicly stated. After I had left my conference with him I went to my hotel, stayed there for a while, then Mrs. Abel and I went over to have dinner with Doc Romnes [Doc was a holdout himself for a spell this season].

"It was reported that I failed to pick up tickets reserved for me. I made no reservations and knew of no tickets put aside for me.

Try to Cut Salary.

"And here's the truth about the salary debate. Last season my contract called for $4,250. I was surprised last fall that as a member of the Stanley cup winning team I had been offered a cut of $500.

"A clause was inserted saying that I would be given a $500 bonus if my play proved satisfactory, a clause which I found meant nothing on previous occasions. Iverson and Gorman, former managers, both had made similar promises and had forgotten all about them as soon as I signed my contract.

"In a telephone conversation later on, Bill Tobin of the Hawks told me that if I proved I was in condition that I would be paid on the basis of my old salary of $4,250. This was Saturday afternoon.

Just to Save $88.33.

"Sunday afternoon Loughlin told me I would be paid $2,125 for the remainder of the season. According to the schedule that would have been playing Sunday night's game for nothing, or a saving of $88.33 for the world champions, which was not in accordance with Tobin's promise to me.

"When I pointed out this difference Loughlin said I could take it or leave it, that that was all the money left to stay under the team's salary limit of $52,500 for the season.

"The impression has gone out that I have been down here training at the expense of the Hawks. They sent me fare, but I have been paying my own living and training expenses. I have been treated like a rank outsider ever since I came to town. I never have been invited to sit on the bench or to visit the dressing rooms before, during or after games. All the Hawk officials have appeared to be irritated whenever I attempted to communicate with any of them.

Good Old Pictures!

"When the Hawks' press agent had me posing for pictures the other day I told him he should go slow about announcing me for Sunday night, but he replied that his job was to get the picture taken and in the newspapers. I also suggested that I might not play before I was introduced in one of the intermissions last Tuesday night, but I was introduced with the statement that I would play.

"I intend to stay in town a day or two to see what happens. If nothing does happen I'm going to pack up and go home to Sault Ste. Marie."

What Office Says.

And here is the Hawk front office rebuttal:

"Abel broke his word, given last

REVOLTA, GHEZZI TIE FOR FIRST IN COAST TOURNEY

Pair to Play Off 285 Tie Today.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—John Revolta, Milwaukee, and Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., tied for first in the Los Angeles open golf championship tournament today with totals of 285 for 72 holes.

The two stalwart Italians wound up just where they started last Saturday when they tied for the lead at the end of the first round with cards of 68. As a result they will play off the tie over an 18 hole route tomorrow to decide first and second place money. To the winner will go $1,350; to the runner-up $800.

Staging a gallant finish, MacDonald Smith, Los Angeles, four times winner of this tournament and a defending champion, came in for third place, two strokes back, with 287, winning $600. Fourth were Gene Sarazen of New York and Willie Goggin of San Francisco, who took 288 strokes to receive $450 each.

Leading by five strokes, with 18 holes to play, Revolta caught up with trouble as he plodded home.

Flurries of cold rain swept in on him as he played in the last threesome of the day. Revolta fought on gamely, but the odds were great and the pressure began to tell.

Loses Stroke on 14th.

He took a six on the 14th, losing one stroke. His par on the short 15th was not good enough, as Ghezzi previously had birdied the hole with a two, result of a long putt. Revolta three putted the 16th from the edge of the green to lose another stroke, and then caught a trap on the 17th.

He exploded out, but needed two putts to get down from 12 feet away, taking five where his eastern rival had picked up a birdie three, and the match was squared.

To the 18th he came, needing a par to win, as Ghezzi had taken a bogey five. His second caught a shallow trap to the right of the green. He tried to explode out but failed to clear the trap. He steadied his nerves, however, and taking a mashie, chipped the ball crisply, three feet past the cup. Revolta then stepped up to the ball and smacked it into the cup for a tie.

MacDonald Smith, nine strokes back of the leaders, with 18 holes to go, made a determined finish. But the gap was too wide to close completely in spite of his handsome 69, one under par.

Espinosa, Lacey Get 68.

The best score of the day was turned in by Abe Espinosa, Chicago, when he shot a 68 on the morning round, and Charley Lacey of Long Island, N. Y., who finished with the same score.

Tied for fifth place, back of Goggin and Sarazen, were Lacey, Floyd Farley of Oklahoma City; Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill.; and Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, Kas. Each received $178.75.

Five strokes back of the leaders were such stars as Paul Runyan, national P. G. A. champion; Olin Dutra, national open titleholder; Jimmie Thomson, recent winner of the Australian open, and Henry Picard, north-south champion. Their 290 totals were worth $67.50 apiece.

Maxie Rosenbloom Beats Nelson in Ten Rounds

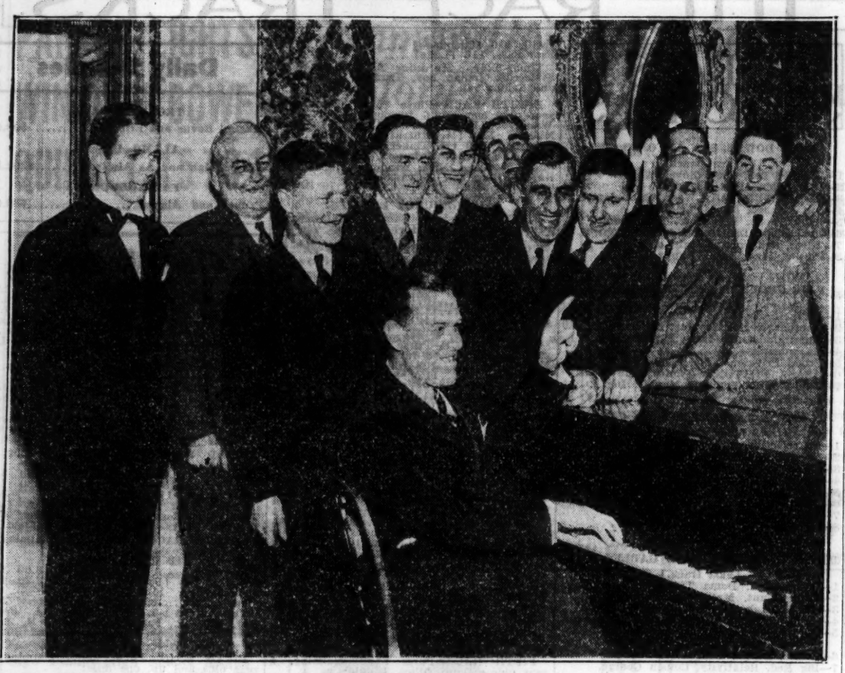
SING, BOYS SING—BUT NOT TOO LOUD



Leading athletes from every branch of athletics attended the sports carnival at the Medinah Athletic club last night, where they were the guests of J. L. McKee, club president. Among those at the banquet and boxing matches were (left to right), back row, Bob Elson, W-G-N announcer, master of ceremonies; McKee, Clem Loughlin, manager of the Blackhawks; Eddie Froelich, Blackhawk trainer; Lorne Chabot, Blackhawk goalie; H. C. Abbott, former Chicago quarter back. Front row: Red McCarthy, Olympic skater; Roger Peckinpaugh, former manager of Cleveland Indians; Gunnar Paulsen, ski jumper; Charlie Peterson, billiard star; Jimmy Evans, former Northwestern guard. Cards Disband After Winning Seven Straight

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 14.—The Chicago Cardinals, still gleeful over their 13 to 9 score against the Chicago Bears Sunday, disbanded for the season today.

Since leaving home in late November, the Cardinals have accumulated seven straight victories. Among their victims are leaders of the three recognized pro leagues of the country; Kansas City Blues, American league champions; California Giants, Pacific league champions; Chicago Bears, highest percentage eleven of the National league. Artistically, therefore, the tour has been a success with prestige accrued for next fall. Financially, it was a standoff, owing to unfavorable weather for several contests.

Boys Leave for East.

Many players left for the east tonight. Others went to San Francisco to join Nevers' All-Stars for the game against the New York Giants next Sunday. Dave Cook, Phil Handler, Lou Gorden, Milan Creighton, Bill Smith, and Phil Harboe will oppose the champions.

Coach Paul Schissler remained to make arrangements for combating an attachment of the Cardinals' share of Sunday's gate, approximately $3,750. Suit was filed by a Fresno promoter who alleges breach of contract to play there. Defense is that the promoter was unable to post in advance sufficient guarantees for the Chicago eleven's appearance.

Bears Want Another Chance.

Promoters and the Bears offered alternative inducements for a return game here next Sunday. This was impossible because so many of the boys were to be in San Francisco. Schissler will return to Chicago before going home to Hastings, Neb., to give personal supervision to his investment and insurance firm until next fall.

BOSTON BRAVES CAN'T FIND PARK FOR 1935 GAMES

Own Field Is Leased for Dog Races.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The financial plight of the homeless Boston Braves was tossed back into the lap of the National league today, due to the breaking of a long term lease by the owners of Braves field, now rented to the Boston Kennel club for dog racing this summer, and the simultaneous refusal of the Boston Red Sox to let the National leaguers share Fenway park for baseball.

To seek a solution of this vexing problem, Ford C. Frick, president of the National league, called a special meeting of league club owners here Friday after a conference with Emil E. Fuchs, former New York magistrate who has been president of the Braves since 1925. Also at today's conference were Harvey Traband, secretary-treasurer of the league, and Leo J. Bondy, an attorney. Bondy is treasurer of the New York Giants, but said he was representing "outside interests."

Braves Behind on Rent.

The conferees did not reveal details of the financial entanglements of the Boston club, which led to the action of the Gaffney estate, owners of Braves field, in cancelling the baseball lease. It was understood, however, that the ball club was substantially in arrears on the rent. The lease had until 1946 to run.

After Fuchs made it plain he is no way connected with the dog racing venture, Frick talked by telephone with Tom Yawkey, millionaire president of the Red Sox, and was told emphatically that the Sox are not interested in a proposal to share their grounds with their National league rivals.

NO PLACE TO GO

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—For the first time since 1876, when they became a charter member of the National league, the Boston Braves today appeared to be a homeless baseball club.

Racing dogs, a subject that greatly upset league officials during the December meeting, seem to have chased Boston's oldest ball club out of the palatial park built with the profits of its greatest team, George Stalling's heroic 1914 Braves.

That team amazed the baseball world by driving from last place on the Fourth of July, winning the pennant, and then taking four straight world series' games from the favorite Philadelphia Athletics.

Collins Sees Yawkey.

Ever since Emil Fuchs, Braves' president, upset his fellow magnates by lining up with a corporation seeking a dog racing track license, trouble has been brewing for baseball.

Today Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, announced that Owner Tom Yawkey had refused Fuchs' request to allow the Braves to play their home games in his Fenway park.

Then came the official announcement that the Braves had been ousted from Braves field, made by Arthur C. Wise, treasurer of the Commonwealth Real Estate company, which acts as trustees for the heirs of James E. Gaffney, who owned the ball club from 1912 through 1915.

"We no longer consider the Braves as our tenant," Wise said. "They have not lived up to the terms of their lease and we have declared it broken. We have negotiated with the Boston Kennel club, Inc., and a lease is in the process of being written."

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ON THE SCREEN.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 14.—The Wake at last has been filmed as an actor in "Dante's Inferno," to be brought out next March. For guidance of Mae Tinée in reviewing the picture, or interested readers, if any, following our temporary movie career, we are easily recognizable.

Our first appearance in this pretentious film to cost $800,000 is among the crowd of supposed visitors at the Coney Island concession, part of the same scene on which we worked two whole days. A developed film was shown us by the camera man. We are the left ear and gray fedora hat at the back of the crowd gazing over the railing into the depths of Hades.

In this view we're saying "O" in horror along with the others, but that part doesn't show in the picture, only the left ear and gray fedora. We hope for favorable mention of our latent ability from Mae Tinée because it may mean much to our future.

Of course we could have been more prominent by pushing a little brunette—one of the few in Hollywood—out of the way and crowding into the first row. Perhaps, wisely, we concluded too rapid advancement might arouse jealousy of the other actors. Here's our thoughts: "Don't do that, Wake. You have plenty of time. How will showing your mobile contenance instead of only your left ear and gray fedora improve your value to Friend Arch in picking Kentucky Derby winners or forecasting football games?" We're just like that in our loyalty to Friend Arch and fidelity to our regular job.

We were so thoroughly exhausted by this inaugural screen effort that Director Lachman noted our fatigue and said, "You're tired, you better call it a day, Harvey. We probably can use you in a closeup in the courtroom scene with some lines." Calling a script girl, he said, "Give Harvey his courtroom scene lines." She brought them typed on a large sheet of paper.

We didn't dare read our lines until we arrived home lest they be too complicated for our limited experience. Then we opened the paper and there they were—"I object!" We're practicing them assiduously. More experiences at another time.

Hanley Still on Coast.

Dick Hanley, resigned Northwestern university football coach, is still in these parts. He came from San Francisco after the East-West benefit game for which he and Andy Kerr coached the eastern eleven. Hanley plays golf with Howard Jones and Bill Spaulding, coaches at Southern California and U. C. L. A., respectively; Grantland Rice and Francis Powers, newspaper writers, usually turning in the low count. Hanley will return to Evanston the latter part of the month. He has made no decision concerning several tentative offers for next fall.

Senators.

This is jist an old, old woman—
I'm supposed to git my thrills
In a-washin' up the dishes,
Scrubbin' floors an' dishin' pills.
But the senators amuse me,
They're jist little boys growed up.
They remind me of my Willie
When he fussed about our pup.
'Course he didn't hit reporters,
Bet a cooky thet he would
If they didn't git for cover
When he told them to be good.
Now you jist quit blamin' "Huey,"
He's some mother's little boy;
Merely lost his sense of humor
But he fills her heart with joy.

RALLY IN LAST MINUTES DOWNS PURPLE, 33 TO 31

Gophers Lose, 39-33, to Hawkeyes.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Purdue came from behind in the closing minutes of play tonight to defeat Northwestern, 33 to 31, in a Big Ten basketball game.

BOB KESSLER.

It was the third conference victory in four starts for Purdue and the third successive Big Ten defeat for the Wildcats. Brilliant work under the basket by Bob Kessler, who led the evening's scoring with six field goals and three free throws, was the margin of Purdue's superiority.

The second half was bitterly contested throughout. The Wildcats held a 19 to 18 lead at half time. Pendergast, who replaced Fischer, Northwestern's star forward, when he went out on fouls with seven and one-half minutes left to play in the first half, threw a scare into the Purdue camp by scoring two field goals in rapid succession and adding a free throw to give Northwestern a 24 to 18 lead.

Purdue Speeds Up.

Purdue sped up as the Wildcats committed costly fouls under the basket. These penalties accounted for four consecutive points on free throws by Seward and Cottom. Seward then hooked in a field goal from under the basket to tie the score, 24 to 24.

For the next five minutes Northwestern kept forging into a two point lead only to have Purdue tie it up again. Vance scored on a rebound to put Northwestern back in the lead, but Baumbach whittled the margin to one point, 30 to 29, when he scored on Kawal's fourth personal foul.

Pendergast counted on Seward's foul to make it 31 to 29, but Kessler tied it up at 31 to 31 on two successive free throws following fouls by Mercer.

Purdue Gets Break.

The break of the game came with three minutes left to play when Baumbach slapped in a rebound under the basket to put the Boilermakers into the lead for the first time since they had held a 15 to 13 advantage late in the first half.

With three seconds left to play, Baumbach fouled Bender, who bounced his free throw off the backboard in the hope that one of his mates could tip in a field goal and tie the score. Cottom, however, obtained the ball and the game was over.

IOWA, 39; MINNESOTA, 33

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Led by Johnny Barko, forward, who scored 16 points, Iowa's Hawkeyes marked up their fourth consecutive Big Ten basketball triumph here tonight, defeating Minnesota, 39 to 33, in a spectacular overtime battle attended by 8,200. The victory left the Hawkeyes alone at the top of the conference standing.

Trailing by one point with only 30 seconds of play remaining, the Gophers forced the contest into overtime when Mickey Kupperberg made good a free throw on a foul by Johnny Grim. But the Hawkeyes took a four point lead early in the overtime on two successive field goals by Barko and retained control the rest of the way.

Score 19 to 16 at Half.

Barko led the Hawkeye attack in the first half, counting 10 points as Iowa stepped into a 19 to 16 lead at half time.

With eight minutes to play the Gophers tied the count at 26-all, but Barko again made a field goal to put the Hawks into the lead. Kupperberg then knotted the score again, but the

CANZONERI SHIES AT WEIGHT FOR BOUT WITH RODAK

Holds Up Plans for Next Show at Stadium.

A weight disagreement is holding up signing of the proposed ten round tussle between Leo Rodak and Tony Canzoneri at Chicago Stadium late this month. Canzoneri, who weighed 140 for a recent knockout conquest of Eddie Ran, refuses to consider coming in at less than 135 pounds. Rodak is attempting to force the former lightweight titleholder to make 133 pounds. Co-Matchmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis are confident of ironing out the matter. The matchmakers are seeking an opponent for Eddie [Babe] Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., middleweight on the same card.

There has been considerable discussion among fans for the last month whether Joe Louis, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion and now the outstanding heavyweight contender, or Lee Ramage, San Diego, Cal., was winning up to the time their bout at Chicago Stadium on Dec. 14 was awarded to Louis on a technical knockout in the eighth round. Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission settled the argument yesterday when he brought forth the score cards of officials in the bout.

A study of the cards disclosed that prior to the start of the eighth round Judges Ed Klein and Rube Metz had scored in favor of Louis, 37 to 33 and 38 to 32, respectively. Referee Phil Collins' score was 36 to 34 for Ramage. Round by round tally by the three officials follows:

JUDGE KLEIN.

Ramage	4	6	6	4	5	4	4
Louis	6	4	4	6	5	6	6

JUDGE METZ.

Ramage	5	5	4	4	6	4	4
Louis	5	5	6	6	4	6	6

REFEREE COLLINS.

Ramage	5	6	6	4	6	4	5
Louis	5	4	4	6	4	6	5

Perhaps Louis' handlers had knowledge of the official scores. At any rate, contrary to advice of friends, they signed for a return contest between Louis and Ramage at Los Angeles, Cal., on Feb. 21.

Stanley Petyre, heavyweight protégé of Marty Cutler, former sparring partner for Jack Dempsey, will box Ed Luebker in one of eight bouts tomorrow at Community Recreation center. Verne Patterson, Central A. A. U. bantamweight champion, has been paired with Joe Minneci, Waukegan, Ill., featherweight. Other encounters will involve Harold Brown and Barney Peterson, and Jerry Mathieu and Kenny Lottman.

Gene Meany of the west side was officially appointed secretary of the state athletic commission yesterday to replace Louis [Chip] London, resigned.

Champion Max Baer will box Jimmy Maloney, former Boston heavyweight challenger, now a Miami, Fla., policeman, in a four round exhibition at Miami, Jan. 24. Barney Ross will defend his junior welterweight crown in the main event. Buddy Baer, Max's heavyweight brother, will meet Frank Davenport in a six round preliminary.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago boxer, sustained an injury to his elbow in his losing fight against Lou Ambers last week and will be out of action for at least five weeks.

HAWKS' OFFER TO TAFFY ABEL IS TURNED DOWN

Defense Star Says Split Is Over $88.33.

Tuesday to Manager Clem Loughlin, when he ran out of Sunday's game. Every effort was made to locate him up till game time with no success or clews.

With Two Cup Teams.

"All of Abel's transportation, training, and living expenses, up till Tuesday morning, have been assumed by the Blackhawk management.

"It now appears that Owner McLaughlin's patience with Abel has been exhausted and that he never again will appear in a Blackhawk uniform."

Abel, who entered major league hocky with the New York Rangers in 1926, was purchased by the Hawks in 1929. He has played on two Stanley cup teams, with the Rangers in 1928-'29, and with the Hawks last season. He is 33 years old.

LEAFS HERE TONIGHT

Toronto's Maple Leafs, with their famed "kid" line consisting of Charley Conacher, Joe Primeau, and Harvey Jackson, will be the Blackhawks' opponents tonight at the Stadium. The game was scheduled originally for Tuesday, Feb. 26, but because the Golden Gloves tournament of champions is scheduled for that night it became necessary to move the game forward.

The change in the schedule will cause the two teams to meet three times in eight days. One of the games was played at Toronto Saturday. The other two will be played in Chicago tonight and next Sunday. Sunday's game will make the last 1934-'35 appearance of the Leafs in Chicago unless the teams meet in the Stanley cup playoffs.

Held Edge Last Year.

Last season the Blackhawks and the Canadiens were the only two teams who had the edge on the Toronto squad in the season's play. The Hawks won three games, lost two, and tied one with Toronto. This season the Leafs have won the three games played with the Hawks, 5-0, 5-1, and 1-0.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Leafs has so many good lines at times he is in a quandary as to which one to start. Of late he has been starting a line made up of Buzz Boll, Bill Thoms, and Hec Kilrea. This line is the Leafs' speed outfit. The inclination this season, however, is to alternate the starting forward lines with each successive game, which would indicate that the hocky customers will get a decidedly early glimpse of Conacher, Primeau, and Jackson.

Use Amateur Stars.

Two veterans, Andy Blair and Hal Cotton, and two youngsters, Nick Metz and Pep Kelly, are switched at various times to make up Toronto's third front line. Kelly and Metz are graduates from the amateur ranks of last season and Blair and Cotton have seen a half dozen years of service apiece with Connie Smythe's team.

Tonight's lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		MAPLE LEAFS.
Chabot	G	Hainsworth
Burke	D	Day
Coulter	D	Hollet
Morenz	C	Primeau

PIRRONE LOSES TO DUNDEE IN 10 ROUND BOUT

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Vince Dundee, Newark's veteran middleweight, fought his way back into the forefront of the middleweight fight picture tonight by whipping Paul Pirrone in ten furious rounds. Each weighed 160 pounds.

A packed house of 10,000 applauded the former titleholder. Pirrone could win only one round.

Dundee's left had Pirrone baffled until the eighth round. Then Paul rocked Dundee with a series of smashing rights, interspersed with looping lefts. In that round the only blood of the fight was spilled as Dundee suffered a cut on the bridge of his nose.

The bout left Dundee as the ranking challenger to meet Teddy Yarosz of Pittsburgh, the champion.

NEW GAME LAWS REDUCE KILL OF DUCKS DURING '34

Peoria, Ill., Jan 14.—[Special.]—New game laws and "duck sense" reduced the number of ducks killed in the Illinois river valley during the 1934-'35 season that closed last night.

Approximately 35 per cent of birds taken in the 1934 barrage from the river bottom lands were killed during the 30 day season which opened last October, according to Stephen Creech, United States game management agent.

Birds Seem to Know.

"The birds," he said, "seemed to take advantage of the split season to the disadvantage of hunters in surrounding states as well as Illinois. On Saturdays the hunting was good, but the following day the ducks laid low and in general hunters had to scratch to get anything.

"Curtailment of shooting to weekends, I believe, did much toward saving the birds, despite the fact that each hunter probably was out more times than he would have been during an ordinary straight season. Ducks have been dwindling each season for the last several years and the season just closed was no exception."

Conditions Are Better.

It is too early to tell what was accomplished in the way of preserving the game by breaking the season into short periods, halting shooting at 3 p. m. on baited grounds and other new regulations, however, Mr. Creech said he found conditions throughout his district better than they have been for several years. The number who hunted during the prohibited period between week-ends was surprisingly small.

Conditions in the breeding areas of the north during the coming summer, proposed federal preserves, and the results of the past season's regulation will have important bearing on new regulations for the 1935 season, he said.

Oppose Split Season.

Many Illinois hunters, disappointed with the split season, will oppose another split season. They are reported offering as a substitute a system of zoning the state, with different shooting periods for northern, central and southern areas.

IRISH ELEVEN TO BE HONORED AT DINNER TONIGHT

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame football team and coaches of 1934 will be honored at the fifteenth annual civic testimonial dinner sponsored by the Notre Dame club of the St. Joseph Valley here tomorrow night. Will Rogers is scheduled to be the principal speaker.

Rogers advised the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of the university, that he will attempt to attend an aviation meeting Father O'Hara has called for tomorrow afternoon. He planned to leave Los Angeles tonight by plane, weather permitting.

Among other prominent sports figures on the program are Noble Kizer, athletic director and football coach at Purdue; Clark Shaughnessy, University of Chicago football coach; Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern university; Charles Bachman, Michigan State football coach; Arch Ward and Warren Brown, Chicago sports editors.

Common House Cat Leaves Story of Prowling in Snow

BY BOB BECKER.

No inventory of snow tracks which all of us may see in fields and woods during the winter would be complete without mention of the record left by the common house cat. If the house cat stayed in or around the house it wouldn't be in the list of predators which tell their stories to us by means of records in the snow. But the trouble is the half-tame, half-wild felines in many cases spend much of their time hunting in the open and preying on bird life.

The house cat leaves a distinctive foot mark in the snow, one that is quite typical of the feline hunter of any size. In the case of the fox there is an imprint of nails in the snow. not be surprised to find the tracks of the cat connected with the kill of a bird. On THE TRIBUNE experimental farm the snow already has told the story of one prowling cat that caught a quail.

Anybody who looks for tracks in the snow is bound to see those of the house dog, because nearly every farm has one or more dogs. Inasmuch as we still have coyotes prowling around Chicagoland, one may confuse the tracks of that animal with those of a canine of the same size. This point of difference between them is important: The foot of a dog spreads out to an extent not found in a coyote. Therefore the nail marks of the two

The snow track of the house cat shows no such feature.

Snow Tracks Tell of Kill.

The four toes and the ball of the foot are clean impressions which feature the snow tracks of the lynx and other predators in the cat family. Around Chicago the outdoor fan need middle toes of the dog are about twice as far apart of those of his wild relatives.

Skunk Mark Is Distinctive.

The snow track of the skunk is peculiar among our fur bearers and not likely to be mistaken for that of other animals. Although its relative, the weasel, travels by a series of jumps, the skunk maintains a steady walking pace, so that the footprints are quite evenly spaced. They also are spread to make a wide trail.

Ordinarily skunks will hole up and sleep during very cold winter weather. Therefore one is not apt to see their snow tracks except when the weather is rather mild. Then they do most of their prowling at night. Although trapped constantly during the open season, the skunk manages to maintain its numbers fairly well, so we have them all through Chicagoland. Many have been seen or taken on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm during the last year.

DROUILLARD AND WILLIAMS WIN 8 ROUND BATTLES

Orville Drouillard, Windsor, Ont., featherweight, and Holman Williams, Detroit lightweight, won eight round decisions in windup bouts at two Chicago boxing shows last night.

Drouillard whipped Paul Lee, Indianapolis, Ind., at Marigold Gardens, and Williams beat Harry Booker, Chicago, at Midway arena. Drouillard scored a knockdown in the second round. Walter [Puggy] Weinert, Brighton Park welterweight, defeated Mickey O'Shea in the six round Marigold semi-final. Bob Tinsley, making his profesional debut, stopped Gary Baldwin in the third round. Tinsley scored two knockdowns. Syl Saliski beat Eddie Schiller, and Biff Bennett beat Rudy Sterbenz in four round preliminary contests.

Booker, dropped three times in the fourth round and once in the fifth, rallied in the last three rounds, but Williams' lead was too much for him. Georgie Goodman, Golden Gloves graduate, celebrated his return to Chicago by scoring a five round technical knockout over Floyd Embrey. Eddie Jackson, Catholic Youth Organization lightweight, was awarded a five round verdict over Bobby Mullins, Vincennes, Ind. Sammy Adams conquered Spud Kelly in four rounds, and George Jonasen threw Joe Gotch in a wrestling exhibition.

TILDEN, VINES WIN; FIRST SET GOES TO 29-31

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines gained their fourth doubles victory in five starts against George Lott and Lester Stoefen by scores of 29-31, 6-3, 6-4, before 5,500 spectators at the Boston Garden tonight.

The first set, probably the longest ever played in either professional or amateur doubles, went to the 1934 Davis cup players after Lott's placement broke down Tilden's service in the 59th game. George then held his own to run out the set.

Games went with service until Tilden yielded his delivery in the 35th game, which gave Lott and Stoefen an 18-17 lead. Lott, however, was unable to stand the pressure his brilliant rivals applied against his service in the next game and broke to square the set.

Before the doubles match Tilden gained an 8-6, 7-5 singles victory over Lott.

NATIONAL STARS TO FACE CHICAGO SKIERS SUNDAY

Norge Club Will Hold 29th Annual Tourney.

Results of the ski tournament Sunday at Oconomowoc, Wis., indicate that Chicago jumpers will provide strong opposition to the nation's stars when the Norge Ski club holds its 29th annual tournament Sunday at Fox River Grove, Ill.

Karl Nilsen of the Norge club, who won the senior event, was the only Chicago skier to take a first place, but other members of the team finished second and third.

Norge Jumpers Improve.

Interest centers around improvement being shown by Norge jumpers who are appearing in the class B events for the first time. Harvey Nilsen was second at Oconomowoc, while Buddy Engedahl, Kelvin Park High school student, also showed promise.

Two others, Howard Jansen and Orris Wingsnes, have been training in California and also should show well in class B.

The feature class A event will include America's best skiers, but Chicago entrants should pick up points. George Gundersen and Ole Besseberg took second and third in the Oconomowoc meet, behind Walter Bietila. Gunnar Oman, who was a favorite, looked in championship form despite the fact a high wind seemed to bother him more than the other riders.

They all are desirous of renewing their feud with Bietila, although jumpers such as Roy Mikkelsen, Harold Sorensen, Casper Oimen, and others may leave them in the cold.

Import Michigan Snow.

In the meantime, Chicago with no snow at all is becoming the ski center of the country. Other meets have been postponed because of unusually cold weather, and the Norge meet appears to be the first real opportunity to watch the jumpers who will represent the United States in the Olympics. Snow for the Norge meet is being imported from Escanaba, Mich.

DEMOCRATS PUT 'IN MIDDLE' OVER CENSOR CHARGE

Must Make Inquiry or Face Criticism.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Appointment of a special house committee to investigate charges that the administration and its agencies were seeking to curb the freedom of the press and radio broadcasting was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Martin Dies of Texas.

The resolution directed attention to a charge by an unnamed senator and others that the NRA through the newspaper code was seeking "to shackle the press" and require it to favor the administration.

Press Agents Hired.

Cognizance also was taken of the fact that the unnamed senator had charged the administration with hiring hundreds of newspapermen to act as press agents for federal agencies and in this capacity to discriminate and favor newspapers upholding the policies of the administration.

Besides the unnamed senator, generally recognized as Senator Thomas D. Schall, charges against the administration's press relations were attributed to "the secretary to a former President and by a prominent newspaper publisher."

Democrats in "Middle."

One Republican house member remarked that if the resolution was rejected, the Democrats would be put in the vulnerable position of being charged with fearing possible disclosures, while on the other hand, should the investigation be authorized, the administration would itself be in an uncomfortable position.

"The untrammelled freedom of the press is indispensable to the maintenance of free government in the United States, and its continuing independence essential to the welfare and happiness of the people," said the resolution, under which Speaker Joseph W. Byrns would be directed to appoint a committee of seven house members with power to subpena witnesses and blanket authority to investigate all charges recited in the Dies proposal.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, who is to return to the air tonight for a new series by way of W-G-N and MBS, hasn't always been a singer. A few years ago he was playing the title rôle of "Cyrano de Bergerac" at a New York theater. When the point was reached in the play where Cyrano sang to the girl on the balcony, Tracy was relieved from the wings by Don Mario, the tenor who has lately become the leadliner of NBC'S Penthouse Serenade. Often in the dressing room, however, Tracy would hum the songs.

Years later when Tracy had become a radio star and Don Mario was appearing in Spanish pictures in Hollywood he heard a strangely familiar voice announced as that of "The Street Singer." Tracy had not at that time been publicly revealed as the Street Singer. But Mario was certain that it was the voice of "Cyrano" as heard in the dressing room. He investigated and found that he was right.

Art Jarrett, the singing guitarist, formerly with Ted Weems and Earl Burtnett, is to make his bow as an orchestra leader over W-G-N from the Blackhawk restaurant Saturday, Jan. 26. The good looking singer, who is the husband of Eleanor Holm, Olympic swimmer, will take Kay Kyser's place while Kyser makes a three week tour playing college dances in Dixie, including his alma mater, the University of North Carolina. Kay will return to the Blackhawk after his swing southward.

Jane Froman has turned down an offer to play in a London musical comedy in order to continue on the air and to make a try in movieland next summer. She has had a film test made and will go coastward in June. . . . If "Calling All Stars," the revue featuring Phil Baker, closes, as is expected, Baker will bring his radio troupe back to Chicago. . . . Bob Trout, for many years Presidential announcer for CBS, has joined the regular CBS staf at New York. . . . Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle and Budd, radio's gloom chasers, will make an appearance at the Palace theater beginning Friday.

Negotiations to make WHN, New York, the new key station for the American Broadcasting system have fallen through. The New York outlet for the George B. Storer network will be WNEW, owned and operated by Milton Blow. This station occupies the studio in which Ed Wynn's ill fated network held forth. WIND and WJJD will continue the local outlets.

George Olsen, and his two young sons, Charles and George Jr., are soaking up the sunshine in Miami Beach for a few days. Ethel Shutta, the wife and mother, is keeping the home fires burning. George is trying to shake a bad cold. The trio plans to fly back to Chicago next Monday.

U. S. OPENS SUIT TO BAR HOWELL FROM GRAIN PIT

Evidence on Market Deals Taken Here.

Taking of evidence in an action in which the United States government is seeking to disbar Thomas M. Howell, Chicago "mystery man" of the grain market, from further trading in the grain pits was started yesterday in the Appraisers' Stores building before John C. Brooke, a referee representing the department of agriculture. The government alleges Mr. Howell conspired to manipulate the grain market in violation of the grain futures act.

Leo F. Tierney, an attorney for the department of agriculture, who conducted the case against Arthur W. Cutten in the same room last spring, is prosecuting the federal action against Mr. Howell. The present action differs from that brought against Cutten. In the Cutten case, which is still pending, the government alleged that the grain operator violated the provisions of the grain futures act in failing to make the proper reports.

Brokerage Accounts Examined.

Mr. Tierney, who has been described as the Pecora of the grain trading cases, spent the greater part of yesterday's hearing in having Henry T. Hermes, a Chicago partner of Thomson & McKinnon, brokers, identify trading records concerning Mr. Howell.

The pattern of Mr. Tierney's examination endeavored to link Mr. Howell with corn transactions carried on through the Toronto and New York offices of Thomson & McKinnon. The high spot in yesterday's action was the presentation of three checks, one for $44,759 made out to Frank E. Bliss, a second for $44,728 made out to Arthur De Cordova, and a third to Kelly Butler for $46,872. All had been canceled by the Continental Illinois bank with a rubber stamp bearing the name of Thomas Howell.

Howell's Attorneys Hint Appeal.

Attorneys for Mr. Howell, including Sidney S. Gorham and Edward R. Adams, objected to introduction of much of the evidence, holding that Mr. Hermes was not personally acquainted with what the records of his office purported to show.

That the case will be brought before the United States Court of Appeals was indicated during a clash between Gorham and Tierney. The latter had criticized Howell's attorneys for their objections to the identification of the records by Hermes. Howell's attorneys said the objections were being made because they did not believe Hermes' identification would stand up in a court of law.

"You are afraid of the commission," Tierney said, meaning the grain futures commission, which will ultimately hear the case.

"We have no illusions about the commission," Gorham answered.

Records Involve Corn Trades.

The records introduced yesterday included those covering transactions wherein a large amount of cash corn was transferred by the Toronto office of Thomson & McKinnon to the Norris Grain company during July, 1931. While Howell's name was not mentioned, the government's implication was that he had participated in them through agents.

Howell did not appear at the opening session, but may be called upon to testify later. The case ultimately will be brought before the grain futures commission.

At the opening session Referee Brooke rejected a motion of the Howell defense to quash the action and at the same time the Howell attorneys denied that there had been a violation of the grain futures act, as alleged by the government.

CUTTEN RULING NEXT MONTH.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The case of Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago grain trader accused of violating the futures act, is expected to be decided by the grain futures commission about Feb. 15.

Arguments by Leo F. Tierney, government attorney, and Orville Taylor, Cutten's counsel, were heard by the commission Saturday. Its members, Secretaries Wallace and Roper, and Attorney General Cummings, closely questioned Taylor on the points he contended were faulty in the government's case.

Murchison Made President of Chicago Curb Exchange

T. E. Murchison of Paul H. Davis & Co. yesterday was elected president of the Chicago Curb exchange at the annual meeting. George Barnes was chosen vice president to succeed Mr. Murchison. Charles B. Essroger and Moritz Loeb were renamed treasurer and secretary, respectively. George T. Williams was elected to fill a one year vacancy on the board of governors. Reëlected for full three year terms on the board were Emmett G. Barker, Kenneth L. Cooper, Leo J. Doyle, and William D. Kerr.

Grain Board Can Rule Self Best—Boylan

Complete adherence by every member to the letter and spirit of rules of the Chicago Board of Trade will ultimately supersede all outside regulation, Robert P. Boylan, president, told members at the annual meeting yesterday at which he assumed his new office. He succeeds Peter B. Carey, who headed the organization for the last three years.

"Our regulations are the most stringent of self-made rules, and it is inevitable that many are irksome to individuals," he said. "But regulation from within is immeasurably preferable and complete coöperation in this respect cannot help but work for the best interests of the whole membership and the exchange itself."

Cites Legislative Problem.

Boylan cited several problems confronting the exchange, among which are the proposal to place a 5 cent Illinois tax on each $100 value of futures transactions, a proposed federal tax as a penalty on short sales, and growing encroachment of government in regulation of exchanges.

"Legislation at Washington is proposed and reintroduced year after year," he continued. "Some of it has been inspired by a spirit of vindictiveness, some for vote getting purposes, and some through lack of knowledge of grain exchanges and their economic functions. It is axiomatic that vindictive bills, seeking penalties, are destructive and harmful to the nation's business."

He described successful efforts of exchange officials in bringing about a cut of 40 per cent in the federal tax on transactions, from 5 to 3 cents per $100, and said an attempt will be made to reduce the impost to 1 cent for each $100.

Specter of Surplus Fades.

Retiring President Carey's annual report said the specter of unwieldy grain surpluses has faded from the American scene. This nation has sprung suddenly from a surplus to an importing grain country, he said. He warned that an indiscriminate import policy may bring serious harm to farmers and renew rural unrest.

He said new laws on grain marketing are not needed, except to open up foreign markets for any future surpluses. He assailed government tampering in various nations, pointing to the recent disastrous results in France through price pegging attempts. Liquid, open domestic markets and a free flow of grain between surplus and needy nations, he declared, provide the solution of the wheat problem.

Operations of the Board of Trade last year resulted in net income of $127,840. Dues have been reduced from $300 annually per member to $250.

CHICAGO TITLE TRUST DIVIDEND MAY BE RESUMED

Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the board of the Chicago Title and Trust company, yesterday told stockholders that resumption of dividends may be expected this year if earnings continue at their 1934 level and general business conditions are satisfactory.

Business of a temporary nature, such as that caused by government activities, has contributed to the 1934 showing, said Gen. Davis. Earnings from normal sources through satisfactory general conditions must be found to take the place of the temporary income, he explained. The other condition necessary to resuming dividends has been accomplished—a writing down of stated values to bring them in line with present day values.

Gen. Davis defended the policy of the company in taking an active part in property reorganizations to prevent demoralization of values. Holman D. Pettibone, Morton D. Hull, Laird Bell, Justin M. Dall, H. B. Riley, and Gen. Davis—the six directors whose terms expired—were reëlected to the board.

REJECT UTILITY'S OFFER TO LOWER U. S. LIGHT COST

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—An offer by the Consolidated Gas company to reduce the federal government's lighting cost in New York City by $60,000 a year has been rejected by Rear Admiral Reuben E. Bakenhus as insufficient, it was disclosed today. Correspondence between Admiral Bakenhus and Floyd L. Carlisle, president of the utility company, was made public by Basil Manly, chairman of the President's committee on power coördination.

Admiral Bakenhus is in charge of government plans for construction of power and lighting plant here. He wrote Carlisle that government studies indicated a greater saving would be obtained by construction of its own plant. Carlisle had recommended the "Washington plan" of rate reductions.

Meanwhile city officials planned to go ahead with plans for a municipal power plant unless Mayor F. H. La Guardia's demands for lower rates are met by the company.

SUGAR 'CORNER' DATA DEMANDED OF SEC. WALLACE

Senate Blames New Deal Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The senate today demanded that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace investigate and explain the December sugar squeeze.

Shortly after convening today the senate adopted the resolution introduced by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] calling on Wallace to discover and report the names of those speculators who cornered the supply of December sugar and reaped a profit by being in a position where they could dictate the price. The resolution states bluntly that the sugar squeeze was made possible by the New Deal sugar control program and raises the question of revising the controls so that they will not become tools in the hands of speculators.

Questions Cuban Marketing.

Disclosure of those who benefited by the squeeze is awaited with interest here because of rumors that persons in or near the New Deal were among those who benefited at the expense of the New Deal system itself.

Besides asking the identity of those who rigged the corner on the December market, the Vandenberg resolution asks that Wallace explain the peculiar marketing of the 1924 Cuban sugar crop in this country since the Cubans' actions fitted perfectly with the rigging of the corner. The state department, incidentally, approved the Cubans' action, despite AAA protests. The Vandenberg resolution also asks the identity of the banks which financed the Cubans and enabled them to carry out their marketing arrangements.

Charges U. S. Growers Harmed.

Senator Vandenberg protested "against further discrimination against the farmers of this country and in favor of the political and economic interests residing in Cuba" through operations of the Jones-Costigan act.

Officials asserted the sugar corner had reduced the market price from approximately $3.15 per hundred pounds to about $2.85. Effects of the operation, however, were not felt by domestic or American insular sugar interests at the time because they had filled their quotas and had little or no sugar to sell, it was added.

"As a result Cuban interests disposed of much of their stocks, which constituted about the only available sugar to fill contracts," one official said. "They maintained the price of $2.18½ they had agreed on during the latter part of 1934 during the period in December when these stocks were being disposed of."

TANNERY INSISTS FRANCE STICKS TO GOLD BASIS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

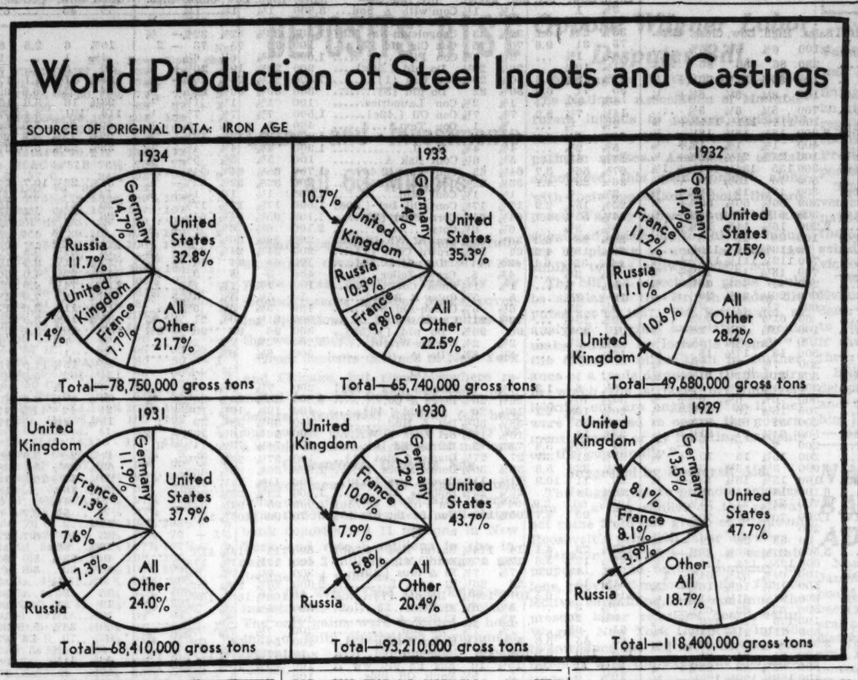
BASLE, Jan. 14.—Jean Tannery, new governor of the Bank of France, sought to reassure his colleagues at the 48th monthly meeting of the world bank board here today that France would stick to the gold standard and there would be no real change in the traditional policies of the Bank of France. He convinced some hearers that France expected both Great Britain and the United States to come back to her gold parity and had no intention of tying the franc separately or otherwise to either the pound or dollar.

It is understood here stabilization will be among the questions Premier Pierre Flandin will discuss when he goes to London. With the French, however, taking the position stated by Tannery and the British standing pat, bankers here seemed to expect little to come out of this discussion.

NATIONAL TEA'S DECEMBER SALES 9.4% ABOVE 1933

Sales of the National Tea company for the four weeks and one day ended Dec. 31, 1934, amounted to $5,400,557, compared with $4,934,844 in the corresponding period of 1933, a gain of 9.4 per cent, the company announced yesterday.

Total sales for the year were $61,333,373, compared with $62,608,610 in 1933, a decrease of 2 per cent. On Dec. 31, 1934, 1,245 stores were in operation, compared with 1,299 the preceding year, a drop of 4.16 per cent.



HAGUE COURT RULES GOLD CLAUSE INVALID; DUTCH BONDS DECLINE

THE HAGUE, Jan. 14.—(AP)—While the United States Supreme court has the question of gold bond interest payments under review, a Hague court today upheld the right of two Netherlands oil companies to abrogate the gold clause in $40,000,000 debenture issues.

The court upheld a lower court's judgment in favor of the Royal Dutch Oil company and the Bataafsche companie which opposed efforts of a bondholders' committee to obtain payment of interest on the 4 per cent issues in gold dollars. The decision can be appealed.

The court said its decision was based on the precedent of similar cases and ruled that interest was collectible only at the variable dollar rate.

Dutch Bonds Break.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The Hague's decision against the validity of the gold clause in bonds of two Netherlands oil companies which were floated here and in Amsterdam caused prices of several Dutch bonds to break sharply today. The Royal Dutch Oil company 4 per cent bonds broke 16 points, and City of Rotterdam 6 per cent bonds tumbled 9¾ points.

GOLD SUIT PUTS DOLLAR UP; MAY BRING IN METAL

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The prospect of renewed imports of gold from France was opened up today as the dollar continued to advance under the influence of a possible Supreme court decision in the gold clause cases which would upset recent monetary legislation.

The French franc fell a point to 6.59½ cents, which is close to the price at which gold can be moved here from Paris. At this level, the lowest in over a month, the dollar was equal to 100.58 per cent of its parity in terms of the franc.

Other foreign exchanges were correspondingly weak against the dollar. Sterling fell 2 cents to $4.88¾. Belgas, Swiss francs and guilders were below the import point, belgas losing 4 points at 23.38 cents, Swiss francs 4 points at 32.36 cents and guilders 8 points at 67.57 cents.

Scandinavian currencies were 6 to 9 points lower, while German marks lost 7 points to 40.13 cents and Canadian dollars 18¾ points to $1.00⅛.

A decision by the Supreme court upholding the validity of the gold clauses might have far reaching effects in the foreign exchange market, according to bankers. If such a decision resulted in the restoration of the dollar to its old parity, it would involve a rise of nearly 70 per cent in the present foreign exchange value of the dollar and a corresponding fall of 41 per cent in the dollar value of foreign currencies.

Under the circumstances there is no desire to hold unnecessarily large balances of foreign exchange between now and the time when the Supreme court gives its decision and there is a speculative incentive for foreigners to buy dollars.

ClearingHouse to Elect Officer Not from Loop

The election of 1935 officers of the Chicago Clearing House association today will witness a break from tradition in that its domination by loop bankers will be upset.

William C. Cummings, president of the Drovers National bank and the Drovers Trust and Savings bank at 47th street and Ashland avenue, is slated for election as vice president. It will be the first time that an outlying banker has been elected to an office.

In Line for Presidency.

If the present order of succession is followed Mr. Cummings will be made president of the association in 1936 or 1937. Mr. Cummings is chairman of the advisory committee for the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the 7th federal reserve district. He has been associated with the Drovers banks for thirty-five years and has been president for twenty years.

Fred A. Cuscaden, vice president and head of the bond department of the Northern Trust company, is slated to be elected president of the association today. He has been vice president and succeeds Frank R. Elliott, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, who has been head of the clearing house for two years.

Loop Bankers on Committee.

The clearing house committee will remain composed of the heads of the major loop banks. Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National bank, became chairman of the committee after the death of Melvin A. Traylor. This group has charge of policy matters.

Selection of Howard Sims as manager of the clearing house is the other order of business at today's meeting, which was described as routine in all respects except the election.

STEEL INSTITUTE RAISES OUTPUT ESTIMATE AGAIN

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The steel industry's operating rate has advanced to a national average of 47.5 per cent for the current week, said the estimate of the Iron and Steel institute issued today. This compares with 43.4 per cent last week, 34.6 per cent a month ago and 34.2 per cent a year ago. The gain over the preceding week is 4.1 points or 9.4 per cent.

This week's improvement is in line with the substantial gains in operating schedules reported since the middle of December. The current rate is the highest since last June and compares with the 1934 low of 18.4 per cent, registered in September.

Seed Men Predict All Crops Will Be Larger This Year

Every kind of crop in 1935 will be the largest in the last five or six years, according to members of the American Seed Trades association, holding their semi-annual meeting yesterday at the Hotel Sherman. Their opinions were based upon the incentive to growers that the general upward trend in commodity prices is creating and the shortage of crops last year, which boosted prices to the grower.

AUTOMOBILES, HOME BUILDING RECOVERY KEYS, AYRES ASSERTS

The output of automobiles and new residence construction will determine more than any other industrial factor the degree of recovery attained in 1935, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist of the Cleveland Trust company, said yesterday in a business survey.

These were the two most important elements in recovery from the depression of 1921, he said, and they played an important part in creating the prosperity period that followed.

"These industries are more intimately related to our standard of living than almost any others," he asserted. "Probably there is no great need for concern about the part to be played by the automobile industry in 1935. The new models have received the approval of the public, the prices are attractive to buyers, and the volume of orders is gratifyingly large.

"The outlook for residential building is less bright. Costs of new construction are too high and rents of existing homes are too low to tempt many families to undertake new building."

Automobiles, he said, were also largely responsible for the improvement in industrial production during December compared with November.

"Present prospects are that the iron and steel industry will do relatively well this year in those products of which individuals are the ultimate consumers and not so well where the final customers are corporations," he said. "Any revival of prosperity in the industry depends upon a resumption of profit making by large numbers of corporations in diversified fields and upon a greatly increased flow of new corporate financing."

MANUFACTURERS SEE NEW DANGER IN TAX PUBLICITY

There is danger of increased kidnaping, extortion and racketeering through publication of income taxes paid by individuals, as provided by the federal revenue act of 1934, according to a resolution passed yesterday by the directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

In effect such publicity would provide an official government list for the guidance of criminals, says the resolution, copies of which have been sent to the President, congressmen from Illinois, the secretary of the treasury, and the attorney general. Copies will also be sent to industrial and commercial organizations throughout the United States, it was said.

Northern Trust Bank Retains Old Directors

All directors of the Northern Trust company were reëlected yesterday at a closed annual meeting of stockholders. The directors will meet today to choose officers for the year. No other statement of the business of yesterday's assembly was issued.

The Personal Loan and Savings bank reëlected all sitting directors and named Harry C. Edmonds, manager of the Perkins B. Bass estate, to fill a vacancy on the board. The directors will elect officers for the year on Thursday. Willoughby G. Walling, president, reported an increase of $443,000, or 8 per cent, in the volume of loans during the year.

Net Profits Increase.

Net profits of $153,000 compared with $114,000 the previous year. The increase in earnings from operations is even greater, it was explained, when it is known that the 1934 profit figure was after absorption of all expenses incidental to the bank's moving last September to its present quarters at 81 West Monroe street.

Writeoffs during the year amounted to only $41,000, against $90,000 the preceding year despite the increase in loan volume.

"This indicates to the management," said Mr. Walling, "that things are on the mend. Those in employment have a feeling of security and are beginning to face the problems of living on a more normal basis."

Expects More Housing Loans.

Mr. Walling also called attention to the institution's qualifying to make loans under the national housing act. Although this business has developed slowly, he said indications are that early spring will see "the modernization program under full steam and that there will be a very considerable volume of business which will originate through the desire of property owners to make much needed improvements."

The First State Bank of Matteson reëlected all sitting directors and added to the board George R. Fortmiller and J. W. Muff. All officers were renamed by the board.

The Upper Avenue bank, 919 North Michigan avenue; the I-C Bank and Trust company, Western State bank of Cicero, Orland State bank, Citizens' State bank of Park Ridge, and the La Grange State Trust and Savings bank reëlected all their present officers and directors. The First Trust and Savings bank of Riverdale renamed all members of the board. Directors will choose officers Thursday.

The Avenue State bank of Oak Park reëlected seven of the eight directors. The eighth, Frank E. Hoover, resigned, and his place was not filled. The directors reëlected all the officers.

KASPAR STATE BANK WILL BE REOPENED TODAY

The Kaspar American State bank will reopen this morning on an unrestricted basis, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett announced yesterday. The balance sheet of the institution will show deposits of approximately $1,063,000, which represents the amount of cash released by its reorganization. This is equivalent to 21 per cent. Another 25 per cent was paid during receivership. Waivers have been signed for the remainder. The bank has been closed since June 24, 1932.

The bank will be open 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. daily except Saturday, when the hours are 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. It also will be open 6:30 to 8:30 Thursday evenings.

Treasury Sells 182 Day Bills to Yield 0.15 Pct.

Bids totaling $142,359,000 were received for the treasury's latest offering of 182 day bills, of which $75,079,000 was accepted. The notes, dated Jan. 16 and maturing July 17, brought an average price of 99.926, equal to a rate of 0.15 per cent annually on a bank discount basis.

NEW SEC RULES ARE REGARDED FOREWARD STEP

Flood of Issues Not Expected, However.

The financial district yesterday expressed satisfaction over the action of the Securities and Exchange commission in liberalizing its requirements to permit established corporations greater latitude in the issuing of new securities. While inclined to question the estimate of Joseph Kennedy, chairman of the commission, that the liberalizing of the regulations would pave the way for the flotation of upward of 2 billions of dollars in corporate securities for development, expansion, and refinancing purposes, most of those interviewed regarded the action a forward step.

Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, said:

"The action of the securities and exchange commission, as I read about it in the paper this morning, may be regarded as very hopeful. However, it is still too early to make much comment."

Declared a Forward Step.

Orville E. Babcock, partner of Babcock, Rushton & Co., also regarded the action as favorable. "I believe that the commission's action is a forward step," Babcock said. "While I cannot see how it can affect the market to any great extent in the immediate future, I think that over the long pull it will be helpful."

Robert O. Farrell of the law firm of Chapman & Cutler, known as a legal authority on the securities act of 1933, was enthusiastic over the prospect.

"I feel that the commission's liberalization of its regulations will be of immense help," Farrell asserted. "Under the regulations as previously in effect a company proposing to issue securities had to go all the way back in its history to take into account practically every transaction. The new order will save in accounting costs and on lawyers' time. I do not think that the information as now required should be burdensome to any one."

MAY RELEASE ISSUES.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The issuance of a simplified form for the registration of securities, announced by the Securities and Exchange commission last night, impressed the financial community as a step which will inevitably lead to a resumption of corporate financing, but the general belief was that in the beginning this will be confined to refunding operations.

It is not expected that there will be any great rush of corporations to be the first to test the market and to take advantage of the ruling low rates for high grade bonds. Opinion is almost unanimous that the government's efforts to keep money cheap so as to facilitate the sale of a large volume of new treasury securities will keep bond prices firm for some time.

Support Bane for SEC.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Baldwin B. Bane, executive administrator of the securities and exchange commission, will be recommended by Senators Glass and Byrd as an SEC commissioner, to succeed Ferdinand Pecora, who will resign shortly to become a Supreme court judge in New York. Bane is a Virginian. Before going to SEC, he was head of the securities division of the federal trade commission.

Some opposition has come from western senators who insist that a man from the middle west or Pacific coast be named to bring representation of that section to the commission. Several brokers from San Francisco have been mentioned.

CRUX

Every investment is subject to the composite influence of a large number of constantly varying factors, national and international. The only unchanging factor is change itself. Thus the crux of the investor's problem is how to detect coming changes well in advance of their occurrence and how to defend his wealth against them or turn them to his account. The best protection is competent investment counsel equipped with adequate research facilities.

To Stockholders Of Fourth National Investors

A PLAN of reorganization and consolidation has been proposed by the management of Fourth National Investors involving, among other things, a radical change in the nature of the organization, and ultimate removal of the common stock from listing on the N. Y. Stock Exchange.

Is Your Equity Jeopardized?

This plan, in our opinion, embodies several proposals which are decidedly objectionable and which, so far as Fourth National Investors stockholders are concerned, should be sufficient grounds for vigorous opposition. This plan also affects common stockholders of Third National and preferred stockholders of Second National.

Our Staff has prepared a Special Report on this situation for the guidance of UNITED clients holding these stocks,—and every stockholder should read this Report before the meeting of January 25.

STOCKS FIRMER; FEAR OVER GOLD CASE SUBSIDES

But Cautious Policy Cuts Trading Activity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The stock market exhibited a tendency to harden today as most sections of the list moved forward to improve their position fractionally in exceedingly quiet fashion. Action of the leading issues indicated there was little outside interest in the market, although sentiment was by no means bearish.

Factors which retarded the list last week were evident again and continued to influence the trend of prices, although less apprehension was said to be present in the financial district over the outcome of the Supreme court case on the gold clause in government and corporation securities. The great importance attached to the decision, however, resulted in a cautious policy everywhere.

Holland Decides Similar Case.

The lessening of fear over the Supreme court's decision was partly traced to the outcome of a similar case in Holland.

Having had more time to deliberate the matter, Wall street now looks for no more than a temporary setback in stocks, even if the government does lose the court decision. It is beginning to explore the greater possibility of inflation in that event.

Trading throughout the entire session was at a slow pace, the day's volume being 552,000 shares. Only 60,000 shares changed hands in the fourth hour.

Business news over the week-end was favorable, particularly the reports from the steel industry. However, the good news created no special activity in the steel shares. United States Steel advanced fractionally after displaying early hesitancy, while Bethlehem just managed to hold its own.

Railroad Shares Stronger.

The railroad shares, which took a rather bad licking last week, looked up slightly today as liquidation dried up. New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Delaware-Lackawanna and some of the lower priced favorites advanced fractionally.

Gillette Safety Razor, common and preferred, sustained losses on the news that the company had lost a patent suit. The latter lost a point.

With the automobile show out of town for another year the motors gave a better performance as Chrysler, Packard, and General Motors advanced slightly. Coca Cola was again a strong spot, gaining a full point.

The utilities, after making a good showing in early trading, softened toward the close. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, United Gas, and Public Service of New Jersey dipped fractionally.

The oils were steadier, as were the foods, chemicals and liquor shares. Building, tobacco, specialty and aviation shares did little more than mark time.

More U. S. Steel Shares Held in Brokers' Names

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The floating supply of common shares of the United States Steel corporation on Dec. 31 was 1,691,456 shares, as indicated by stock in brokers' names, equal to 19.44 per cent of the total 8,703,252 shares, comparing with 1,656,109 shares, or 19.03 per cent, on Sept. 30, 1934, and 1,636,349 shares, or 18.80 per cent, at the end of 1933.

MOTORS CHIEFS KNOW NOTHING OF BIG 'MERGER'

'ut Stockholder Group Will Seek Support.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Indications are that a committee of independent stockholders in Nash, Packard, Hupp, Auburn, Graham-Paige, Reo, Hudson Motors, and Mack Truck, which is planning to circularize all stockholders with a plan for merging these independent automobile companies into a huge combine to compete with General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler, will have to work out the plan alone.

Executives of the various companies declared emphatically today that they know nothing of any such plan and have not been apprised of any merger. Some of them express skepticism with regard to the plan's fruition.

Letter Is Prepared.

Nevertheless, the stockholder group has drafted a tentative copy of the letter which it proposes to send to stockholders in all of the companies mentioned. It reads in part:

"The Automobile Stockholders Consolidation Committee, Inc., has been formed at the instance of stockholders who own a substantial interest in a number of independent automobile manufacturing and affiliated companies to protect their interests by inaugurating a consolidation of these companies into a 'big fourth.'

"The committee wishes emphatically to state that this proposal of consolidation does not, in any sense whatever, constitute a desire to criticize or embarrass the existing managements of these independent companies.

"It is presented as the one solution to an economic problem which no individual management can overcome except by a consolidation assuring the operating advantages enjoyed by General Motors and Chrysler."

Would Exchange Shares.

It is understood in authoritative quarters that the backers of the plan have enough funds to finance the work of the committee. The plan is reported to provide for a consolidation through an exchange of the shares of the different independent companies for shares in a new holding company.

It is understood to call for an authorized capitalization of $500,000,000, of which some $237,088,200 would be outstanding if all of the companies mentioned come into the merger. The stocks of the new company would be $150,000,000 preferred of $10 par and $350,000,000 common, also $10 par.

TOP STEERS RISE TO $12.10, BEST FOR 37 MONTHS

The government report showing a huge tonnage of meats in storage over the entire country on Jan. 1 had little effect on the cattle and hog markets yesterday. Top steers set up a new peak at $12.10, the highest in 37 months, but the general trade changed little compared with last week's closing price levels. Some weakness at the close was counterbalanced by strength in spots at the start.

While competition was not particularly brisk at any time during the session, there was a fair clearance and only sellers demanding higher prices were left with stock on hand.

Steers that brought the top yesterday averaged 1,233 pounds and sold to eastern order buyers. Many loads of steers and yearlings brought $11.25 and higher. The bulk of the steers and yearlings sold at $6.50 to $11.25.

The og market weakened a little after a 10 cent higher opening, with the close about in line with last week's final quotations. Only smaller interests followed the early rise.

The top at $10.35, processing tax included, was paid sparingly for heavy butchers averaging near 300 pounds, but this figure was within 10 cents of the highest mark in 51 months. The day's average was $10.00.

Lambs soared 25 to 35 cents to a new high of $9.85 here on brisk competition between shippers and local packers. The price level now stands at the highest January levels in five years.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per hundredweight collected by the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are per 100 pounds of live animal:

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Sober second thought on the subject of what may happen if the Supreme court should declare unconstitutional the administration's gold legislation resulted in the adoption of a neutral attitude toward the bond market today. The volume of trading was greatly curtailed.

Whereas in the Friday and Saturday markets a preponderance of the trading was done with a conviction that the court decision would be unfavorable to the government and that gold bonds would be worth much more than those payable in currency, today traders and investors were not quite so sure about it all.

Take Profits in "Gold" Bonds.

Those who had profits as a result of last week's sensational advance in gold bonds offered them freely today and soon the list came tumbling down to currency basis prices. Liberty 3½s were hit harder than any others, while the rise in currency bonds was about in proportion to last week's declines.

Liberty 3½s, which Saturday scored a record high since issuance, broke 1 10-32 points, with most of the other "gold payment" issues off 2-32 to 16-32 point. In the "nongold" long term issues of the treasury group prices were up 16-32 to off 1-32. Total trading in the long term government issues amounted to $4,007,500, with total dealings in all bonds in the listed market aggregating $12,516,000.

Corporation Issues Firmer.

Domestic corporation bonds moved irregularly higher, with public utility issues showing the best average gains. Most of the corporation issues which are selling at or above their call prices were little affected by the simplifications of the registration rules of the SEC, which would aid in the refunding of these callable issues. Second grade and speculative issues were irregular.

German loans showed the principal strength in the foreign list, many, including the government issues, gaining a point or more on the day. The strength was attributed to the evident return of the Saar territory to the reich.

Michigan Gas and Electric.

Investors' Guide: I would like information on Michigan Gas and Electric company as to their failure to pay full dividends on the prior lien stock. Are they required to pay dividends?—C. J. S.

Answer: Probably the principal reason why full dividends are not being paid on Michigan Gas and Electric company prior lien stock is that full dividends are not being earned.

The company is a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities company [in receivership]. It furnishes gas in the copper country surrounding Hancock and Houghton, Mich.; gas and electricity in the iron region surrounding Ishpeming and Negaunee, and electricity to thirty-four communities and gas to fourteen in southern Michigan.

Gross in the first nine months of 1934 was $897,000, and net income was $44,000, or $3.04 per share of prior preferred. For the corresponding 1933 period gross was $833,000, and net was $53,000, or $3.73 per share of prior preferred.

	Operating revenue.	Net income.	Inc. per prior lien shr.
1933	$1,358,000	$ 47,000	$ 3.29
1932	1,219,000	164,000	11.43
1931	1,426,000	257,000	17.65
1930	1,280,000	276,000	18.98

Current position at the close of 1933 was satisfactory. Funded debt was $4,300,000, none of which will mature prior to 1943. There are outstanding 14,358 shares of $6 and 7 per cent prior lien preferred, of equal priority, which are senior to 4,551 shares of 6 per cent and $6 preferred.

After full payments dividends on the prior lien preferred lapsed for one year to May 1, 1934, when they were resumed at half the stipulated rate. Directors are not required to pay prior lien preferred dividends, but nothing can be paid on junior stocks [preferred and common] until accumulated unpaid dividends on the prior lien stocks have been paid up.

The prior lien stock is speculative and the preferred more so.

Utah Radio Products.

Investors' Guide: Can you inform me as to the outcome of the meeting that the Utah Radio company held on Dec. 18 in regard to reducing the amount of stock from one million to 500,000 shares?—L. L. H.

Answer: The meeting was held on Dec. 28. Stockholders approved the reduction in authorized capitalization. It is contemplated that some time next March one new share will be issued for each two now outstanding.
